

Old Files Reveal Interesting Accounts

In our office this last week we have been delving into some of the old files of the Klamath Republican and the Evening Herald, giving us interesting and enlightening highlights on the things that were done in Klamath Falls as long as forty years ago.

The Fourth of July celebration in 1910 contained not only a parade, but a war dance by Klamath Indians and a wedding read by torchlight in front of the courthouse. The ceremony is described as follows in the Klamath Evening Herald:

Hundreds of men and boys in white faces and red fire made a scene in the streets of the town like a scene in a special play and when the float of the Goddess of Liberty had ridden the day before, which this time bore Mr. and Mrs. Edythe Taylor, the crowds almost blocked the passage of the vehicle.

Directly opposite the courthouse, E. B. Ramsby, who was on the float, stopped the crowd and the crowd immediately jammed the streets from the float with the bride and Misses Roxa Shive, Marjorie, Ruth White and Schallcock, bridesmaids, Kirk White, Arthur Livermore and Guy Merrill, groomsmen, while the ceremony, the special ring service, was performed by Justice A. D. Miller, and glow from the torches of the thousands which formed a scene which the couple nor the crowd on the float will ever forget.

When the ceremony was over, Mr. Livermore was the first to start a way without performing that important part of official duties, but Guy called him back and induced him of his error, when made up for last time and a genuine Klamath Falls bride, and some say he substituted one of the bridesmaids for the bride, but this is an error. A description of a little more wedding, however, is in an issue of the Klamath Republican for the year 1910. Parts of its description are as follows: A very pretty wedding occurred yesterday at noon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Sigler, when their daughter, Miss Lydia, was united in marriage to Mr. Fred W. Jackson. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Starr, a beautiful ring service used, and a substitute of "Wedding" was played by Mrs. Krause, during which the party approached the altar on the lawn where the ceremony was performed. The bride was escorted by her father, Mrs. Rose Taylor, maid of honor, and Miss Chasing bearing. The bridesmaids were Misses Berle Baldwin, Viola Norton, Nell Boyd, Mabel Hammond. The groom was accompanied by John Moore, Jr. The ushers were W. O. Smith, William

Beauty IS YOUR DUTY
By RITA WHISENANT

MANY comments have been made and much has been written on the subject of beauty since time was recorded.

poetry, art, music, love, life and death itself have been inspired by it. It is the claim to fame of women like Cleopatra, Helen of Troy, Madame Dubarry. It is, in a large sense, a motivating force of our civilization.

WITH all this true, we here at Everbody's have often wondered what cynic created that old and bandied around proverb, "beauty is but skin deep," thus lightly passing it off with a figurative wave of the hand and a pooh pooh.

OF course, our conception of beauty, and I mean beauty of face, changes with the passing of time. A couple of hundred years ago, it must have been all right for a girl's skin to be flaky, or dry or overly oily, simply because nobody knew what to do about it. And a pale, listless, washed-out look may have been the height of beauty style. In fact, it must have been pretty tough to be a beauty in those days.

TODAY, on the other hand, it is difficult to find an unattractive woman. Our complexions are soft and lovely year 'round. However we may feel, we never lack for the look of colorful health. We're prepared to face the ravages of sun and wind, of blizzard and heat, without batting an eye-lash.

AND for this we have to thank firms like Richard Hudnut, and the creams and lotions they created to combat the elements. Beauty is YOUR duty!
