Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY
As most everyone here knows, the town of Malin, Klamath county, was founded by Czech colonists, and was named for Malin, in Bohemia. Many of the original residents of our Malin, or their children, are still living there. In free America, the Malin Czechs carved out happy, prosperous careers as farmers and small business men, and their town is today a thriving, progressive community. Some of the finest people in the world live at Malin. A tragic comparison is the fate of another Malin, also founded by Czech colonists. This Malin was established 70 years ago in Old Russia. The name of the village is Cesky Malin (Czech Malin), and it is located in the Dubno district in Ukraine. Taken in their Russian campaign by the nazis, Cesky Malin became another Lidice, the town in Czechoslovakia proper which was completely wiped off the face of the earth by the nazis.

The Slaughter

THE news of the tragic fate of Cesky Malin comes to us in a leaflet entitled "News Flashes From Czechoslovakia Under Nazi Domination," left on our desk this week by Mayor A. Kalina, of Malin. This story is told as a result of investigations reported by the Czechoslovak Press Bureau from Moscow. Here is what happened to Cesky Malin: "Early on the morning July 13, 1943, 1500 Germans arrived from the borough of Olyka and surrounded the villages of Ukrajinsky Malin and Cesky Malin. In both villages, the Germans drove the inhabitants into the church, school and other buildings. They then set them on fire, shooting everybody attempting to escape. Women and children, praying for mercy, were killed and thrown back into the flames. 374 Czechs, including 109 children and 26 Poles were murdered. Only those working accidentally in the fields escaped death. From the burning buildings only Vlasta Uhlir, Marie Zajicova and Ludmila Cinkova succeeded in escaping. Among the victims were four Czechs from neighboring villages, accidentally present in Malin on the fatal day. Before setting the buildings on fire, the Germans completely plundered the village."

Supporters of the Fight

ACCORDING to the newspaper Ceskoslovensky Listy, published in Moscow, the village of Cesky Malin was destroyed because the Germans found there 14 Russian prisoners of war and the nazis suspected the population of helping them. The village of Lidice in Czechoslovakia was destroyed in similar manner because of charges made on mere suspicion that the villagers rendered aid to the Czech patriots who had killed the "Hangman," Reinhardt Heydrich. Residents of our Malin, for obvious reasons, are among the strongest supporters of the American war effort, which is a part of the great campaign that eventually will bring revenge upon German heads for such acts as their ruthless destruction of Cesky Malin.

At Malin, on Saturday night, will be held a big war bond rally, to which all Klamath people are invited. We predict it will make a mighty contribution to the Klamath county Fifth War Loan campaign.

Busy Man's Reminder

A FRIEND of ours is a physician, whose practice in these times keeps him pretty much on the run. Through the mail the other day he received a letter from his young daughter: "Being I haven't seen you for over two days I would like to have you come and visit us. . . Anytime you can find time. Remember me? P. S. It's been nice knowing you."

Nothing New

BOZEMAN, Montana, comes up with an AP story telling all about a new invention at Montana State Agricultural college, that solves potato harvesting problems. It is described as a "machine that raises the power digger elevator ribbon and delivers the Irishmen's delight

Italians to Free Men for Action

MOUNT RAINIER ORDINANCE DEPOT, June 16 (AP)—Arrival of an Italian quarter-master service unit here today for training was announced by Col. M. D. Mills, depot commander. The unit, he said, is composed of non-fascists who have volunteered to serve with the U. S. armed forces. Col. Mills said that the men are commanded by their own officers as well as by an American officer who will orient them in the ways of the American army. The men wear clothing similar to that issued American soldiers, except that buttons with the United States crest have been removed. Both on the cap and shoulder patch, the word "Italy" and the Italian color combination is inscribed. These men, Col. Mills said, will be assigned to non-combatant duties to free American soldiers for overseas duty.

