Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

WHEN we begin to grow complacent, and are inclined to minimize the war in our thoughts, casualty lists come along to jar us into a realization of the brutal reality of the struggle.

EPLEY

The conquest of Saipan, we learn, cost 15,000 casualties, including 2359 killed, 11,481 wounded and 1213 missing. That was a heavy loss, indicating Japan's stiffened resistance as our forces attack its inner circle of defenses—the kind of thing that lies ahead from now on.

Casualties for American forces are now near the total of those sustained in World War I.

As the war gets farther away from the homeland, the casualties increase. As we find life easier and safer, more of our men are sacrificed. Ease and safety tend to lull us into forgetfulness—but we must not forget the sacrifices that bring them to us.

German Viewpoint

AN acquaintance of ours had occasion recently to talk to a German prisoner of war, who could speak English.

The German wanted to know how long our friend thought the war would last. When the opinion was offered that the war in Europe would be over in a year and a half, the German nodded in assent—that would be about the time required to achieve a German victory.

Discussion revealed that the German knew about recent nazi reverses, and believed the news about them. But his idea was that no great, overwhelming victory had been achieved by the Allies. He reasoned that such a victory could still come to the Germans in Normandy, driving the Allies into another Dunkirk, and to the Germans in Russia, sending the Reds reeling backwards again. So long as there was no complete German route, this prisoner foresaw German victories that would turn the whole tide of the war.

What this German prisoner said is probably indicative of the attitude of the German mind generally on the situations on both fronts.

Postponement

REPEATED postponements of the forthcoming civil aeronautics board hearings on proposed commercial airline service to Klamath Falls and other cities are becoming slightly irksome to local people anxious for definite action on this important transportation development.

Latest postponement puts the date at October 16 for the hearing.

A pre-conference hearing was held late in April, and prior to that, the Klamath county chamber of commerce, with the help of local officials, prepared an extensive brief describing the need and potential business for commercial airline service here.

It is possible that the fault lies with some of the airlines which are applicants for feeder or mainline service and which have been delayed in preparing their cases for the hearing.

In cases where lack of equipment or other conditions make it unlikely service can start until after the war, there may be no apparent reason for speedy action. But there are situations in which service can be rendered to deserving communities without additional equipment, and action on such applications would be most welcome. At least one firm could service Klamath Falls without adding equipment. This busy community, with three military installations and a critical war industry in operation, has need for airline service now.

• • • •

Compliments

INCIDENTALLY, the local chamber staff is somewhat puffed up by numerous compliments from airline officials on the quality of the brief that was prepared here to show the above-mentioned need. Officials of some lines say they show the Klamath brief to other towns as worthy of emulation and an example of a thorough job.

A good deal of current work went into the Klamath brief, but its quality was due in part to the fact that a lot of similar work has been done here for a number of years during which the great need for airline service has existed here.

Recent developments indicate that at last such service is in sight, and all who have worked in that direction may well take part in the credit when it comes.

The War Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

Associated Press War Analyst

HITLERDOM in its hour of desperation has cast aside its last pretense of civilized conduct and has served the world with the awful notice that in order to defend Germany it will turn Europe "into a maelstrom of destruction where only one cry is heard—the cry for blood."

The meaning of this barbaric declaration, which was broadcast yesterday by the German military radio, is terribly clear. The frustrated fuehrer—abnormal-minded whelp of Prussian militarism—wants his enemies to believe that he is prepared to put civilian Europe to the sword and torch in an effort to force the allies to make terms with the reich.

• • • •

Diabolical Project

NO more diabolical project ever was conceived in the darkest ages, and if anybody but Hitler backed it in these days of supposed enlightenment one would put it down as propaganda calculated to frighten the United Nations into a stampede. Probably the nazi dictator hopes it will have this effect, but if it doesn't produce this result—what then?

We must examine the position in the dispassionate light of reason and with reference to past events. We can't dismiss it as an empty threat. It fits perfectly with the character Hitler has displayed in his bestial massacres of helpless civilians in occupied countries and his enslavement of millions of others.

