

BONNEVILLE'S PLAN VISIONS VETERAN AID

PORTLAND, Ore., June 2 (AP) Jobs and business opportunities for hundreds of thousands of war veterans, and postwar industrial and rural development plans to add millions to north-west population, were outlined by Bonneville power administration today.

In a 104-page report, crammed with charts and text, the administration sought to show: How construction of 14 additional Columbia river basin dams would provide employment for 50,000 persons, indirect employment for thousands more, and add 2,000,000 to the population by 1960.

How irrigation of 3,500,000 acres of new land would add 1,200,000 kilowatts to the region's power demands, and how construction of 22 more multiple purpose dams on the Columbia and its tributaries ultimately would produce between 15,000,000 and 20,000,000 kilowatts.

This would be about one-third of the hydroelectric capacity available in the United States.

The report envisioned considerable expansion of the north-west aluminum industry.

Private David Mocabee came home, without advance notice, from Camp Livingston, La., where he is in the 342nd infantry. He will be here for a week.

Then, on Tuesday evening, in came Ensign Allen Mocabee of the U. S. navy, a flight instructor, who also had a little time to spend with home folks.

They are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Mocabee, 1607 Crescent street. While they were here, they attended the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Mocabee. Elbert is an elder brother of the two service men.

'BARRACKS SPUR' RETURNS TO NAVY

A special railroad spur built just east of the Southern Pacific passenger depot and used by Brennan and Cahoon the past four months as an unloading station in taking building materials to the Marine Barracks construction, has now been removed to be relocated at the naval air station from which it was originally taken.

The rails and ties used in the spur belonged to the navy and the tracks were rented from the navy by Brennan and Cahoon. The spur was a direct outlet to the road going to the Marine Barracks. Now no longer needed by the construction company, the rails and ties have been torn up.
