Today's Roundup

RECENT announcement in Portland of relaxation of occupancy restrictions on war housing in that area is a good sign.

It may indicate, and let us hope it does, that federal housing authorities will be willing to make the war housing programs fit the particular needs of the communities in which they are carried on.

Restricting the use of available housing to a class of occupants well housed in the community, while other people in the same community are without living quarters, doesn't make sense.

Yet there is a need here for housing for such people. Expansion programs for the naval air station and the Marine barracks will keep a large number of construction people here for a considerable period, and they need living quarters.

While we do not interpret the Portland announcement as directly affecting the Klamath Falls situation, it does indicate the possibility that restrictions will be lifted here, too, if it is found the housing program does not meet the needs of our community.

AN official of the state game commission, speaking here this week, reported that the duck flight along the flyway which passes through the Klamath basin has made the best revival of all.

He said this was announced by wildlife service officials at national meetings he attended, and that it indicates the possibility of liberalization of duck hunting regulations in this area this year.

While the regulations may be relaxed, the shell situation may prevent our hunters from making as much of the new freedom as they would like to (not to speak of gasoline).

The visiting official said that normal shotgun shell production is 750,000,000, while this year 278,000,000 will be produced.

Normal production of big game cartridges, he said, is 75,000,000, and this year the factories will turn out 30,000,000.

THE Lakeview Elks lodge is a great outfit. They've got a gang over there that does things in a big way, and one of those things will be the formal commissioning of the Lakeview auxiliary naval station this Sunday.

Lakeview chamber of commerce apparently isn't active during the war period, but the Elks have taken over this time, and it looks like an event. Navy people here have really been impressed by the job the Lakeview Elks are doing.

The Lakeview station is an auxiliary of the Klamath naval air station. It is used for refueling and re-arming the planes which fly in gunnery practice over the big gunnery range east of Lakeview.

This project is helping to put Lakeview on the air map. Lakeview being the kind of neighbor it is, that is good news—for what helps Lakeview generally helps Klamath.

Congratulations to Lakeview and Lakeview Elks.

This writer had opportunity last night to see the navy pictures which will be shown at the K.C. hall tonight under sponsorship of the Central Labor Council. They are authentic pictures from the fighting fronts, as informative as any we have seen.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 19 — Who got Dies? Moderate cheerers of the CIO political action committee, the communists and some otherwise intelligent liberals at the retirement of the congressional investigator of un-American activities believe they did it.

It is true enough that the government established some new war industries in the Dies Texas district, and the CIO has organized a number of these workers who came into Port Arthur and Beaumont from the north.

But his strength had always been in what is called the north counties of the district, which he carried even in an unsuccessful senatorial race against O'Daniel.

THIS is the conviction of the whole Texas delegation in congress, with a single exception of Lyndon Johnson, who alone thought Dies was done.

Even so, the Dies opponent was not a CIO man. He is an outstanding citizen of Beaumont and a former state judge.

Dies, therefore, got out himself. His health had been bad for some years. He has been living lately under the guidance of a well-known clinic, from which his latest instructions were to avoid public speaking and any strain on his throat for an indefinite period.

Some years ago he founded the famous "Demagogues club," the name characterizing those chair-warming representatives in the democratic cloakroom who talked one way in privacy with their colleagues and then went out on the house floor and made public speeches and cast public votes directly opposite their personal opinions.

HE never cared much for the apparently indispensable demagoguery of politics, and as he usually stuck his neck out frankly, he was usually in trouble.

In truth, CIOPA seems to be losing ground now, at least in congress. It forced senate consideration of the poll-tax, but a number of senators on their own side of that issue balked at their pressure to invoke cloture, solely because they did not like their elbow-pushing, strong-arm tactics.