ADMISSION RECOMMENDED SEATTLE, June 16 (AP)—The Washington and Oregon joint councils of teamsters today recommended that all teamster unions who have not already done so take immediate steps to admit to membership, without payment of initiation fees, all returning war veterans who apply within 90 days after honorable discharge from the service.

onto a sorting conveyor, instead of dropping them on the ground. As the potatoes travel along the conveyor, clods and rocks are sorted and the spuds move to the rear of the machine where they are sacked." Who said that is a new invention? Machines of that nature have been used in Klamath spud harvest fields for several years.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON
WASHINGTON, June 16—The senate campaign expenditures committee merely argued with Skiney Hillman about the $669,764.11 worth of political action he promises to furnish, but did not investigate it. A rather thorough private inquiry has been made by Chairman Dies of the un-American activities committee. A considerable collection of material already is in the committee files, and Dies promised immediate hearings shortly after he retired from the race for re-election, because of a serious illness. But his health continues bad and he has not been able to return. Some house leaders are supposed to have wired him urging him to come as soon as possible.

The only other chance for a thorough investigation rests with the house political expenditures committee. It is charged directly with the duty of investigating labor politics, but may not have the time or money for more than a casual job. Meanwhile, Mr. Hillman has not been getting his money's worth in at least two of the recent elections. The loss of the three top men on the Dies committee was publicly attributed to him and spread fear in congress, but little attention has been paid the Ohio primary of last May 9 where a complete analysis will show an entirely different story.

Labor Fares Badly

THERE, left-wing labor working with the cooperation of the AF of L to a considerable extent, fared badly. The CIO-endorsed man in the democratic senatorial primary (Marvin C. Harrison) ran second to an old line democrat, although carrying Cleveland two to one. A left-wing AF of L leader, with CIO support, ran third for congressman-at-large. A popular AF of L teamster leader in the county commissioners' contest, John Rohrich, ran third. In the other contests, the CIO crowd split about even.

An even plainer set-back for the Hillman crowd was evident in the New York congressional election result of June 6. A great effort was made there. Hundreds of girls paraded the polls. A thorough personal letter-writing campaign to all voters was conducted particularly below Fourteenth street where the communists are strong. Yet the defeat of their man Cantwell is traced by wise politicians to Tammany. Those in the know say the hall passed down word that nothing whatever should be done in his behalf. They evidently reasoned his victory would hurt them by increasing the Hillman communists' political power. At any rate, CIO was not popular enough to win in these two best suited spots.

At the heart of all this dickering and arguing is the simple question of how much politicking labor unions are entitled to, and how much they are immune from public inspection. The CIO seems to take the position that any real investigation would be a "smear." On the other hand, a lot of congressmen think they have been smeared by CIO unsparingly. The supreme court ruled to define a union in a case this week. It held: "Structurally and functionally, a labor union is an institution which involves more than the private or personal interest of its members. It represents organized institutional activity as contrasted with wholly individual activity." (The case involved the refusal of a union assistant superintendent to submit his books to the grand jury in a Pennsylvania fraud case.)

Unions and Insurance

IN another case, which may be historic, the court also held insurance companies could be subjected to congressional regulation. The leftwingers around here long have taken the attitude that federal control of insurance companies would be an excellent thing. They want insurance books not only opened but regulated. Their victory in the court has now opened the way for congress to do it. What is a labor union if it is not an insurance company? In simple theory, it functions in all ways as a mutual insurance organization, collecting dues to finance the security of the workers in various ways. But while the left-wingers demand regulation of insurance companies in great righteousness, they pretend to believe the same regulation of their own organizational activity would be lawful. There seems very little righteousness connected with the matter, only politics. If the insurance companies attempted to start a political campaign like Hillman's they would not only be subjected to investigation but to indictment.

