

YANKS STRIKE NEW BLOWS AT GUAM, ROTA

Upon the principal Japanese bases in the Carolinas—at Truk, Palau, Yap and Woleai—Enemy planes took off from Truk and Palau to avoid destruction on the ground. Only at Yap was there interception, but three of the 13 enemy planes probably were shot down.

Base Bombed
Liberators of the Far East air force dropped 43 tons of bombs upon Sorong, the most important Japanese base in Dutch New Guinea. Other allied planes hit targets from the bypassed Marshall islands to the south westernmost borders of the New Guinea sector.

Four allied planes were lost in the southwest Pacific raids to enemy aircraft.

Japs Bomb Noemfoor
Six Japanese planes bombed Noemfoor island in Geelvink bay, off Dutch New Guinea, causing no casualties but setting an American fuel dump on fire. In the Sarmi-Maffin bay area of Dutch New Guinea, 292 more Japanese were killed in skirmishes.

Some 250 miles eastward, down the British New Guinea coast, there were indications that Japs trapped last April in the Wevaka area were gathering their remaining strength for an attempt to push westward. It was believed that they might attempt to elbow past the American beachheads at Aitape, Hollandia and Maffin bay to rejoin Japanese garrisons in western New Guinea.

RUSSIANS STREAM INTO LITHUANIA

middle of the Pripyat marshes, some 400 miles southward.

Wedge Driven
A powerful wedge was driven into Lithuania at the midpoint of the 100-mile battle front between Daugavpils, in southeastern Latvia, and the bypassed and doomed German stronghold of Wilno—scene now of bloody street fighting.

Advancing not less than 28 miles yesterday, Col. Gen. C. Bagration's Baltic troops cut the highway between Daugavpils and the Lithuanian city of Kaunas in a drive within 20 miles of the Baltic port of Riga, capital of Latvia.

Frontal Assault
Bagration's forces also penetrated to within 20 miles of Daugavpils in a frontal assault. Ten miles westward from Wilno, rampaging soviet soldiers overran the rail junction of Landwarow on the route to Kaunas—an advance that supported British press dispatches that red army vanguards were within 60 miles of East Prussia. The Swedish newspaper Morgon Tidningen reported the Germans were emptying East Prussia of civilians.

Occupying Luniniec
Premier Stalin announced in an order of the day that the first White Russian army of Marshal K. O. S. K. Rokossovsky, pounding westward on the southern sector of the front, had occupied Luniniec, 30 miles east of Pinsk on the rail route to Brest-Litovsk and Warsaw, and Slinim, 23 miles west of Baranowicz on the railway to the Polish communication hub of Bialystok, now only 85 miles beyond.

Other columns striking north through the Pripyat marshes moved within nine miles of Pinsk.

The fall of Luniniec and the pressure of a companion column driving from the Pripyat marshes on the south was rapidly making the German position in Pinsk untenable.

Bomber Fleets Attack Munich Area

Industrial targets. One Mosquito was lost.

Bridges Attacked
The Mosquito penetrations into France were concentrated in the Amiens-Lille-St. Quentin-Laon-Compiègne area, extending in a northeast of Paris to the Belgian border. Bridges over the Seine, being employed by the Germans to rush forces to the battlefront 50 miles to the west, were attacked once more.

In one of the few operations in yesterday's murky weather, rocket-firing Typhoons, bomb-carrying Spitfires and RAF Mustangs poured explosives and fire into German troops driven into the woods southeast of Caen by the British-Canadian capture of that city.

Despite the adverse conditions fighter-bombers ran up more than 300 individual flights by last evening. American fighter-bombers dive-bombed German gun positions and strong points southeast and southwest of Les-say and east of St. Lo.

charge of burglary not in a dwelling and an indictment charging him with manslaughter was returned against Joseph Thomas McInturf, alleged driver of the car which struck and killed Donald McDonald of Fort Klamath early Sunday morning.

At their arraignment in circuit court this morning, Orville Coplin took time to plead and will appear again before the judge Monday, July 7, and Allen Virgil Whorton otherwise known as Skip Neilson, pleaded not guilty. McInturf, who is out of jail under $5000 bail was not arraigned Tuesday morning.

One not true bill was brought in by the grand jury which dismissed a charge of robbery by force and violence not armed with a dangerous weapon against James Chocktoot, Henrietta John Davis and Vivian Tupper.

YANKS WORK NORTH TOWARD KEY PORT

lage of Casale, one mile to the north.

The 100th battalion, composed of American troops of Japanese origin, was engaged in violent fighting on a relatively flat ground three miles west of Pomaja and was reported making some progress.

Garrison Threatened
The German garrison at Pomaja thus was threatened on two sides, and the Nazi force at La-jatico was in much the same position.

There were growing indications that it likely would be a matter of many days before the allies batter their way even to contact with the main Gothic line defenses.

The most impressive gains reported for yesterday's operations were the eighth army's penetration to the villages of Castel Di Broglio and San Regolo, nine miles northeast of Siena; a thrust by other eighth army units five miles beyond Carpini in the upper Tiber valley; and the steady smash of the Americans to a point six miles north of Volterra.

None of these gains, however, made a substantial alteration in the tactical situation.

Poles in the Adriatic sector occupied Monte Polesco and Villanova, some 14 miles inland and 12 to 14 miles southwest of Ancona, but the front there also was substantially unchanged.

Typical of the fighting in the French sector north and north-west of Siena was a bloody struggle for Hill 350, half a mile northeast of Ranzano and 17 miles west northwest of Siena. The Germans used many tanks in savage counterattacks and the hill changed hands several times before the tough French mountain fighters finally dug in and held it.

