local CIO organizations to lend every effort to the Fifth War Loan drive.

We mention it, because just prior to the meeting we had happened to look through the June 5 issue of the national edition of the CIO News, a weekly publication, and found therein not one single word about war bonds.

Perhaps it just happened that bond news and bond purchasing stimulation was left out of the CIO News that time, but it was nevertheless conspicuous by its absence in the last issue before the opening of the Fifth War Loan campaign. Local CIOs, apparently, are not forgetting the bond program, even though it is ignored by the CIO News.

Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

ONE of the reasons Klamath county's war bond campaigns have been consistently successful is that the people in charge always come up with a good idea, to stimulate local interest and make the patriotic value of bond-buying more real.

Possibly the bond quotas would be reached without these special features. Klamath people have become habitual and consistent bond-buyers, and the backlog of savings these bonds represent promise much for the future welfare of our citizens. The value of the loan to the nation in financing a great war, and the personal benefits of savings in these times of plentiful money, form the solid foundation of bond-buying that needs not be again "sold" to Klamath people.

However, the United States treasury department has chosen to designate certain periods for concentrated bond buying. Making these periods stand out locally, in order that special quotas may be reached, is the purpose of developing particular themes for bond campaigns.

MONDAY—Took an ad from Fred Heilbroner urging people to fill their coal bins to capacity now, as the coal situation is better now than can be expected by fall. Mrs. Heilbroner also gave us a government bulletin explaining coal conditions, with the suggestion that a story quoting it might be taken to heart quicker than the word of a coal dealer.

I don't know any better word than that of the coal dealer who will have to look you in the eye and say sorry, when the coal runs out.

Barracks Theme

THAT theme, for the Fifth War Loan, is provided by the Klamath Falls Marine Barracks.

It happens that the quota assigned to this county for the Fifth War Loan is approximately the cost of the Marine Barracks, a new installation that performs a vital service in the nation's war program. It is an interesting local development that is also an economic factor of no mean proportions, in the life of the community.

Heretofore, when bond campaigns were slanted at the purchase of something for the war effort it was always something to be used in some distant war theater—ships, planes, etc.—but this time we will "buy" something that is right here and which all bond-buyers can see with their own eyes.

"Buy the Barracks with Bonds" is a good slogan, and add to it this trailer: "Back the Men Back From the Pacific."

Klamath county can and will lend the government the cost of this fine local installation in the Fifth War Loan campaign.

Absurdities

IT IS time for revision of some of the news restrictions that were imposed early in the war but are no longer necessary or sensible.

For instance, we are still faced with one little absurdity that never did make much sense. This newspaper has been informed that when it runs draft lists, it should not give, in the lead, the number of men called. The "enemy" who might be interested, of course, can count the number of names, and there is therefore no sound reason for not telling in the news the number of men called. But the request to us has never been cancelled.

Up at Bend, everybody in town knew for a week or two at least that Camp Abbot was to be "de-activated." Despite this common knowledge, the Bend Bulletin, under the censorship code, could not tell the news, and was forced to explain the situation to its readers, some of whom apparently got the idea the paper wasn't on its toes. We weren't close enough to be sure this happened, but possibly the Bulletin was finally "scooped" on the story by one of the Portland papers because the Bulletin is sticking conscientiously to the voluntary code.

This situation, most unfair to our patriotic neighbor, aptly illustrates the need for revising restrictions to permit use of news that cannot possibly do any harm to the war effort.

Not in the Paper

AT a meeting this week of local "treasury representatives," who are the war bond leaders of larger employe groups, it was gratifying to hear a report of the intention of the

PENNEY WORKERS BACK LOAN DRIVE

The J. C. Penney Company Associates are going all-out on the Fifth War Loan, according to plans revealed today by Sid Elliot, Penney manager.

The Penney Associate group is engaged in a nation-wide bond selling contest during the drive, and the local store group already has started inter-store competition.

A large bond booth will be ready for business on the Penney main floor Monday, with an attendant on duty from 12 noon until 5 p. m. daily to take bond orders.

A private telephone will be installed in the booth so that persons wishing to order their bonds by phone may do so. The Penney bond attendant also will make deliveries of bonds when customers wish.

"With over 6000 Penney Associates in the armed services, we are putting our greatest efforts to bond selling during the Fifth War Loan," Elliot said.

"We are turning our best merchandising service to the selling of bonds, and will be glad to take your order."

Penney Associates already have gone 100 per cent on individual purchases for the Fifth War Loan.

TWO PARATROOPERS WIPE OUT 58 NAZIS

A U. S. NINTH AIR FORCE TROOP CARRIER BASE, June 10 (AP)—Intelligence officers are piecing together details today seeking the identity of two paratroopers who, with Lt. Robert Campbell of Seattle, wiped out 58 Germans with hand grenades and a machine gun and captured a nazi command post in a mile and a half south of Ste. Mere Eglise, now in American hands.

The report was made to this base by 27 glider pilots who landed behind enemy lines in the first 48 hours of the inva-

LEARNING THE STARS
 By J. HUGH PRUETT

Carlyle once asked, "Why did not somebody teach me the constellations and make me at home in the starry heavens which are always overhead and which I do not half know to this day?"

Carlyle's plaint is common to many, especially to those in middle life or older years. However, many of these believe that to enjoy the stars they must know so much that the time and effort required is far beyond them. But one does not have to be an expert botanist to enjoy the beauty and fragrance of flowers; nor an accomplished musician to find delight in the melodies of the masters. The simplest acquaintance with the starry skies brings immediate satisfaction to the one who is attuned to such companionship.

