

TRAP CLOSED ON GERMANY'S SEVENTH ARMY

ican armored and infantry spearheads sweeping in a 250-mile arc through Le Mans, converged upon the German flank and rear in a sudden twist to the north. This swing took the Americans through Alencon. Sees and Argentin, only 18 miles south of the Canadian first army five miles above Falaise and the gap began to close.

Now the American armored "hammer" was beating the Germans against the Canadian-British "anvil" below Caen.

Von Kluge Doomed
Field Marshal Guenther von Kluge's defense of France south of the Seine appeared doomed as his forces squandered under frightful punishment to pull out through the suddenly narrowed gap.

Practically all his escape roads toward the Seine were out. Allied air forces were pouncing on every movement of the Germans, wrecking hundreds of locomotives and thousands of rail cars. Not a single wagon or bicycle was immune from attack from the swarms of aircraft which buzzed over the battle area in endless processions. Roads that remained open were under allied shellfire, and it appeared that only new German armies could stem the Normandy tide.

However, Von Kluge already had drawn on 40 of the 60 or 85 divisions he was believed to have had in France at the start of the invasion. British staff officers yesterday said the allies already had contacted 40 divisions.

Of these 15 already have been counted as destroyed or badly cut up in the beachhead battles, the St. Lo breakthrough, the Brittany sweep and the terrific battles in the hedgerows below Caen.

Meanwhile, there still was no news of any allied operations east of Lemans toward Paris, nor from the spearhead which crossed the Loire three days ago and struck southward 10 miles. The allied trap, 30 or more miles deep, was 100 miles west of Paris, but it seemed unlikely Von Kluge's shattered forces could put up any further defense on an effective scale, of the 20,000 square mile area through which the American whirlwind had swept in the past three weeks.

lines, capturing 530 settlements and forcing three rivers, the Naraw, the upper Bug and the Biebrza, crossed Sunday. Progress here was one of the major strategic victories of the summer campaign, for the Germans had mounted massive counterattacks in futile attempts to destroy this threatening wing of Rokossovsky's forces.

Rokossovsky's army group was pressing north and north-westward on a 65-mile front from the Bug northwest of Warsaw. The important communications centers of Lomza, Ostrow and Ostroleka lay within his grasp, and there are virtually no other large towns before the East Prussian frontier.

At the same time, a soviet communique disclosed that the twin armies of Rokossovsky and Gen. G. F. Zakharov, whose mammoth drive to outflank Warsaw on a 100-mile front has reached almost the entire length of the Warsaw-Bailystok railroad, had cleared the Germans from more than 180 settlements northeast of the Polish capital.

The Russians announced Gen. Andrei Yermenko's second Baltic army, now almost half way across Latvia, had killed or captured nearly 70,000 Germans in a month, boosting to 609,526 the Nazi casualties inflicted in the summer offensive.

LONDON, Aug. 14 (AP)—Russian troops have captured the town and railway station of Antsla, 57 miles inside Estonia and 16 miles from the important rail junction of Valga, the soviet communique announced tonight.

More than 100 inhabited localities were taken in this action in the sector southwest and west of Pskov. Two other rail stations were seized. Capture of the fortress town of Oswiec, Polish communications center 15 miles south of the Masurian lake region of East Prussia, was announced tonight by Marshal Stalin in an order of the day.

The Society of Nations which seek permanent peace and whose work we can take."

Throughout his trip, which lasted just a month until he docked at the yard here, the president kept in close touch with the war on all fronts, and he assured his hearers that "The war is well in hand in this vast (Pacific) area."

"But," he added, "I cannot tell you, if I knew, when the war will be over either in Europe or in the Far East or the war against Japan."

"It will be over sooner if the people of this country will maintain the making of the necessary supplies and ships and planes."

The president digressed from his prepared address to pay a compliment to the press and radio of America, which kept the secret of his Pacific tour until it was ended, though the press associations and many newspapers had known of the trip from its start.

"A modern miracle," he termed the fact so many groups and organizations would work so closely under a purely voluntary censorship code.

Admiral Nimitz, our navy commander in the Pacific, today put the heat on the Jap as we can.

He adds that the Jap war be won without actually invading Japan itself—though the homeland will have to be occupied to insure a winning peace. He mentions the possibility of U. S. warships bombarding Japan homeland.

He intimates that he will move his headquarters to the Marianas.

HE discloses to the correspondents that 52,303 Japs have been killed in the Gilberts, Marshalls and the Marianas at cost of 5903 American lives.

He adds: "This war is a new experience for the Japanese. We know how much they can take before they throw in the sponge."

NOW back, for a moment, to the home front:

Up in Salem, squirrels have been annoying babies in a nursery by dropping nuts on them as they sleep outdoors in their buggies. In the old dead, days, some kid would have solved the problem promptly by popping the little rascals with a .22.

That way is OUT.

The manager of the state game commission which sent a squad of its hired men to trap squirrels and ship 'em to Coeur d'Alene, Idaho—presumably to drop other traps on other babies until trapped again—sent on somewhere else.

THE solution of our problem, you see, is so much MORE COMPLICATED in these modern days than in the older, simpler days.