Couple Buries Invasion Dead

A FIGHTER BASE IN ENGLAND, June 16 (AP)—An elderly, devout French couple buried 18 American airborne soldiers, set up white crosses and adorned the graves with flowers tied with pink silk ribbons, returning pilots reported today. The soldiers were killed in D-Day landings when their gliders crashed into anti-glider poles erected by the nazis in fields near the French couple's farmhouse. Laboriously the aging pair dug neat rows of graves; sadly they laid the soldier dead to rest, and tenderly they covered the mounds with soil.

Market Quotations

By BERNARD S. O'HARA
NEW YORK, June 16 (AP)—The post-invasion bull market in stocks moved along at full tempo today with volume at around 2,500,000 shares and industrial and rail leaders up fractions to about 2 points. Absorbing a steady flow of profit selling in the motors, steels, rubbers, coppers, rails and blue chip industrials were able to maintain good support. The market and near the close prices generally were not far from the tops.

WHEAT

CHICAGO, June 16 (AP)—The market for wheat and rye futures was erratic today. Prices trended downward frequently as traders marked time pending action of senate and house conferees on an amendment to the price control act. Extension bill which is aimed at forcing processors of farm commodities to pay parity prices to producers. Trade in the wheat pit was largely speculative with buying faltering on the advances and support developing during the recessions. The rye market had a nervous undertone with the only selling of any consequence coming from local operators. Wheat closed 1/4 to 1/2 cent lower yesterday, July 15.01-1/2. Oats were unchanged to 1 cent lower, July 7c. Rye was off 1/4 to 1/2 cent, July 1.00-1.00. Barley was unchanged to the lower, July $1.18-1/4.

GASOLINE USE

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor) Will take up a little space in regards to the gasoline problem. My boy or yours comes home on furlough after offering his life he gets not over five gallons for however long he is here. But one of the trouble shooters for one local public utility company uses their pickup truck to go to show, roadhouses, grocery store, out to his locker and to haul his feed in, also to visit relatives having it 24 hours a day and weekends thereby not even using his card except for long trips out of town. How does he get such a deal with the company and do they think the public will put up with it as it is being going on since rationing started and don't you think a service man is entitled to as much?

Thank you.
Mrs. Gus Leeder,
Gen. Del. City.

FAIR ENOUGH

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor)—While I was spending two weeks as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Moon, I was pleasantly surprised to find an article in the paper which gave me a very fine writing. I felt I wanted to write and thank the "Top Wrangler" for showing the old western hospitality to a visitor.

I also want to mention how much I, even as a stranger, enjoyed "Upon the Corral Fence." A more enjoyable column I have never read in a paper of your size. Since horses are of such major interest in Klamath Falls, such a column would naturally have a large and enthusiastic audience. I for one, used to a big city newspaper, still thoroughly enjoy it for showing the friendly style and would like to take my hat off to its writer. This note is just by way of a "thank you" from a stranger to a very hospitable people in a very hospitable town. My special thanks and congratulations to "Top Wrangler."

Sincerely yours,
MISS CAROL MACHOL.

CITY MISSION WORK OFFERED PASTOR

The Rev. C. C. Brown, pastor of the First Baptist church, has been asked by the Interstate Baptist mission to take mission work in city centers. The work is of administrative and executive nature in the scope of missions. Rev. Brown has been president of the interstate mission for 18 months and has been the pastor at the Klamath Falls church for the past nine years. When he came to Klamath Falls, the church was deeply indebted, but the debt is now paid off and the church has acquired new property and also money for the building fund. Rev. Brown has not accepted the position as yet, but he states that it would not interfere with his work here.

REV. DAVID BARNETT STARTS PASTORAGE

Rev. David F. Barnett Jr. will start his pastorage at the First Presbyterian church this Sunday. Rev. Barnett was chosen by the congregation of the church to fill the vacancy which existed and is coming from the Presbyterian church in Moneta, Calif. He has had particular success with young people's work in California and also with youth choirs. He is a graduate of Occidental college and also of the San Anselmo seminary. His wife and children will join him as soon as a place is found for them to live here.
