BULLETIN FOR HOME CANNERS DISTRIBUTED

Klamath county homemakers who are busily "putting up" the fruits and vegetables of local victory gardens may take advantage of a useful, up-to-the-minute government bulletin on "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables," which is being distributed this week in the Klamath Falls area, according to Winnifred K. Gillen, home demonstration agent.

The bulletin, printed by the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics of the U. S. department of Agriculture, contains drawings and pictures of the most efficient way to process foods by the hot water bath and pressure cooker canning methods.

These seven points for canning success are considered so important by the authors of the booklet that they are printed on the cover:

1. Can only fresh food, in tip-top condition.
2. Have food, jars, everything used in canning thoroughly clean.
3. Work quickly, so as to can "freshness."
4. Heat food hot enough and long enough to make bacteria and other organisms harmless, so they won't "work" in the food and make it spoil.
5. Follow up-to-date directions and timetables, backed up by scientific research.
6. Make sure jars are sealed airtight, to keep spoilage organisms outside.
7. Store canned food in a cool, dark, dry place.

By Staff Sergeant Wallace R. McLean of Glendale, Calif., a Marine Corps Combat Correspondent.

MARINE CORPS AIR DEPOT, MIRAMAR, Calif., July 11—A Japanese antiaircraft shell exploding inches away from his torpedo bomber, showering it with shrapnel, gave Marine Corporal Robert L. Wood, 19, a turret gunner and son of George G. Wood of 2164 Wiard street, Klamath Falls, Ore., his biggest scare in 39 combat missions.

Home from action in three South Pacific campaigns, Corporal Wood told of his narrow squeak while raiding Rabaul last March.

"The plane bounced about 50 feet when the shell burst just off our left wing," he said. "We were directly over the airstrip, flying low."

"Shell fragments came through the fuselage and we shook like jelly but my pilot retained normal flight. It really gave us something to worry about for a few moments."

Corporal Wood was a member of the "Rockettes"—first marine squadron to use planes armed with rockets against the Japs. Damaging attacks were flown against Kahili, Buka Passage, Kavieng and Rabaul.

The latter Jap base, Corporal Wood said, provided toughest opposition on these raids.

"In all ten missions against Rabaul it was rough going," he declared. "We had to fly low and the ack-ack was plenty thick — from the ground and from ships in the harbor. Our fighter planes reduced the pressure considerably, however, by holding off the Zeros."

Corporal Wood regards his first bombing attack upon Jap shipping in Simpson Harbor, Rabaul, as most impressive because he saw four Zeros shot down in flames.

"Some of the Zeros made runs on our plane," he said, "but be-

ATTENTION! ALL HOME CANNERS!

If we all pitch in, 1944 will see the greatest food production in our history. But that will require your help.

It's up to you to: 1. grow every ounce of food you possibly can; 2. use all the food you grow; 3. can your food by the proper and safe methods.

Every ounce of home-canned food is urgently needed. Your Government begs you not only to match what you did last year but, if possible, to better your 1943 record.

Put up fruits and tomatoes by the boiling-water bath method—a safe and satisfactory method for these foods.

But before you begin your 1944 canning of all other vegetables, Good Housekeeping wants to tell you how to avoid a danger that may occur in home-canned food—a danger recognized by many authorities, including the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

That danger is botulinus food poisoning!

Botulinus poisoning comes from bacteria that live in the soil and cling to vegetables. It is rare—but it isn't confined to just a few parts of the country, as some people think.

Botulinus germs may be on the food you can. They must be destroyed. Whenever these bacteria are present in the food and are not destroyed during the canning process, they gradually produce a toxin which is poisonous.

Good Housekeeping Magazine

The Homemakers' Bureau of Standards
*For further up-to-the-minute information about really safe canning methods and how to avoid botulinus, write Good Housekeeping Institute, 959 Eighth Avenue, New York 18, N. Y.

It takes hotter-than-boiling heat to kill botulinus germs. Neither hot-water bath nor open-kettle canning provides enough heat to destroy them. That is why we advise: the only safe way to can low-acid vegetables—which means all vegetables except tomatoes—is by the correct use of a pressure cooker!

If you don't already own a pressure cooker, you'll be glad to know that the Government is allowing the manufacture of 400,000 new cookers for sale this summer, without priorities.

If you can't buy a pressure cooker, borrow your neighbor's... or perhaps you'll find one available through a community canning group. If not, form your own community group, and buy one. To be safe, don't can low-acid vegetables any other way.

We take this opportunity to issue two further warnings: 1. Oven canning is dangerous. It has caused many serious accidents to persons and to property. Shun it! 2. All home-canned foods should be examined carefully when opened. If there is evidence of spoilage, the food should not be used. NEVER TASTE to discover spoilage.

By all means, put up every ounce of surplus food you possibly can. Our armed forces and the hungry nations of the earth need the benefits of our abundance.
