Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

A local office hangs a map of Europe. A little American flag, attached to a pin, has been stuck in the map where the city of Berlin is marked. Some one has run a penciled arrow from the North sea to Berlin, and has written on the arrow: "Christmas, 1943."

The person who thus ingeniously predicts the American flag will be planted in Berlin by Christmas is not only a terrific optimist in the matter of the Allied time schedule, but he apparently believes the Americans, this time, will go through to Berlin.

The Germans, who prefer to do their fighting on somebody else's soil, will probably capitulate long before there is any danger of Berlin being taken by force. But the Allies, this time, will surely not forget 1918, and they will surely go through to Berlin in a victorious demonstration that will impress upon the German mind the meaning of complete defeat.

Unless that is done the Germans, by blaming their allies or in some other ridiculous manner will convince themselves that somehow they didn't lose the war, and another generation of Germans may try it again.

Fortunately, Berlin and Germany as a whole cannot this time escape the physical ravages of war. The great Allied bombing fleets have already seen to that.

We will remember the local map on Christmas day, 1943. And we will remember it, whenever the day of victory over Germany comes. That little flag stuck into the dot that marks Berlin packs a real thrill. Let's hope it is truly prophetic.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 — As Americans first surged ashore at Naples, a better-than-usual military count showed 13 German divisions then entrenched in northern Italy, and four or five in the south (around 250,000 men in all).

This force was greater than anything the United Nations had publicly shown in action in Sicily or southern Italy.

Announcements have mentioned only five American divisions in action in Sicily, and have suggested the presence of about an equal number of British and Canadians, in action at any rate (reserves not disclosed).

Moreover, an excellent defensive position was available to the nazis in the Apennine line running from Pisa on the Mediterranean through Florence to Ancona on the Adriatic. The few main highways approach this line through mountain passes and the railroads run through tunnels.

The Germans could constantly augment and supply a force there from rear lines running back into three directions to southern France, Austria, and Trieste (the Balkans).

Furthermore, it would be just like the Germans to plan their last big fight on Italian soil, and thus cause destruction of Italian cities and civilians rather than their own. Indeed, if they live up to their historic customs, they will surrender before we or the Russians can get to their borders.

Consequently, every detailed development in Italy has been read with eagerness born of uncertainty here.

It was clear to all that even after our successful landings on Italian shores, everything would have to be organized all over again for a campaign against a strong nazi defense on the Apennine line, or even the weaker Po and final Alpine lines behind it. This was true in Tunisia and in Sicily where we had to stop to reorganize after victories in order to meet a new and different situation.

Over 400 head of cattle were taken through Klamath Falls yesterday. They belong to Hazen, Alexander, McClure and others, and were on their way from Poe Valley to Aspen lake.

From the Klamath News Schools were open today. Klamath Union high school reported 804 pupils.

Winding up a three-day visit here, Congressman Walter M. Pierce said he wanted to be re-elected so he can help President Roosevelt bring about a "complete readjustment of our civilization."

The University of California was authorized by the state constitution of 1849 but its establishment was delayed two decades by legislative disagreement.

Choking, gasping, wheezing, recurring attacks of bronchial asthma ruin your sleep and rob your blood of vitally important oxygen because you can't get air in and out of your lungs properly. But now it is no longer necessary to suffer from these terrible attacks without the benefit you may receive from a physician's prescription called Mendaco. Within a very short time after the first dose, Mendaco ingredients start circulating thru the blood, thus reaching the smallest as well as the largest bronchial tubes where they usually quickly help liquefy, loosen and remove thick strangling mucus (phlegm), thereby promoting free breathing and more restful sleep. In fact, Mendaco has proved so successful in helping thousands of sufferers from recurring spasms of bronchial asthma that it is sold under a guarantee of money back unless completely satisfactory. So get Mendaco today from your grocer.

We Get 'Em Twice

IT'S ABOUT time the various government bureaus and their "information divisions" are figuring out how the press services operate to carry information by wire into the offices of subscriber newspapers throughout the country.

We are constantly receiving, usually many days late, copies of the press releases from these bureaus which were previously carried on our wires. Having already had our crack at this news, there is nothing to do but drop the releases gently into a wastebasket that is giant size for that very purpose. In these days of paper shortage, governmentally established paper rationing, and clogged mails, these unnecessary releases are downright wasteful extravagance.

A couple of examples that came in our mail today included a long article on General Marshall's report to Secretary Stimson, carried in full on the wire September 8, and another long announcement from the War Labor board on the Boeing wage increase, carried on the wire September 9. This is September 13.

Fire In The Woods

FIRE sprang up in a score or more spots in the Klamath area after last week's lightning storms, reminding us that September's arrival does not mean the end of the fire season.

Man is not always responsible for the fires that endanger our forests, as these blazes attest, but man is still the major threat to the resources upon which he himself depends extensively for livelihood and recreation. If our forest protective agencies had nothing but natural fire-causes to worry about, their job would be tremendously simplified.

