A Canadian Spitfire wing encountered more than 15 Me-109s over the Gossny area in northern France. The English leader, Wing Commander J. E. Johnson, shot down an enemy aircraft to become the second highest scoring pilot still serving with the fighter command, with 23 victims.

Raid Normandy
The Vichy radio said American planes raided a place in Normandy.

Among the formidable squadrons crossing and recrossing the straits of Dover today were many medium bombers identified by coastal residents as Americans.

Enemy raiders scattered bombs in east Anglia and also rumbled over southeast England last night. At least two were shot down. An alarm sounded in London soon after midnight, but no incidents were reported.

EDITORIALS ON NEWS

WE outsiders have the hazy notion that it's connected in some way with Russian moves on the AFTER THE WAR chess-board.

EVERYWHERE the news reports speak of German weakness in the air. For some time the idea has prevailed in more or less informed quarters that the Germans are HOLDING BACK the bulk of their remaining air force for some desperate emergency—such as an invasion of the continent.

Some time ago they're supposed to have shifted the bulk of their production from bombers, which are an offensive weapon, to fighters, whose job is DEFENSIVE.

It's unlikely that the German air force is as near gone as the reports we've been getting seem to suggest.

ONE of the objectives of modern air war is to force the enemy to send up his fighters and then SHOOT THEM DOWN. The Germans tried that on the British, but the RAF held back enough of its fighters to meet the emergency when it came.

Maybe that's what the Germans are doing now.

COAL MINES BACK IN PRIVATE HANDS

Ickes, as coal administrator, announced termination of government possession and control of the mines of 53 companies, and a spokesman said "some" of them were operated under contracts with the UMW. Asked about Lewis' threat, he said "We'll just have to see what happens."

Lewis, in ending the third general strike by the UMW in June, said that his miners were to work until October 31 only if the government retained control of the mines throughout that period.

Agreed With Act
The mines were returned in accordance with the Smith-Connally anti-strike act requirement that property seized by the government be returned within 60 days after restoration of "productive efficiency."

Although citing this provision of the act, Ickes did not reveal his interpretation of the provision or say whether Attorney General Biddle has given him the ruling he has asked on what the act requires him to do about restoring the mines.

Approximately 3700 mines continue under government control. Ickes has been "surveying the productive efficiency" of these mines "preliminary to determining the applicability of the provisions of the Smith-Connally act pertaining to the release of the property."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Thomas Kennedy, quiet-spoken secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, told his former colleagues on the war labor board (WLB) today that an increase of $1.30 a day for anthracite miners is fully justified and necessary to retain manpower.

Appearing before the board he quit last spring in disagreement with its policies, Kennedy said that "in an effort to effect a compromise basis upon which an agreement could be written the mine workers offered to settle for an 'overall' figure of $1.30 per day, or $1 per day 'net'."

NAZIS APPEAR RETREATING IN SOUTH RUSSIA

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE
LONDON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Premier Marshal Stalin announced the capture of Kharkov today and the Germans appeared to be in general retreat across south Russia.

A Stalin order of the day to field commanders, broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded here by the soviet monitor, told of the seizure of the city by storm.

Admit Loss
The German high command communique, issued earlier in the day, had admitted the loss of Kharkov, saying that the Nazi garrison withdrew without Russian pressure.

Directed to Lt. Gen. Lvan Konev, Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin and General Orlovsky, the order said:

"Today, August 23, our troops of the steppe front, with active collaboration from the flank of troops of the Voronezh and southwestern fronts, as a result of fierce engagements broke the resistance of the enemy and took by storm the town of Kharkov."

Kharkov Liberated
"Thus, the second capital—our native Kharkov—is liberated from the yoke of the German fascist blackguards. (Kharkov is a former capital of the Ukraine.)"

"In offensive engagements for the liberation of the town of Kharkov, our troops displayed high military skill, courage and ability to maneuver."

The fall of the city was presented by DNB, German news agency, as an evacuation in which Russian pressure had no part. In a broadcast announcing withdrawal from the base, DNB said Kharkov was no longer a "valuable center of traffic and supply" and declared all important installations there had been destroyed by the nazis before they pulled out.

Changes Hands
Kharkov, the great industrial center in the Ukraine, was last captured by the Russians in February and lost by them again in March and has changed hands four times in less than two years.

It represented the major Nazi position east of the Dnieper river and has been for the base of a salient from which the Germans could thrust out to menace the Russians anywhere from Moscow to the Caucasus.

Russian broadcasts and reports from the Germans themselves indicated violent fighting west of the city now rising toward perhaps some fateful conclusions. The nazis were at pains to insist that the withdrawal was orderly.

Hard Pressed
The Russians have declared that German commanders were so hard-pressed that they were throwing new formations into the battleline at the moment of their arrival and without rest.

Kharkov was added to the lengthening list of Russian triumphs—the list including Orel and Belgorod—won not by costly frontal assault but by the same slashing flank attacks which relieved Stalingrad, two Russian armies enveloped Kharkov from north and south.

