Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

THE substantial progress being made in Klamath's Fifth War Loan drive is a credit to the people of the county community and to the hard-working committee led by a hard-working chairman, Joe Hicks.

EPLEY

At this time, the E bond sales have reached nearly $700,000, in itself a total that more than doubles the ordinary E bond quota of past monthly drives here. Sales running on an average of $45,000 a day for the remainder of the campaign period will bring the E bond total to approximately $1,000,000, or the county quota.

The last $300,000 will be the toughest, of course, and a lot of people are going to have to buy extra bonds. But extra bonds are extra investments, and unquestionably the money is here to do the job.

• • • •

Local Conditions

THIS is not the easiest time of year in this part of the country for bond drives, a fact that is not taken into consideration in the setting of quotas by people unfamiliar with local conditions.

Some nearby communities, notably in Northern California, have been having tough sledding because of their above-quota sales in the Fourth War Loan in mid-winter, which were apparently made the basis of the Fifth War Loan quota assignments.

But in general our guess is that when the final tabulations are made on the Fifth War Loan, the high country of Northern California and Southern Oregon will be found on the long side.

• • • •

Those Specialties

THE Klamath county committee, led by the Kiwanis club, has scheduled a good many special events to stimulate sales. Some misunderstandings in this connection have developed, with some resultant criticism.

It would be well for the public to remember that it is only through planning and hard driving that bond quotas can be reached and the highly worthy objectives of bond-buying attained. Special events are usually necessary to stimulate extra purchases. So long as all bond-buyers are treated equally, there can be no legitimate complaint, and people inclined to complain are asked to remember the difficulties involved in planning and executing a campaign of such magnitude by people who have a lot of other things to do.

Modoc Meeting

THIS writer had the good fortune this week to attend at Alturas a meeting of the Modoc county defense council, which is doing outstanding civic work in behalf of the big neighboring county.

Dinner was followed by a meeting of serious discussion of community plans and projects that would do credit to any chamber of commerce or similar group anywhere. It was one of those affairs where farmers and business men mingle, and the evidences of community solidarity and determined effort for common objectives were interesting and inspiring to those of us present from Klamath Falls.

For well known reasons, we don't get together so often any more in this area of great distances but common community interests. There are great people down Modoc way, and the work they are doing for community good will benefit the entire area in the years to come.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

CHICAGO, June 30 — Can Roosevelt be beaten? Has Dewey a chance? Stories have been creeping into the newspapers that this convention had a defeatist spirit. The administration partisan writers chose that not unusual political line. The London Times which always assumes itself to be the British empire, has editorially derided the republican chances; but this also may reflect a personal interest. The Times may wish to continue the Churchill-Roosevelt dealings into post-war.

MALLON

Yet, aside from these interest-inspired stories, there is a rather wide prevailing awe of the Roosevelt tendency to control everything, and a respect for his great powers. Naturally, he is doing nothing to discourage that interpretation. But this is a usual technique in his campaigning, the imposition of an atmosphere of discouragement upon his opposition.

• • • •

Factual Reporting

A FACTUAL reporting job on this convention will give you a different picture. If you will probe the state and sectional leaders for their honest opinions you will find the situation something like this: The Pacific coast regions are doubtful or pro-Roosevelt as a whole today. Oregon gives Dewey his best coast chance. Important California will be especially difficult without Warren on the ticket. I would count it democratic. In the Rocky Mountain regions the republicans think they can carry Wyoming and Idaho surely; probably also Arizona and New Mexico, but expect to lose Montana, Utah and possibly Nevada. (Livestock trouble is a main factor in the mountain states, influx of a million war workers in California.)

But the farm states—all of them—are considered the best republican ground in the country. The CIO has been too much out here, and the conduct of the war, economically, has been unpopular. Kansas is in better republican shape today than ever in its history.

Iowa is considered almost certain. The Illinois republican organization definitely promises this state. Indiana is more doubtful due to a factional republican split, but few count it Roosevelt Bricker has a good chance to carry Ohio.

