

FIFTH ARMY HOLDS HILLS ON SORRENTO

elbow of the bay. Smoking Vesuvius rose but 10 miles from the allied mountain positions.

While troops occupied the peninsula stretching 22 miles west of Salerno, other parts of the fifth army slashed eastward and northward from their Salerno beachhead in the Monteporvino and Battipaglia sectors where the Germans apparently were making a full-scale retreat under a merciless air lashing reminiscent of the days when the British were trying to get out of Greece under the blows of the Nazi air force.

The British fifth corps, closing in from the Italian heel, captured Gioja, 28 miles from Taranto on the road to allied held Bari, and a headquarters spokesman said the Germans had completed the evacuation of Sardinia, the huge island and air base which Mussolini had regarded as the No. 2 defense outpost of Italy.

Sardinia Falls
(The German high command admitted that Sardinia had been given up.)

With the capture of Sardinia by Italian troops acting under orders of Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio, the position of the Germans in Corsica, only seven miles to the north, apparently became untenable and the allies gained the potential use of 10 airfields from which to press attacks on northern Italy and southern France.

It was not likely that much use was being made of Sardinia by allied forces as yet, however, because of the floodtide of operations on the mainland now beating against Naples.

(A Morocco radio broadcast said the German commander had ordered a state of siege in the Naples area.)

Decreasing Resistance
The fifth army advances were reported made "against decreasing enemy resistance."

Further reinforcements continued to arrive on the Salerno beaches to swell the ranks of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American and British forces which yesterday captured Battipaglia and Alavilla.

The air force reported that American A-36 Invaders attacked a column of 1600 German vehicles traveling northward from Contursi, 10 miles east of Eboli facing the bridgehead, and destroyed or damaged 246 of them.

There was little news from the British eighth army, which now has advanced some 250 miles from the southernmost toe, but it was considered probable that the German withdrawal reported by the invaders near Contursi might have been caused by the eighth army cutting due north past the Salerno bridgehead.

Alma Stover of Poe Valley was owner of the championship pen of capons, which will be on sale with other livestock at the auction sale beginning at 7:30 tonight. Joan Robinette displayed rabbits at the show which won first place in their division.

Quality Good
Judges at the show said that although the number of entries was under last year's figures, the quality of the stock was very good and "a credit to the efforts of the children who raised them."

ports for several months that Marshall, who has been chief of staff since 1939, might be sent to Europe as commander-in-chief of allied forces in that theater.

These reports, emanating from both London and Washington, have mentioned several possible successors for the top-ranking post which he now holds, including Gen. Dwight G. Eisenhower, Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, commander of the army service forces, and others.

capturing Duhovschina, while another Soviet column, striking down the railroad from Nezhin, was only 42 miles from Kiev, capital of the Ukraine.

Sweep Westward
The Russian war bulletin indicated that the red army was sweeping westward rapidly, meeting only lightly armed Nazi rearguards as they captured village after village. Huge stocks of food and munitions were falling into Russian hands, but there was little mention of the heavy armored equipment which the Germans expended so prodigiously in the earlier days of the campaign.

The Smolensk area was apparently a focal point of the present drive, with Gen. Yermenko bearing down heavily from the northeast while another column under Gen. Vassili Sokolovsky pushed into Yartsevo on the left flank.

Rail Center
Smolensk, major city of the approaches to White Russia, was one of the first major Russian cities to fall in the initial German advance in 1941 and although it was reduced to a heap of rubble its radiating railroad lines to Poland and the Baltic states made it a major German base of operations.

Roslavl, to the south, was also menaced by the red army, which, the Soviet communique said, stormed across the Desna river, major tributary of the Dnieper, to capture Dubrovka, 32 miles to the southeast, in an advance of nine miles during which 100 villages were taken.

Other army units advancing westward from Bryansk took 300 towns, including Trubchevsk, in a drive of 12 miles, the bulletin added.

On the lower central front the Russians were arrayed in a rough arc, with the columns aimed in the general direction of Kiev.

commons. As always, we're awaiting with interest what he will have to say.

Churchill is the war's best reporter.

OUR navy (carrier-based planes and all) attacks Tarawa and Nauru islands in the Gilberts. The attack lasted all Saturday night and most of Sunday.

That length of time indicates that the Japs weren't able to fight back very hard.

WE get today some thrilling reports of the growth of our navy.

The tonnage of our fighting ships in the first six months of this year is 20 TIMES greater than in the corresponding six months three years ago.

We have 14 TIMES as many naval ships of all kinds. We have 10 TIMES as many naval planes of all types.

In July alone, our navy received more planes of all types than it had ALTOGETHER three years ago.

THAT'S some record.

On the strength of it, we might even go so far as to pat ourselves on the back a little.

A little judicious patting on the back when they've worked hard and efficiently inspires Americans to work even HARDER and MORE efficiently.

The idea that celebrating REAL ACHIEVEMENTS hurts American morale is an absurdity.

