

FROST DAMAGE WILL AFFECT POTATO YIELD

Damage to Klamath county crops caused by Sunday night's frost was surveyed yesterday by County Agent C. A. Henderson, who reports the frost may mean the difference between a fair and a good crop of potatoes.

"Apparently potatoes were partially frozen in the entire area, as temperatures seemed to be fairly uniform," Henderson said. Minimum temperatures of 27 and 28 degrees were reported.

Dry fields seemed to be frozen rather badly, while fields that were wet and recently irrigated suffered less.

The frost will affect the yield up to 10 per cent, the county agent estimated. The frost will cause the fields to start maturing and may make possible earlier digging. Late planted crops were damaged severely.

Grain crop damage in late maturing fields of oats and barley was quite severe. As a result, oats will be cut for hay in some instances instead of being harvested for grain, and the grain crop will be lessened.

Also, some barley will be changed from a high class brewing barley to a feed crop, although barley was less affected by the frost than was the oat crop.

Some damage was seen in the small seed crops, and the frost will cut down the amount of alfalfa cut for hay. Minor damage was done in either of these crops.

Some vegetable gardens were damaged—both victory and commercial gardens—but here the damage was more spotted, depending on the condition of the plants and the variety in temperatures. Late maturing vegetables such as beans, corn, tomatoes and squash were most affected by the frost.

If the Germans learn how to STOP our bombers (by making the losses too costly for us to stand) it will change the whole course of the air war now being waged so spectacularly.

If they FAIL, we'll be able to go on and destroy Germany from the air.

THERE'S nothing much startlingly new in Russia—just hard fighting, and lots of it. The Germans announce a new "planned withdrawal" in the Voroshilovgrad area and intimate (for home consumption) that they outsmarted the Russians.

Remember that planned withdrawals win no wars.

THE pope makes a radio speech from the Vatican today calling guardedly but plainly for MODERATION, and suggesting that the strong can find it wise to be generous.

His speech is interesting because it tells us quite clearly that a lot of dickering is going on behind the censorship curtain.

CHURCHILL and FDR are reported to be working hard for a three-way conference (both on military strategy and after-the-war problems) at which Stalin will be represented.

This writer can't escape the feeling that Stalin is demanding a free hand in Europe AFTER THE WAR ends and that he and the British have so far declined (or at least failed) to agree.

THE angry Danes are feeling the hard hand of German military government.

Refugees arriving in Sweden tell of German troops patrolling the streets of Copenhagen and other cities in armored cars bristling with machine guns and shooting down Danes who gather in crowds.

of postwar political problems. Russian participation in future meetings, at least in some degree, was described as "necessary and urgent" said Mr. Churchill in his speech from Quebec yesterday. And the president said at his press conference a little later that things were going along pretty well with respect to a three-power conference.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull said today an Anglo-Soviet-American conference to discuss urgent problems of the war is highly desirable. Asked if he was prepared to attend a London parley of British, American and Soviet foreign ministers, Hull told a press conference he has no plans and that he did not know yet whether the proposed conference might be held.

The four-engined bombers scored direct hits on the railway station and a railroad bridge and shot down ten enemy fighters which attempted to intercept them.

Battleships Help Two British battleships joined in the daylight offensive against the Italian mainland. Their 16-inch guns poured a heavy bombardment into enemy coastal batteries in the area of Reggio Calabria on the Italian toe, knocking out at least one gun and causing fires, apparently from exploding ammunition.

The same battleships, with a cruiser and several destroyers, engaged batteries in the area of Cape Pellaro, also on the Strait of Messina.

enrolled on the first day of school in 1942. This does not include quite all county schools as complete figures had not been received from some of them.

Altamont elementary school had 345 pupils enrolled as compared with 322 last year and Altamont Junior high had 519 this year and 367 in 1942.

The increase in attendance at these two schools is due to the fact that Summers school is not running this year and the little over a hundred pupils who attended there are now at Altamont.

County school authorities said Wednesday that in farming communities such as Henley, Bonanza, etc., there would be a noticeable increase in enrollment in those schools later in September.

Many of the boys and girls from these districts are still working in the fields and have not entered school.

Regular classroom schedules in both city and county were in force Wednesday as the second day of school progressed.

either the Tokyo statements or the navy disclosures here to show whether the action was limited to Marcus Island or whether American forces had struck simultaneously at other points.

Japs Worried The Japanese obviously were badly worried, however, the Tokyo radio pointing out that a force which succeeded in raiding Marcus might have struck at Japan itself.

