Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

JAPANESE-AMERICAN HUNGRY strikers at the Tulelake segregation center apparently did a pretty good job of keeping themselves isolated in the stockade, rather than promoting their release.

By resorting to a bizarre pressure effort, they put the WRA on the spot at a time when, we understand, release of all or most of the trouble-makers on probation was under serious consideration.

WRA will not yield to such pressure, of course, and the men remain in the stockade or go to the center hospital.

If the Japanese stockade occupants really want out, they cooked their own goose. If they want to make martyrs of themselves, that is something else.

At the time of a previous hunger strike, there were evidences that some of the stockade occupants were chiseling with secret caches of food and vitamin pills. A little of that, once discovered by others who are starving themselves for "the cause," raised not with a hunger strike.

It is possible now that the reds will run into some strong defensive points around Warsaw, but no other defense line into Germany looks like anything important. Talk of a Vistula river line is as circuitous as the river itself which may offer a natural defense, due to its width in the south, but the Russians are known to have made great concentrations centering on that southern front, particularly in the Lwow area.

What we must look for next is a pause in the Russian marching to bring up communications lines. That they have gone as far and as fast as they have without stopping for this necessity is truly remarkable.

The Two Second Districts

THE congressman of the second district of California, Clair Engle, paid Klamath county a quick visit today en route to the Tule lake and Alturas countries. The state line between this Oregon area, and a part of Engle's district, has little significance except as a nuisance.

Engle's district, he believes, is the biggest in the United States. It runs south to Death Valley, west almost to the coast, and east to the Nevada line.

Running it a close second in size is the Oregon second district, which adjoins it on the north.

Engle gets quite a kick out of his relations, as a neighbor congressman, with Lowell Stockman of the Oregon second district. Engle is of small stature, while Stockman, as everybody knows, towers about 6 feet 6 and weighs some 280 pounds.

"If Stockman will run interference for me, I'll carry the ball any time," says Engle.

Engle is running for re-election as the democratic nominee. His district is not exactly New Dealish in prevailing sentiment, and apparently he stays off the New Deal bandwagon, despite his democratic affiliation.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 26—These reports out of Sweden and Switzerland on the German revolution are always open to suspicions of exaggeration.

The Germans long have had their rumor agents well planted. True also Hitler may well have decided to make a virtue out of the purge. Dictators have done that before.

But you need go no farther than the Russia front to know the end is nigh. His military situation has become indefensible in any substantial or durable manner. The end should be a matter of a few weeks, or at the most months.

Survey of Facilities, Materials Along Alaska Highway to Be Started

EDMONTON, Alta., July 26 (CP)—Col. F. S. Strong, commanding officer northwest service command, announced today that Canadian and American officers will begin Monday a survey of all facilities and materials of the United States government no longer has use for along the Alaska highway and these will be turned over to the Canadian government.

Col. Strong said in an interview that "we have nothing to hide" concerning reports of equipment waste on the highway. "Criticism of waste is not unfounded from the viewpoint of uninformed persons."

He said it had taken a little time to get approval of a means of handing over equipment to the Canadian government, "but we had it worked out before this unfavorable publicity hit us."

Col. Strong conceded some mistakes may have been made. "It can be that some officers have not always used the best judgment, but they should not be criticized for dereliction of duty. We are all guilty of it in time."

"Probably a lot of equipment has been sent back to the United States which never will be used," he said. "There will be yards all over the United States

dition is a letter the Russians captured from the pocket of the Nazi tank General Hoffmeister. It sounded like what a German tank general might well say and is considered authentic.

Hoffmeister related how he had been called all the way back to Berlin from the fighting front last May to hear a speech by der fuhrer to assembled eastern generals.

Desperate Conditions

HITLER talked along in an easy way saying the end national socialism had been in desperate conditions before, that he had always surmounted these trying times, and he suggested with polite but unmistakable innuendo that they read the history of national socialism and study its Nazi application.

The younger generals showed some enthusiasm for this line of talk, but the older generals asked where they would get the soldiers, planes and tanks to defend these words.

Hoffmeister complained of contrary orders later received, first to withdraw, then to hold, and of the lack of reinforcements which finally caused his tank group to be annihilated.

These same older generals are the ones who led the revolt. Since the middle of June the Russian advance has been little more than a march. Put no trust in the planted Swiss reports that none of the revolutionary or dissenting generals were on that eastern front.

Resentment Evident

BY far the greatest resentment against Hitler has been evident on that line since Stalin-grad. At no point yet have they been able to defend a line, although one was promised (a stout one, the Germans said) running from Riga to Odessa.

Odessa has long since gone and Riga is outflanked, and probably surrounded. The Nazis just do not have the men and materials for a real fighting effort and the generals know it best.

