MEN AND WOMEN IN SERVICE

The poem below was written by R. C. Stelter, Seaman 2/c in the Seabees. Stelter is somewhere in the South Pacific. He was an employee of the Weyerhaeuser Timber company here before his enlistment in December.

The Navy Seabee
You may have your army khaki
But I will take the navy blue
Here is another fighter
That I will introduce to you.

His uniform is somewhat different
The best that you will ever see
The Japs call him a commando
But he is only a Seabee.

His home is his sea bag
On land, sea or in the air
You'll see how the Japs will yell
When he gets into their hair.

He is trained in Ole Virginny
The land that God forgot
Where the mud is fourteen feet deep
And it snows a helluva lot.

He has peeled a million onions
And twice as many spuds
And spends his spare time
Awakening out his duds.

Now, girls, take a tip
For I'm giving it to you
Just get yourself a Seabee
For there's nothing he can't do.

And when he gets to Heaven
To St. Peter he will tell
Another Seabee reporting
I've served my time in hell.
—R. C. STELTER.

NEW, HIGHER STANDARDS IN WHITE BREAD

Fred Hoagland, manager of Fluhrer's bakery, announced today that new and higher standards of enrichment of white breads and rolls are now incorporated at no added price throughout this area.

New enrichment standards mark a milestone in mass nutrition history. They surpass the government's program, which was to restore certain vitamins and minerals lost in the milling of white flour, by adding riboflavin, which promotes skin health, body growth and oxygen usage. Other items increased in white bread are the vitamins thiamin and niacin as well as mineral iron.