• • • •

GOP Has Edge

THE republicans think Dewey can beat Roosevelt in New York. Pennsylvania is truly doubtful, as is Massachusetts. But the republicans have the edge elsewhere in the east outside of Rhode Island. New Jersey is debatable but on the anti-Roosevelt side. No one expects anything republican from the south in the end.

Where, then, do these people derive their conclusion Roosevelt is a cinch, the republicans are defeated? Obviously only out of their own heads.

Give Dewey and Roosevelt an even break west of the wheat-corn belts, count the farm states republican, the south democratic, and you must reach the conclusion that the election will turn on the big industrial communities in central and eastern states. That is where the fight will be. Whoever carries them will win this election.

• • • •

Up to Dewey

IT IS all up to Dewey. He is entering the campaign with the edge against him psychologically. To many he is David out after Goliath, but with the same ending not guaranteed. Yet the ground is well prepared for him. Republican organizations are functioning in 26 states, the populous, heavy-voting ones, for the first time in all the Roosevelt election years.

If he conducts an unenlightening, unintelligent campaign, he can lose by a landslide. If he can keep all the republican voters together and the anti-Roosevelt forces solidified, he can win.

My first state canvass shows Roosevelt 184, Dewey 239, doubtful 109; points needed to win 266.

The North Portland livestock market will be closed Tuesday, July 4.

WHEAT

CHICAGO, June 30 (AP)—Mill buying, principal factor in a bullish market throughout the week, tapered off in late dealings today and wheat futures dropped sharply from early high points. Rye futures also broke.

Commission house liquidation revealed the lagging demand for wheat and local traders quickly switched to the selling side. Hedging sales were substantial throughout the session.

The liquidation of July rye, market analysts said, apparently stemmed from the desire of longs to avoid taking delivery of grain that had been tendered. Lower prices for the deferred deliveries were attributed to the setback in wheat.

At the close wheat was ⅛ to ⅜c lower than yesterday's finish, July $1.58⅛-¼, Oats were unchanged to ⅜c higher, July 76⅛c. Rye was 1⅛c lower, July $1.08⅞-½. Barley was ⅛ to ⅜c higher, July $1.22⅛.

High Nazi General Killed In Action During Invasion

LONDON, June 30 (AP)—Col. Gen. Friedrich Dollmann, commander of the German seventh army and defender of the middle section of the "Atlantic wall," has been killed in action in France, the Berlin radio announced today.

He was the highest ranking general of eight thus far killed or captured in the fighting in Normandy.

Dollman, 62, may have been killed by an RAF rocket and bomb attack on a German corps headquarters Tuesday.

Dollmann was reputed to be one of Germany's greatest artillery specialists.

He was known as a high powered, crafty leader who gained fame early in this war in the first battle for France.

He was a Bavarian who won distinction in the last war as an artilleryman, and was a member of the staff of the sixth German army in Flanders at the time of the 1918 armistice. He attained his present rank, equivalent to that of a full general, in the French campaign during 1940. He had been in France ever since except for a brief assignment in Italy.

Other German generals killed in France since D-Day June 6 are Lt. Gen. Hellmich, Maj. Gen. Witt, Artillery Gen. Marcks, Maj. Gen. Kallay and Maj. Gen. Stegman.

The commander of the Cherbourg garrison, Lt. Gen. Schlieben, and Maj. Gen. Stattler were captured by American troops along with Rear Admiral Hennecke.

A later German announcement said Dollmann died Tuesday. On that evening, RAF dive bombers and rocket firing Typhoons were brief on secret information and attacked a small crossroads hamlet near St. Sauver-Lendelin in the southern end of the Cherbourg peninsula.

The bombers moved in first on a small farm house which had been pointed out as corps headquarters. Every bomb scored in the target area. Typhoons then dived into the smoke firing their rockets. Pilots reported the house destroyed.

"Hi, Mom, it's me!"
The next best thing to having a soldier open the door at home with "Hi, Mom, it's me!" is to hear him say it over the telephone.
THIS EVENING thousands of boys and girls in uniform will be asking for the Long Distance lines that connect them with their homes all over America.
Please try to save the wires from seven to ten for the service men.
Your help keeps telephone doors open.
