ums in a lightning drive 21 miles due east of Chartres beyond the Aunay river.

Rise Against Nazis
Giving instructions to patriots within the city, a supreme command spokesman said over the American broadcasting station in Europe (ABSIE) that the day is not far off when you will have to rise and chase out the enemy and its accomplices."

"We are pushing eastward along the whole of our northern sector," supreme headquarters said in announcing the coastal thrust in eastern Normandy.

In this eastern surge the allied forces captured Bures, one and one-half miles northeast of Troarn, and plunged across the Dives river occupying Bassenville, three miles from Troarn and five from the coast.

Towns Taken
Other towns captured in this drive on the heels of fleeing remnants of the German seventh army included Mezdion and St. Pierre-Sur-Dives, on the Dives river, 14 and 18 miles southeast of Caen. Above Mezdion the allied troops reached the Dives north to beyond Troarn.

Forty and more miles east of Troarn allied bombers yesterday had wrecked most bridges spanning the River Risle from Foulbec near its mouth to La Ferriere-Sur-Risle, 35 miles upstream. The Risle flows west of the Seine and parallel.

Acknowledge Loss
(The Germans acknowledged they had lost the battle of Normandy. A broadcast said the fleeing forces were trying to escape another large allied trap.

"The Normandy front has been liquidated by the Germans," said Dr. Max Krull, military correspondent of DNB. "German forces are retreating and swift allied troops are trying to gain new positions to outflank and even encircle them.

Lines Denied
"An attempt of this sort is being made at Dreux where thrusts in several directions, including Paris, are being made. The lines are everywhere denied and interwoven to an extraordinary degree."

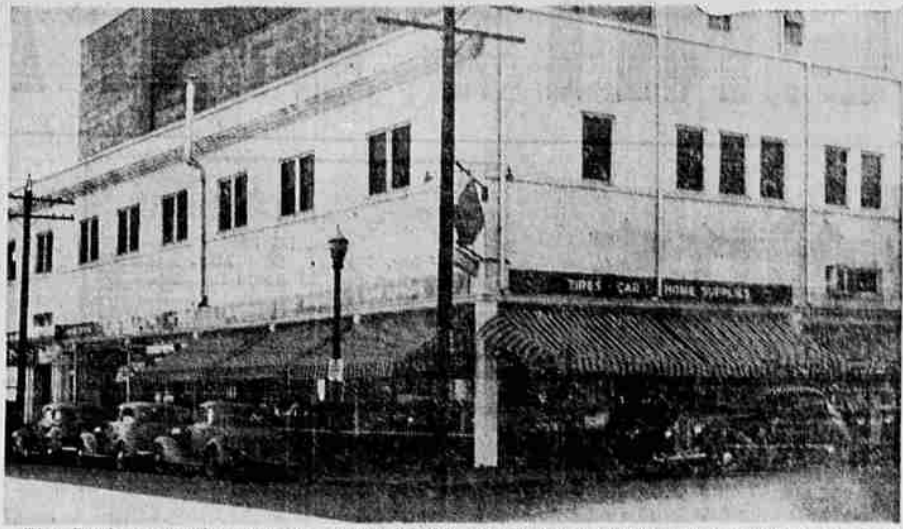

American, British and Canadian forces steadily reduced the Falaise pocket. Armored columns striking south closed the gap between two and three miles by reaching the vicinity of Chambois, just north of American forces at Argentan.
