

RAIN OUTLET TO BE TALKED IN CAPITOL

Senator Marshall Corbett Klamath Falls today for Washington D. C., where he will present the community in a number of matters including the construction of the outlet drain.

Senator Corbett will also attend the republican national convention in Chicago, beginning June 28. He has been appointed president of the Oregon delegation for the convention.

The total cost of the drainage project is estimated at about $1,000,000. The proposed outlet will remove surplus water from the Tulelake and Lower Klamath lakes and will drain a large area in Oregon in the Lower Klamath lake district.

Approximately 60,000 acres of good farm land will be affected, a considerable portion of which is now covered with surplus water. Crops such as oats, wheat, vetch and other forage crops could be grown in this area if the land were drained.

Some of the land affected will be in the Tulelake district, amounting to about 25,000 acres, which are particularly adapted to the raising of barley, onions, carrots and potatoes.

About 27,000 acres of land will be improved on the Oregon side of the Lower Klamath lake. Some of this is now producing very good grain crops, but yields are low because of lack of drainage. This land can also produce sugar beets and potatoes in certain sections, and is well adapted to the growing of forage crops.

On the California side of the lake, about 12,000 acres of land would be reclaimed by this drainage project. The drain outlet will be about 10 miles in length, with a capacity of 200 second feet. It will extend from a point in the old Lower Klamath lake bed near the state line and will intersect the original Klamath straits channel to the north.

At the point of intersection, a pumping plant will lift water 10 feet into the straits channel. It will go through this channel to the river, where it will be pumped 10 feet into a channel to be constructed parallel to the Klamath straits. This channel will carry the flow to the Klamath river, intersecting the river at a point about one and three-quarters miles west of Ady.

During the stream year 1942-43, the capacity of the ponded water in Lower Klamath lake exceeded, with the water in these areas rising from half a foot to three feet above the designed height. Even with the dryer winter of 1943-44, this condition still exists and may become more critical next year if there should be heavy precipitation.

HIGHWAY MEASURE NEAR HOUSE FLOOR

SALEM, June 7 (AP)—The bill appropriate $1,500,000,000 for post-war highway construction has received final approval of the house roads committee, and will reach the floor of the house by June 15, State Highway Engineer R. H. Baldock is advised today by Washington, D. C., officials of the American Association of State Highway Officials.

The bill originally would have appropriated $3,000,000,000. Under the revised measure, Oregon would receive $15,000,000 a year for three years after the war.

Baldock was advised that the houses would give speedy approval to the bill. Baldock said congress apparently will recess for the national party conventions.

Pennance Parade Staged On D-Day

CORPUS CHRISTI, June 7 (AP)—Mothers and fathers of 50 servicemen staged a D-Day penance parade, crawling on their hands and knees and offering prayers at San Jose church in the Latin-American quarter.

The parade lasted 15 minutes at night as more than 30 worshippers crawled over the highway into the church.

TRICK RIDING ACT SLATED FOR RODEO

A professional trick riding act has been secured as an addition to the regular Fourth of July Klamath Buckaroo days rodeo entertainment, it was announced this week by O. D. Matthews, president of the rodeo association.

Matthews said that he has contracted with Jerry Getz and company at Bremerton, Wash., for several trick riding acts. In the riding troupe are Getz, two girls and three horses.

Included in the trick riding show, as scheduled now, will be one high jump, a human hurdle jump which consists of a table at which two girls sit having tea, another jump over a five-foot stone wall, a double jump and the final jump through a hoop of flames. There will also be a Roman riding exhibition and Getz has offered to race any other team in the event riding the same day.

Other acts in the trick riding show will be shoulder stands, saddle spins, neck splits, jumps, and various drags, climaxed with the liberty stand, the riders carrying two American flags.