A hard worker on the Third War Loan drive is E. Mullis, the chief of E bond solicitation. Folks around bond headquarters have nicknamed him "E. Bond Mullis."

As a result, the men who know military affairs here have been less enthusiastic than the general public in expectation of a swift conclusion in Italy.

Armistice Results Limited

THE military results of the Badoglio armistice were likewise restricted. Probably the main result was the undetectable effect it had on the German people and their conquered nations. The news could not be concealed that our breath was now hot on the nazi back. It should be the final German discouragement.

So conclusive was the action in this respect that you would expect the German army immediately to shoot Hitler, Goering, Goebbels, et al, and ask for terms. But the Prussian military system is just as near the gallows now as is Hitler. The German army will be gone (the officers will all lose their jobs) as soon as they surrender.

Aside from the controlling nazi and the army groups, there is no political organization available in Germany except the under-ground communists who are not strong enough to force internal German affairs to the gun point.

This peculiar situation is apparently the only thing that has kept Germany in the war in the face of an obviously lost cause.

The only direct military effect of Italian surrender was to give us air bases closer to Germany, and establish a position whereby we may cross the Adriatic and take the Balkans.

Delay Explained

THE mysterious delay of five days in announcing and enforcing the Italian armistice is easily explained.

It was worked that way in an effort to trap the four or five German divisions in southern Italy. The agreed time for its disclosure was the moment our troops landed at Naples. They took longer at sea than expected and the news was broken a few hours earlier, but the arrangement and its purpose remained the same.

If the news had been announced at once the nazis would have been free to withdraw the southern troops, destroying cities, railroads and airfields on their way back.

persons who have formed foundations have all co-operated to give the entire public help in detecting malformation, and minimizing its effects. There are countless excellent schools and institutions for the handicapped child, where education is geared to his individual condition.

PSYCHOLOGICAL TREATMENT

Handicapped child is a term far more inclusive and accurate than that of crippled child. Looking upon his handicap as a hurdle to be overcome, not merely endured with patience or looked upon with bitterness, is the keystone of proper psychology in dealing with deformity.

The fine example in public and private life of those who have succeeded in conquering the obstacle of physical handicap can be a perpetual inspiration to those who find it necessary to solve like problems. Enabling these people to find a niche in normal life should be the concern of everyone.

Klamath's Yesterdays

From the files—40 years ago and 10 years ago.

From the Klamath Republican Sept. 10, 1903

The Yawkey Lumber company, a prominent concern of Hazelhurst, Wis., has recently purchased about 16,000 acres of timber land on Wood river, in northern Klamath county. The price paid is said to be from $8 to $10 an acre. (1943 Editor's note: The Yawkey tract was logged off in recent years by the Algoma Lumber company.)

The War Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

Hitler's screams of rage at Italy's "treachery," and his feverish efforts to offset the debacle with a bewildering barrage of propaganda and such theatricals as the establishment of a puppet government in Rome, show clearly that the moral effect of his axis partner's collapse is like a knife between the ribs.

Frequently it's difficult to separate the moral and military effects at a confused moment like this, because military adversity follows the moral shock so quickly. However, it strikes me that in the long run the moral aspect of this historic surrender is going to be the biggest allied gain.

Speech of Fear
Recognition of this drove the fuhrer to the microphone Saturday to try to prevent a stampede at home and abroad by double talk. That speech was underscored with fear. It was not the same old arrogant Hitler who strove to produce oily words to pour on the troubled waters, but a badly frightened Herr Schickelgruber who found the oil barrel empty.

At least twice the master gangster trotted out the old bugbear of allied intention to destroy German and other axis countries—one of Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels's favorite lines. "We all know that in this merciless struggle the defeated will be annihilated according to the wishes of our enemies," Hitler broadcast. And he declared that "all attempts to force the fate of enslaved nations upon the German people will fail." It was the same old Goebbels's dope, the like of which I've heard the propaganda minister hand to a vast outdoor audience of 50,000 in Berlin—that if Germany loses the war "she will be broken up and destroyed."

Humanitarian Touch
Why did Hitler return to this idea so insistently? Undoubtedly because the humanitarian though firm manner in which the allies have been handling the Italian situation makes him fear that the German people, and other axis peoples, will realize that unconditional surrender doesn't mean that they are to be destroyed.

The whole world has been watching to see what would happen to a defeated member of the axis. Now the world knows that while Italy must pay the full and heavy price for Mussolini's brigandage, she isn't going to be "annihilated" or "enslaved." On the contrary, the world sees that the allies even are preparing to lend the Italians a helping hand in the way of providing food and other essentials.

I believe that's going to have a tremendous effect on the German people and on other enemy countries. This may seem strange to Americans who are not accustomed to think in bloodthirsty terms, but it becomes understandable when one stops to consider the manner in which Hitler not only literally has enslaved millions of unfortunates, but has murdered countless thousands in cold blood.

"The bank is crazy if it thinks I'm going to come down here every time I want to put something in that box."