Unfavorable weather grounded American heavy bombers yesterday, but B-25 Mitchells, penetrating farther north than ever before, hammered rail yards and bridges at Cremona and in the Venice and Genoa areas. Raiders bombed similar targets in the Bologna region.

Thunderbolts also cut rail lines and destroyed at least 50 railroad cars and strafed the Modena airfield in repeated sorties into the Po valley.

Successor to Farley Elected

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP)—Paul E. Fitzpatrick, 47-year-old Buffalo businessman, was elected chairman of the New York state democratic committee today, succeeding James A. Farley who held the post for 14 years.

Accepting the post, Fitzpatrick praised Farley as one who has given the democratic party "standing not only in this state but the entire country."

Thus "Smiling Big Jim" bowed out of the last of many of his official party positions he held during 35 years in politics.

ROOSEVELT TO ACCEPT DEMO RENOMINATION

cept and serve in this office if I am so ordered by the commander-in-chief of us all—the sovereign people of the United States.

The president sprang the news of his political intentions on a news conference this morning when a reporter asked him if he had anything to say about the convention.

Grinning, the president replied that the reporter was only guessing—and said this time he was right.

Renomination Assured
Getting quickly to the correspondence before him the president read Hannegan's letter saying renomination is assured and replied:

"If the convention should carry this out, and nominate me for the presidency, I shall accept. If the people elect me, I will serve."

The president said, however, that he would not "run" for reelection in the accepted political sense "but if the people command me to continue in this office and in this war, I have a little right to withdraw as the soldier has to leave his post in the line."

Doesn't Want to Run
With that statement the president was referring to his wartime role of commander-in-chief of the armed forces.

"For myself, I do not want to run," Mr. Roosevelt said. "By next spring I shall have been president and commander-in-chief of the armed forces for 12 years—three times elected by the people of this country under the American constitutional system."

"From the personal point of view, I believe that our economic system is one of a sounder, more human basis than it was at the time of my first inauguration."

"After many years of public service, therefore, my personal thoughts have turned to the day when I could return to civil life. All that is within me cries out to go back to my home on the Hudson river, to avoid public responsibilities, and to avoid also the publicity which in our democracy follows every step of the nation's chief executive."

No Comment
In Albany, N. Y., Governor Thomas Dewey, republican presidential nominee, had no comment on Mr. Roosevelt's statement.

That would be his choice, Mr. Roosevelt said, but he assured Hannegan he would forego it if the convention drafted him and the people elected him for another term.

Mr. Roosevelt made no mention of the second place on the ticket and the status of Vice President Wallace remained unclarified.

Wallace told reporters last night after a two-hour conference with the president, that their conversation dealt solely with China, from where the vice president has just returned.

FDR Decision News to Wife

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—Reports circulated today that President Roosevelt has decided to indicate publicly that Henry Wallace is his choice for renomination as vice president.

How Mr. Roosevelt might make known his views was not indicated. The same political sources said that a public expression for Wallace did not mean the president would attempt to dictate a choice to the convention meeting in Chicago July 19.

The opinion in democratic circles continued to be that the president, beyond making his opinion known, would leave choice of a vice-presidential mate entirely to the convention.

BRITISH FORCES OCCUPY WEST BANK

of their sector reached the Orne's west bank from Caen to a point just north of Maltot, four miles southwest of Caen, where the British were engaged in heavy fighting. German resistance was stiffening in the Caen sector.

Troops of Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's first army driving on St. Lo reached the outskirts of Luzerne and Mesnil-Rozelin, just north of the city.

Coordinated Attacks
The attack was coordinated from the north and northwest of St. Lo. Fall of that city of 15,000 would force a German withdrawal from the remainder of the Cherbourg peninsula, and Nazi lines were under steady, heavy pressure along a front curving 40 miles to the sea.

The attack opened after hundreds of field guns bellowed steadily for hours, wrecking German hedgehog positions and numbing the nerves of even some of the most fanatical Nazis holding the line.

Doughboys Advance
Other doughboys advanced one to two miles elsewhere on the front winding across Cherbourg peninsula, making flank penetrations threatening to force a German withdrawal southward along the peninsula's west coast.

The German radio asserted that German troops had penetrated La Haye du Puits, strategic road center captured by the American first army Sunday.

54,000 Prisoners
Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, allied ground commander in France, declared 54,000 prisoners have been taken since D-Day, and told his American-British-Canadian forces that much has been achieved with definite and concrete gains.

"We are firm and secure," he asserted.

Bad weather and strengthening German resistance slowed the British second army assault in the Caen sector, and heavy fighting flamed south of the Orne and Orne rivers. The Germans forced the British to withdraw to the north of Maltot, a town four miles southwest of Caen.

Costly Price
A costly price still was being exacted of the enemy, and a British headquarters officer estimated 30 to 35 Nazi tanks had been knocked out on the front southwest of Caen.

The German position west of the Orne appeared hopeless in the long run, but the fanatical Nazi opposition against the drive of both the British and the Canadians was forcing the fighting line back temporarily in some spots and limiting progress to a few hundred yards in others.

Part of the loss of power of Montgomery's punch was caused by bad weather, which made it impossible for the allied air force to put in strong, close support.

Speaking to a group of Junior Hostesses and Commandos Monday evening was Dr. Adolph Weinzirl, professor at the University of Oregon, medical school and director of the E. C. Brown trust division of social hygiene at the medical school in Portland.

Dr. Weinzirl spoke on the subject "Do You Know That Happiness Lies Within Yourself?" and emphasized the family and family relations in his lecture.

This was the second of six lectures which are being presented to girls between ages of 16 and 24, and the next will be held Monday evening in the Little Theatre of the high school.