The American naval spokesman said: "A carrier task force raid planned for September 1 is presumably in progress at Marcus Island. The United States task force should have arrived on scheduled time. However, no report has been received from the raiding force and it is presumed that there will be none until need for radio silence ceases to exist."

Confident Not in 20 months of this war had the navy issued a statement reporting a raid while it still was in progress. The announcement today indicated complete confidence of the high command here that the task force was so powerful as to be able to cope with any forces the Japanese might attempt to throw against it.

There was about the announcement a suggestion of war of nerves planning with the navy possibly deliberately attempting to confront the Tokyo admirals with so direct a challenge that they would be compelled sooner or later to throw their main fleet into action.

Marcus, so far as could be learned here, is not one of the main Japanese bases such as Truk Island further to the south, but it is an important defensive position and listening post guarding the southeastern approaches to the Tokyo-Yokohama area, heart of Japan.

Germans Routed The Moscow war bulletin said the Russians routed the German 11th and 29th infantry and 15th airborne divisions at Taganrog and inflicted heavy defeats on the 304th, 306th and 336th infantry and 13th tank divisions.

"In these battles our troops destroyed 212 enemy planes, 537 tanks, 494 guns of various calibers, 1500 machine guns, 3600 trucks, 10 fuel dumps and 29 ammunition dumps," the communication said.

"The enemy lost in killed alone more than 35,000 officers and men."

It added that 5100 German officers and men were taken prisoner.

The German broadcast of the DNB dispatch said earlier: "Another shortening of the home front, involving the possibility of establishing operative reserves, was achieved by a planned withdrawal of German lines in the Voroshilovgrad area which the soviets attempted in vain to impede."

The regular German communication, recorded by The Associated Press said numerous Russian attacks in the Mius, Rylsk and Vyzma sectors—on widespread sections of the front—were beaten off after violent hand-to-hand combat.

does not clash with their right to live and their sense of honor." He made no more specific mention of those countries now having ill fortune in the war's course, but asserted "the minds and hearts of the peoples" were filled with doubts that continuation of conflict "can be in accordance with national interest, reasonable and justified before Christian and human conscience."

Prays for Way The Pope offered his prayers that a way would be opened to the "hearts and decisions of those who hold in their hands the fate of afflicted humanity," and added:

"Blessed be those to whatever group of belligerents they may belong—who cooperated so that the deadlock wherein the fatal balance of war and peace is now kept in suspense may be overcome."

"Through the gigantic struggles the exterior happenings of the war approach us and converge towards their culminating point," he continued.

Generosity Generosity in the making of peace would have within itself the means by which the generous could fully protect their interests, the Holy Father said.

Through the whole of his address ran repeated admonitions to war leaders to accept some spirit of compromise. He urged: "Do not disturb or impede the desires of the peoples for peace by actions which instead of encouraging confidence rather inflame hatreds anew and strengthen determination to resist."

Germans Inflict Big Damage on Russia, Says Varga

MOSCOW, Sept. 1 (AP)—Germany has inflicted on the soviet union damage amounting to billions of dollars and on all other allies only about half that much, Professor Eugene Varga estimated today in a lecture, adding the Russians would claim reparations to prevent the Germans from having a higher standard of living than the countries on which they inflicted the damage.

As a matter of economic necessity, said Varga, Hungarian, and former professor at the University of Budapest, reparations should be first paid to the soviet union and other countries which suffered occupation and then to the United States and England where the relief is not needed immediately.

WTS PROGRAM AT KLAMATH CONCLUDED

The war training service program at the Klamath Falls airport has been concluded. The last class finishing its work last weekend.

Civil aeronautics authority, which operated the WTS program on many airports over the nation, also ordered a conclusion to the school at Bend. At Prineville, where an instructors school is being conducted, the classes will continue.

The program was located on the Klamath field in February, 1942, moving here from Eugene. University of Oregon was the sponsor, and Louis Soukup, head of Oregon Aircraft, was the government contractor. Soukup's plane equipment used in the school will remain at the Klamath field for the present.

Large numbers of pilots and instructors received training at the Klamath field in the year and a half WTS was in operation.

For several months, the men training at the airport have been quartered at the Summers school building. In view of the possibility the navy may use the Klamath field for air gunnery practice operations, moving in a considerable number of men, it is expected the Summers school building will be left as it is for a time so the navy may use it if it is found desirable for navy purposes.

Otto Vitus has functioned as local representative of the WTS coordinator at the University of Oregon. Private club flying will continue at the local field.
