

TWO MARINES, SAILOR GIVEN CITATIONS

Two marines and a sailor were given citations and medals Saturday morning during an impressive ceremony on the Marine Barracks parade grounds.

PFC William R. Truman received the navy and marine corps medal and a citation, issued by the commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, in recognition of his "valorous conduct at Eniwetok Lagoon, Marshall Islands, on February 22, 1944."

He was a member of a marine infantry regiment which made the initial landings in the Marshalls.

Phm 1/c James Noel McGee, navy corpsman with a unit of the First marine division on Guadalcanal, was formally awarded a presidential unit citation, and Sgt. Charles N. Taylor received the Purple Heart, having been wounded in action.

The citations were read by Maj. Clyde C. Roberts. Immediately before the ceremony Col. B. Dubel, Com. Lowell T. Coggeshall, Major Roberts and Lt. (H. C.) I. R. Lisbony, inspected the parade battalion, band and color guard.

In deference to the chilly weather, the parading marines were all attired in full winter service uniforms.

After the citations were read, the troops passed in review before the inspecting party and the honored men.

(Reports from Cairo said the resignation caused a suspension of the armistice talks, which had entered the preliminary phase. Apparently they will not be resumed until a new government is formed. A Cairo report said Bagrianov might form a leftist government and continue the conversations.)

Official sources were vague in describing movements of Patch's striking forces in the area north of Genoble, from which thrusts could be made to bypass Lyon on the east and get astride of routes along which the nazis are trying to escape with what is left of their battered 19th army.

The communique said only that some American elements are "beyond Voiron," which is 43 miles southeast of Lyon.

American columns on the east side of the Rhone river made a few contacts with enemy rear-guards yesterday between Tournon, 47 miles south of Lyon, and Bourge de Peage, but only patrol clashes were reported.

Important Gains

Without naming any towns captured, the bulletin said that in the center other eighth army troops had made "very important gains."

American troops of the fifth army, who had been largely idle except for patrol actions since they swept to Livorno (Leghorn) and the Arno river weeks ago, jumped the stream at several points west of Florence and plunged forward, menacing historic Pisa near the coast.

The main American drive, however, was said to be toward high ground north of Florence which must be taken before the sweep of the eighth and fifth armies can gain their final objectives.

Air Force Supports

The Mediterranean allied air force gave strong support to the offensive. Last night bombers hit rail yards at Bologna on the Brenner Pass line in northern Italy.

The attack that broke the back of the Gothic line was launched on a 20-mile stretch west from Pesaro, Adriatic port. The heaviest fighting in that area began two days ago.

In the allied advance, Polish and British troops crossed the Foglia river.

Ramsay, a member of commons, were imprisoned to prevent disclosure of a reported pre-war understanding between President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill, then first lord of the admiralty. The understanding was described as a pledge that if Britain entered the war the United States would aid her.

The state department said that American diplomatic immunity for Kent was waived by Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy after Scotland Yard informed the ambassador that Kent was suspected of transmitting to a German agent copies or abstracts of documents useful to the enemy and prejudicial to British interests.

Possible Charges

The question of whether the American government will prefer additional charges against Kent for violating diplomatic secrecy will be decided after he has served his seven-year term in British prisons and again comes under the jurisdiction of American courts, the department said.

The department's account related that British police searched Kent's room on May 20, 1940, with an officer of the embassy present, and found copies of embassy material totaling more than 1500 individual papers.

The state legislative political situation looks somewhat more interesting than usual this year, with both parties having full tickets of nominees. Dale West, farmer, and Mrs. Rose Poole, business woman, the two republican candidates, have been working quietly, but are expected to stage active campaigns in a few weeks. Henry Semon, democrat, the only incumbent among nominees, is temporarily disabled by a farm accident. Thomas Eustis, printer and democratic nominee, is actively working. Two are to be elected.

Charles DeLap, candidate for county clerk, is getting around the county on a drive for votes in a race with Mae K. Short, incumbent. Otherwise, the county political situation appears to be quiet.

Democrats will stage a picnic at Moore park Sunday with Willis Mahoney, one-time mayor and third-time candidate for the U. S. senate, as key speaker.

The pace of the advance—with official word lagging behind correspondents' reports—suggested the doughboys probably would be on the reich's borders some time this weekend.

Virtually paralleling the Americans' northward push, British armored columns jabbed 15 miles northeast of Arras to Douai, 14 miles from Belgium, and raced over Vimy ridge of World war one fame to within 18 miles of Armentieres and Lille.

Capture of Abbeville near the Somme's mouth was not yet claimed, but British and Canadian troops linked up between that town and the coast, seizing three bridges and isolating all nazi resistance pockets to the south.

The allies were within two miles of Le Havre, the last of the allied spearheads.

The nazis were fleeing from the Pas-de-Calais and the coast studded with anti-aircraft platforms, and expected to be withdrawing from Belgium and The Netherlands.

(Berlin said Americans were but two miles from the Luxembourg border.)