The German announcement that Kharkov was again in Russian hands was broadcast in the overseas service report but not to nazis at home. They were told that "there is nothing new."

Confirm Vows
The German high command later confirmed the loss of Kharkov in a communique broadcast for both domestic and foreign consumption saying:

Press In Italy Admits Nazis Blocking Peace

(Continued From Page One) held by Minister of Industry Leopoldo Picardi with workers in heavily-bombed Milan, Turin and Genoa, who were told that the people's wish for peace has been blocked by "enormous difficulties."

The insistent clamor for peace was echoed by the Corriere Della Sera at Milan, which urged the government "not to let even the least favorable chance to take the country out of war escape."

(From Madrid came word that Rome dispatches indicated that the Italians do not intend to resist allied invasion but will not oppose German resistance because they feel that conflict with the Germans would result in larger loss of life and property than remaining aloof.

The raid marked the late opening of Chungking's "bombing season" which in 1941 and earlier years usually started early in May.

Although the capital's population is swollen to over 800,000, the air-raid dugouts are capable of accommodating all, and orders were given only a few days ago that no more should be built.

Litvinoff Ousting Not Linked With Conference

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
QUEBEC, Aug. 23 (AP)—As nearly as it could be accomplished without a forthright official statement, the recall of Maxim Litvinoff as soviet ambassador to Washington was divorced today from proceedings of the British-American war conference here.

Moscow's purpose in making known at this time that Litvinoff would not return to the United States remained obscure in the absence of any explanation from the Russian capital, but the understanding of American officialdom regarding the incident was made clear by an authority closely associated with the Quebec conference.

Not Connected
His statement was that the replacement of Litvinoff by Andrei A. Gromyko, embassy counsellor and charge d'affaires in Washington, was not connected in any way with the conference. The fact that Litvinoff would not go back to Washington had been known to officials in the American capital for weeks. It was brought out, but the matter was one for Russian, not American, announcement.

(In Washington, state department officials declined to say when the soviet government had requested this government's agreement to the appointment of Gromyko. Such a request is routine diplomatic courtesy.)

No Significance
In relation to the Quebec meeting and the fact that Russia has no representation here, the same authority said that again he could see no significance.

The questioning was occasioned by speculation here, as well as in dispatches from London, that Russia was replacing Litvinoff as a gesture of disapproval with the work of British-American leaders and also as a means of emphasizing her repeated demands for an invasion of western Europe.

In this regard it was noted that Nicholas Zhivaynov, representative of Tass, the Russian news agency, had checked out of press headquarters at the Clarendon hotel here. But Stephen Early, secretary to President Roosevelt, said no significance was to be attached to his departure.

Real Purpose
The real purposes of Litvinoff's withdrawal, of course, could merely be guessed at. The possibilities mentioned in discussion here, outside the second front speculation, were mainly concerned with the theory that he was needed for some other assignment.

One suggestion was that Russia might be maneuvering to join in the next allied war conference, at least to the extent of having a highly-placed observer present. Litvinoff, with his record of British-American friendship and his long espousal of international collaboration to maintain peace, might be the man for that job.

446,000 Dads To Be Drafted By January
WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP) Draft Director Lewis B. Hershey, in the first official pronouncement of the kind, said today it probably would be necessary to induct 446,000 pre-Pearl Harbor fathers by January in order to meet quotas for the balance of this year.

The figure was given in a letter sent to the 6500 local boards explaining why the ban on drafting pre-Pearl Harbor fathers, except those in non-deferred work and therefore subject to induction at any time, had been lifted effective October 1.

Since he put the total number of draft age (28 through 27) fathers in non-agricultural work at 6,559,000, Hershey's figure showed approximately seven out of 100 of them can expect to be in uniform before this year ends. Perhaps 21 out of 100 may be sent to induction stations, however.

ALLIED AERIAL MIGHT RUINS SALERNO YARDS

The British fliers observed explosions and fires, some near a chemical factory, a Cairo announcement said.

Seven allied aircraft were reported missing from the Saturday night and Sunday raids, two of them from the Middle East force.

British Wellingtons followed up the Marauder attacks on Salerno again last night.

Fighters Accompany
For the first time, A-36 invader fighters accompanied the Marauder squadrons as escort.

(The Italian communique, broadcast from Rome and recorded by the Associated Press, said that great damage was caused in Salerno.

Rome asserted 13 allied planes were shot down at Salerno by German fighters and five more at Crotona, near Cape Colonna, and at the port of Prevesa.

Salerno is one of the railroad gateways to the toe and instep of the Italian boot.

An electric rail line passes through the port. Cutting this line would force axis army commanders to route troops and supplies far inland, more than doubling the distance required to establish and feed the axis army in South Italy.

A report from Norway said many persons bombed out of their homes in Germany were being moved to Norway, where the nazis were taking over hotels and resort centers.