SO much for the shooting war—which we're GOING TO WIN, sooner or later.

Let's now face a sober fact: We COULD win the war on the shooting front and LOSE it on the financing front.

HOW, you ask? By financing the war the WRONG way.

THE right way to finance war is to BUY BONDS and DO WITHOUT OTHER THINGS. In that way lies a sound future.

THE WRONG way is to FAIL to buy bonds, thus compelling the government to finance the war out of the deposits of the commercial banks.

In that way lie inflation, repudiation and poverty.

WE all know, without being told, that paying for wars with printing press money brings INEVITABLY inflation and then ruin.

What we don't realize, because it is a complicated subject, is that financing wars out of the deposits of commercial banks is EXACTLY THE SAME process as issuing printing press money.

But it is true, whether we realize it or not.

YOU must never let this thought out of your mind: THE war WILL BE FINANCED—bond buying or no bond buying.

If it isn't financed the right way, it will be financed the wrong way.

THE wrong way, WHETHER YOU BELIEVE IT OR NOT, leads straight to inflation, repudiation and abject poverty. We mustn't let our boys come

ALL COUNTY SCHOOLS OPEN; FEWER PUPILS

With the opening of school at Weyerhaeuser camp 6 last week, Klamath county school enrollment figures for this year were complete Monday, showing a very small decrease over last year.

Some of the county schools were late in starting this fall due to teacher, building or other difficulties.

A total of 3510 students were registered this year as against 3694 in 1942, showing a decrease of only 175 pupils over the entire county.

Enrollment figures in the south suburban area were surprisingly close with 1149 students this year and 1150 last fall.

Altamont's school population increased from 827 last year to 863 this year but this was to be expected as children who attended Summers school last year are going to Altamont this fall. Summers school is closed.

Other schools in the county were up or down slightly but with no appreciable difference either way.

Weyerhaeuser camp 6 school, which could not start until last week because the building was not completed, had an enrollment of 21 on the first day.

Harold Ashley, county school clerk, said that there was some possibility that the total number of county students may increase slightly later this year, due to the fact that in some farm communities a few youngsters will not be able to start school until the harvest season is over.

the Turkish coast and 90 miles east of Rhodes.

These refugee reports were linked in London with similar accounts four days ago of allied occupation of the islands of Samos, Lero, and Cos, all in the Dodecanese north of Rhodes, and with the reported departure of Britain's ninth army from Middle East bases.

Rhodes itself, largest island in the group, was reported last week to be under German control after the Nazis overcame the Italian garrison in several days of bloody fighting.

Marshall, King Warn Congress Not To Dim Offensive

Marshall said, trained men are on hand for deployment on all of the fronts of the world.

"We are just getting ready for our deployment," he testified, adding that operative personnel had been trained and placed; that the basic establishment was a going concern, and that now manpower had become largely a matter of maintenance and replacements of casualties and other losses.

"Our shipping can now be turned to the deployment of our ground army for the first time in history," he said.

Need Stand-bys
Marshall said it was necessary to keep standby troops on hand in this country to meet the demands from various theaters of war.

"These troops are all on demand for certain times and places," he said. "We do not want to use hastily gathered people. We had to do that in the early part of the war, but thank God we do not have to do that now."

As an example of the large troops that are needed, Marshall now were being moved into Salerno and "we hope soon to move men in to occupy the port of Naples." He added that there was no lessening of the number of men needed to occupy Bizerte.

The chief of staff said that 75,000 additional inductees were needed monthly to keep the armed forces at par and to bring the army to the goal of 7,700,000 by the end of the year.

Ballale Unusable
Besides, the airdromes themselves fast were becoming of doubtful value to Japan. Even before the latest attacks, Ballale was described as virtually unusable, and now it has blossomed with new fires, its gun positions, revetments and garrison areas blasted and torn.

OBITUARY

IRENE ARMINDA CLARK
Irene Arminda Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Clark, passed away in this city after a one-day illness, on Sunday, September 19, 1943. Little Irene was aged two years and four months at the time of her passing, and was a native of Yreka, Calif. Surviving are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Clark of Malin, Ore.; two sisters, Josephine and Agnes, also of Malin; her uncle, Frank Line of Tulelake, Calif., and an aunt, Bessie Green, also of Tulelake. The remains rest in the pink room of the Earl Whitlock Funeral home, Pine street at Sixth, where friends may call after 6 p. m. today. Announcement of funeral arrangements will appear elsewhere in this issue of the paper.

FUNERAL

Funeral services for Irene Arminda Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Clark of Malin, Ore., will be held from the chapel of the Earl Whitlock Funeral home, Pine street at Sixth, on Tuesday, September 21, 1943, at 3 p. m., with Rev. Eugene V. Haynes, of the Community Congregational church of this city, officiating. The remains will be forwarded via Southern Pacific railroad to Toppenish, Wash., where concluding services and final interment will be held.