• • • •

Capable of Mass Destruction

WE have full proof from his past deeds that his evil heart won't stop at murder and devastation. I believe he is fully capable of undertaking to pull Europe down to destruction with him with all the horrors of a bloodbath.

The thing which might prevent this madness would be the refusal of the German people to countenance such a bloody course. Be that as it may, Adolf Hitler's threat in itself is enough to spur the United Nations to their utmost effort to smash as quickly as possible this monster and his nazism and the Prussianism which has fostered his schemes in order to achieve the world combination that it has sought for generations. Who identifies himself with Hitler now?

• • • •

Beast At Bay

THIS savage Hitlerian outburst is of course the snarl of the wounded beast at bay. The military broadcast makes that plain enough when it says:

"All now is at stake. The Russian flood is surging against our eastern frontier and threatens to spill over our holy German land. No wonder terror grips the heart of many of our people."

How true that is! The red flood is indeed sweeping westward across Europe with terrific force and speed. At latest reports it was rapidly nearing the border of East Prussia—"holy German land"—breeding ground of Prussian junkerism and militaristic aggression.

Meanwhile the allied breakers are tearing at Hitler's southern front in Italy. The sea is reaching to engulf him from the west. The skies are deluging him with a storm of destruction so terrific that his military commanders admit it's beyond their skill to cope with it.

The allies are closing in for the kill—no question about that. And Hitler's horrible threat can only have the effect of hastening his end.

SIDE GLANCES

"Oh, no, I'm not worried about Dorothy—she never smokes except when there's someone around looking at her!"

WHEAT

CHICAGO, July 14 (AP)— Wheat futures dipped to near the loan level in early trading today, then bounced back to hold a fairly steady course the remainder of the session. Commission houses and commercial interests were on both sides of the market.

A fairly substantial trade in September wheat was regarded as a sustaining factor in the market. There was some hedging pressure and price changes were mixed. Generally there was little interest in the market, traders cautiously limiting their operations, afraid to press the selling side at a time when prices were so near the loan.

There was practically no trade in rye and brokers drifted from the pit as the day wore on. Offerings by local operators supplied the limited commission house demand.

"Of What Faith Are You?"

☆ ☆ ☆

"ONE Faith" is heaven's order for all the children of God, yet we very often hear the question: "Of what faith are you?" Faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." (Rom. 10:17) If all believed the word of God, there would be but one faith, as the Lord has ordered; but when more than the word of God is taught and believed, more than one faith is produced. We very often hear the excuse offered for having many faiths, that we can not all see the Bible alike, but even if we do not see the Bible alike it does not alter the fact that the Lord says "there is one faith." The trouble is not in the Bible, but in us. If we fail to see the Bible alike, some of us and possibly all of us don't see it at all. If we see the Bible at all we will all see it alike, for the Bible is perfectly harmonious.

C. B. Shropshire, Portland, Evangelist

There is a possibility of our disagreeing about what we believe, but there is no possibility of our disagreeing over what the Bible teaches for there is no double talk in the Bible. If we all believe the Bible we all believe alike, but if we begin to piece-meal the Bible, accepting only parts of it and rejecting other parts, we will disagree as to which paris to accept and which parts to reject, but if all were willing to accept all that the Bible teaches on all subjects, it would be impossible to see it differently.

The writers of the New Testament admonished us to "contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints." One of the reasons for so many faiths in the world today is that people are not contending for the faith once delivered to the saints, but are contending for the faiths that have been, and are being delivered by those who have committed two evils, by forsaking the fountain of living waters, and hewing them out broken cisterns that can hold no water.

Is your faith in the fountain of living waters, or are you trusting in a broken cistern? Do you serve and worship the Lord, by doing what he has commanded, or are you being directed by the creeds of men. Let us with one spirit, and one heart, contend for the one faith, once delivered to the saints.