Trapped Men Removed

BUT the pause is apt to be governed by a switch in Russia emphasis to the Lwow area. (The Nazis probably have removed most of their 300,000 men reported trapped in the Baltic states by this time.)

In Normandy the same Nazi weakness is evident. The slow fighting there lately has merely represented our upbuilding of strength for the push ahead.

While the Nazis have 80 divisions in France and the lowlands, they have been able to present us with only 24 on the Normandy line, and obviously are in a situation where they cannot build up much, else they would have, in view of the time allowed.

Only in Italy can they hope to hold out for long. There, they are retreating upon a mountainous short line (Gothic) upon which they once had 20,000 Italian laborers at work preparing positions, and in all, spent at least six months building positions which could be defended by a weak force.

The Po river line behind that one is indefensible considering the size of their force.

Thus it is the young German officers who are as much responsible for the continuation of this war as is Hitler. They are the ones who answer a question which has long been in my mind as to how in the world he could possibly maintain himself in the face of his situation.

But they cannot long continue fanatically oblivious to the decisions in which so many of their wisest elders lost their lives.

SOUTH PISA BATTERED BY GERMAN GUNS

By NOLAND NORGARD

ROME, July 26 (AP)—The southern portion of the historic city of Pisa was battered today as big German guns stepped up their shelling of the areas below the Arno river which are in American hands.

While the eighth army, advancing along a 30-mile front, had penetrated to a point within eight miles of the outskirts of Florence, the fifth army, some of whose units are within a few hundred yards of the Pisa's famous leaning tower, consolidated its hold on a broad front south of the Arno.

The heavy German shelling of the American held portions of Pisa south of the Arno covered likely river crossings in and near the city with mortar fire.

An allied communique said eighth army units had reached the outskirts of San Casciano, eight miles south of Florence, and in other sectors of the inland front gains up to three miles had been scored. Strong enemy defenses northeast of Arezzo were pierced and Campriano was captured.

In widespread aerial activity yesterday, which included an attack on the Hermann Goering works southwest of Linc, Austria, and on railway and communication lines in northern Italy and Yugoslavia, planes of the Mediterranean allied air force made 1700 sorties.

During the varied operations, the communique said, 65 German aircraft were destroyed while 2 Gallied planes were reported missing.

Reconnaissance photographs showed that the tank works of the Goering plant, turning out heavy tanks and armored cars, "was virtually destroyed" by the bombardment from upwards of 500 fighter-escorted Liberators, headquarters announced.

An official source quoted a German prisoner, explaining the stubborn resistance to the eighth army advance, as saying he and his comrades had been told "the British were so furious at the effect of flying bombs on England that they would shoot any captured German immediately."

Tokyo Radio Says Task Force Hits At Palau Island

By The Associated Press

The Tokyo radio said today that a U. S. task force, consisting chiefly of aircraft carriers, had penetrated to the vicinity of Palau island, about 500 miles east of Mindanao in the Philippines, and that about 30 carrier-based planes had attacked that island.

The German news agency DNB, in a broadcast here today, quoted the Tokyo radio as saying that the task force was carrying out "two more" air attacks by the enemy were carried out by the first U. S. attack on Palau.

The first U. S. attack on Palau was made last March 29. It lasted five days, in conjunction with the attack on Yap, Ulithi, and Wotho, cost the Japanese 28 ships, 18 damaged and 164 planes shot down and 164 men killed. Twenty-five Japanese and 18 American planes were shot down. The Japanese were also damaged.

Palau is headquarters of the entire Japanese South Sea command and is known as the Japanese Singapore, which is why it must be captured or taken before the end of the Philippines, the end of which lies 530 miles west.

The Palau group contains about 100 islands providing a powerful fleet base for Japan. It is strategic because the group lies some 800 miles southwest of Guam, which S. forces are now seeking to hold. Palau is 100 miles from the Philippines, and an equal distance from the Philippines.

After the crippling blow Palau March 29, a full-scale attack on Palau was planned by Gen. MacArthur's west Pacific bombers, which near there May 13. In the island was put on the target list of Southwest Pacific raiders, airbases being the principal targets.

The attacks tended to realize any Japanese attempt to interfere with Adm. Chester Nimitz' invasions of Saipan, Guam and Tinian.

To a responsible man with 2 or 3 children

It's no fun being a breadwinner unless you've got a job. Right now, Southern Pacific has a special opening. Brakeman for the right man. You need to be steady and reliable because this is a responsible job. The work is vital and interesting. As Brakeman you work on the hopper, help to load and unload material, and you'll get a good money doing it. After a couple of weeks or so of training, you'll make over $1,000 a month at base pay. Southern Pacific makes considerable money. This is an important job with a permanent company even though it takes no experience to start.