Many who are interested state they have no idea how to start such study. By far the simplest introduction is through a friend

DUNCAN DESIGN WINS HISTORIAN CONTEST

A design by Geneva Glenn Duncan has placed first in a recent contest sponsored by the Klamath County Historical Society. The design is to be used as an emblem for the society.

The emblem, as designed by Mrs. Duncan, symbolizes the Indian and the pioneer by a crossed gun and arrow and a pelican gives a distinguishing characteristic of Klamath county.

Mrs. Duncan is a teacher at Henley school and comes from a pioneer family of this county. She is deeply interested in the history of this community and is a former secretary of the Pioneer association.

A clever and original design submitted by Suzanne Geary of North Eighth street received honorable mention in the emblem contest. The Klamath County Historical society wishes to thank all those who submitted ideas and designs.

Germans Find "Knuckle Dusters"

LONDON, June 10 (AP)—Berlin radio said today that "knuckle dusters" such as are used by American gangsters were found in the full fighting kit of captured British and U. S. airborne troops.

The kits contained "everything from a grenade thrower to a long invasion knife," the broadcast added.

sion of Normandy. Technically supposed to have returned to base for more troops and supplies-carrying assignments, the pilots were caught up in the swirl of battle and fought alongside troops they had landed.

Of 200 nazi parachutists who landed in an anti-invasion attack, 13 were taken prisoner. The remainder were killed by American paratroopers.

SENATE, HOUSE GROUPS AGREE ON GI BILL

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—Final agreement was reached today by a senate-house conference committee on a "G. I. bill of rights," setting up a broad program of benefits for the men and women who come back from World War 2.

Passage of the legislation early next week appeared probable. Senator Clark (D-Mo.) said the senate would be asked to approve the measure Monday and the house was expected to approve the bill and send it to the White House shortly afterward.

"I think we've got a good bill," Clark asserted.

Only one major point remained in disagreement when the senate-house committee met this morning, and it did not take them long to get together on that. It is a senate-originated provision to establish a veterans' job placement service within the framework of the United States employment service. The house originally wanted to create a separate placement agency for veterans within the veterans administration.

Clark said the house and senate conferees agreed unanimously on the bill of rights in its final form.

Clark, chairman of the senate conferees, told reporters that only one conference vote was cast yesterday against a provision to make available a maximum of 52 weeks of unemployment compensation to jobless veterans for the first two years after discharge at a rate of $10 a week.

Other provisions of the bill already agreed upon include one providing for private loans to veterans at 4 per cent interest, with the government guaranteeing 40 per cent, up to a $2000 maximum, of the amounts of the individual loans. Another would give veterans a year's schooling with the government paying $500 tuition. A substance allowances of $50 a month, plus $25 for a dependent's upkeep.

PAPERS SIGNED CLOSING LOCAL HOSPITAL DEAL

Klamath county was owner of the former Community hospital Friday when final papers were signed closing the deal for the purchase of the hospital from Mrs. Kathryn Wilson.

The main street building is to be used as the new Klamath county health unit and detention home for social disease cases. Some few changes in the old Soule sanitarium building will be necessary before its new occupants can move in, but it is expected that the health unit will be able to move from its present location at Eighth and Pine to its new site in a few weeks.

Purchase price of the hospital was $25,000, this sum including all equipment and furniture as well as the actual building. The deal cancels previous county plans for the erection of a new health unit building, for which $50,000 had been appropriated in the 1944-45 proposed county budget.

IWA Wins Three More Woodworking Elections In Basin

President Vernon N. Chase of the Klamath Basin West council No. 6, has announced that the IWA-CIO has won three more elections in the woodworking industry in the Klamath basin area and surrounding territory.

The three plants are the Ponderosa Mouldings, Inc., at Redmond, the Sugar Pine Lumber company at Ashland, and the Klamath Pine company at Klamath Falls.

Klamath county has 14 new cases of communicable diseases for the week ending June 3.

There were two new cases of scarlet fever, nine of measles, one of mumps, and two of syphilis.

Lake county reported no new cases of communicable diseases for the same period.

Farm Experimenting Discussed at Land Use Group Meeting

Land use committee of the Klamath county chamber of commerce discussed proposed expansion of the agricultural experimentation program here at a meeting held at the Pelican cafe Friday evening. It was the first meeting of the new committee and a number of important matters relating to the development of Klamath basin lands were carefully considered.

It was brought out at the meeting that a movement is on foot to increase the scope of the Klamath agricultural experimental area, now set up in the airport district on a restricted basis.

Klamath Budget
 Klamath county court and budget committee have put $10,000 in the next year's budget for use in expanding the experimental activities, and it is planned to ask the state agricultural college to give the establishment here the status of a full branch experimental station.

A proposed step is to obtain money by public contributions to purchase additional land for experimental work now is being done on Class 5 land, but it is now proposed to obtain a plot of Class 1 land and a plot of marsh land for further experimentation.

Bring Up Low Grades
 It was emphasized in the discussion that agriculture in the basin can be greatly benefited by bringing up the status of the lower grade lands, and projects of that type which have succeeded were cited as proof of the possibilities in such a program.

The experimental expansion project has developed out of discussions by the county economic planning committee and other groups. It was warmly favored by the land use committee.

The committee also went on record as favoring the proposed