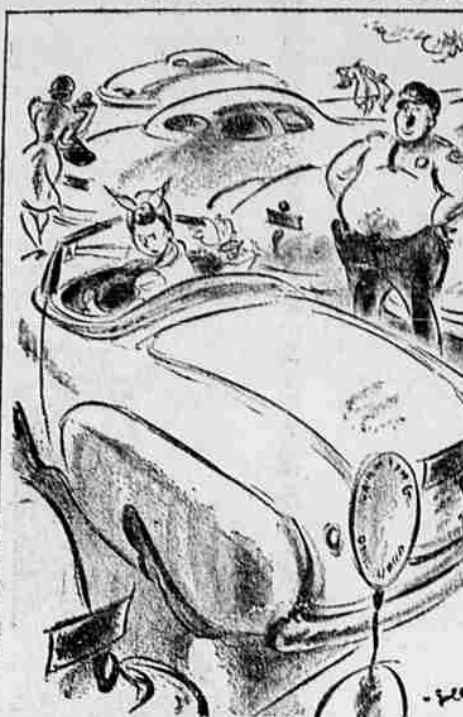

The big four brotherhoods are still the most powerful political influence everywhere, although you seldom see them on the front pages. Second in power are the postal clerks, and the AF of L has been able to get legislation against CIO through congress.

WHAT their new labor vote in the south is going to do to the democratic party is another matter. So far they have only nominated their own attorney to congress in Alabama, as the result of the development of war industries in the 5th Alabama district, as well as making it tough for Dies.

Whether they can overthrow the established democratic southern leadership—strongly antagonized because of CIO radicalism and left-wing negro views—is still highly doubtful.

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor)—Your editorial on the housing project of a few days back has caused considerable comment on the activities of the carpenters' union in this city and I'd like to have space to explain to the public just what has occurred in this matter.

Last November first the navy started their contract at the Air Base and secured from the United States employment service a list of wages that were prevailing in this locality, this list rated the carpenters at $1.87 per hour.

Since April 1, 1942 (please note the date—April 1, 1942). These wages were paid on this project for some two or three weeks in November, when the department of labor sent to the Morrison-Knudsen Twaits company, contractors on the project a list of rates, supposedly to be predetermined by investigation, in which the carpenter rates were set at $1.35.

From the pumping irrigation districts were formed here they all obtained their money from free private enterprise, i.e., private finance capital, on the best terms they could get, which terms were very favorable indeed to private finance capital.

Then the districts began operating under a national administration which was very careful NOT to interfere with "free private enterprise," with the result that after several years of selling their products below cost of production they could no longer meet the indebtedness they had incurred.

Then came the Roosevelt administration and the "alphabetical agencies" were formed. One of them, RFC, saved the bacon of private finance capital invested in irrigation and saved the districts by giving them better repayment terms and a lower interest rate (not as low as it should have been, MUCH higher than the republicans gave the railroads, NINE FOLD what Coolidge charged the ship owners, but still substantially lower than it was before).

Also other "alphabetical agencies" aided farmers and other kinds of free private enterprise in other ways, with the result that employment increased, prices rose and the districts became so prosperous they began repaying their bonds in advance to save interest.

Now, it appears that the RFC has followed the announced wishes of the republicans by selling the bonds of one local irrigation district back to private fi-terials hold this back before? We have a large group of carpenters waiting to go to work—not only on the housing but on the air base which is also held up owing to lack of materials.

The whole story is that the press and the public being anxious were prone to shove the blame onto the laboring man. Whenever labor is to blame he gets blamed plenty but when the government falls to do its part and the contractor is at fault—labor is still to blame.

We—organized labor—are being watched from every angle in spite of the fact that we have kept our pledge to the government not to strike war work. The carpenters of Klamath have put up with considerable pushing around in this matter, but all we have asked was the wage rightfully ours as per the wage freeze orders in the wage stabilization act.

Hoping I haven't abused your 500 word regulations too badly, and that you will "Edit" as fairly to us as you have to others. C. D. LONG, Business Representative Carpenter's Local 190.

THOMAS IS CONFUSED KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor)—I am confused. I would like to understand the issues of this political campaign, if there ARE any, and the sense in which the candidates are saying, if there IS any.

From what I hear I gather the republicans are AGAINST "bureaucrats," "alphabetical agencies," "government in business," and FOR "the return of all business to free, private enterprise." Are they?

When the pumping irrigation districts were formed here they all obtained their money from free private enterprise, i.e., private finance capital, on the best terms they could get, which terms were very favorable indeed to private finance capital.

Then the districts began operating under a national administration which was very careful NOT to interfere with "free private enterprise," with the result that after several years of selling their products below cost of production they could no longer meet the indebtedness they had incurred.
