

SUIT FOLLOWS FT. KLAMATH FATAL MISHAP

A suit for $10,000 damages, plus $242.75 hospital and funeral expenses, has been filed against Joseph Thomas McIntruff and Big Lakes Box company by Katherine A. Nichols, administratrix of the estate of Angus McDonald, who died from injuries received when he was hit by a Ford pickup near Fort Klamath about 2:30 a. m., July 9.

The pickup was owned by Big Lakes and driven by McIntruff, logging superintendent for the company, who, according to the complaint, was intoxicated at the time of the accident and driving 60 miles an hour. The complaint states that McIntruff swerved to the left side of the road, striking McDonald from behind, and critically injuring him.

McIntruff was arrested shortly after the accident. He will be tried November 20 on a charge of failure to stop at the scene of an accident.

Republican Standard Bearer Meets the Folks

save their historic river defense line, but some of the western front's hottest fighting virtually set the seal of doom on perhaps 100,000 enemy troops caught in western Holland.

The whole fate of the Germans' Ruhr valley and the safety of their entire northern flank was turning on the outcome of this first victory and the unfolding of a second battle about to take place for control of the crossings of the northern branch of the Dutch Rhine at Arnhem.

As Lt. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's armor raced across the Waal, largest branch of the Dutch Rhine, toward the north, units of Lt. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton's first allied air-borne army—believed to be American—apparently were hanging on grimly to positions astride the doorstep of the Ruhr.

Another enemy broadcast said Japanese were within 19 miles of Kwelin, southeast China base recently abandoned by the 14th U. S. air force.

Two Liberators of the fourteenth, carrying unidentified "special equipment" sank a half dozen vessels out of an 11-ship convoy and probably sank another, Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault announced. The attack was made Tuesday night off Formosa.

formation on the extent to which service men at home and abroad were being informed of his campaign appeals. Told that Mayor Edward Kelly of Chicago had said that soldiers were being circled by mail to vote for President Roosevelt, Dewey said: "I am very sure that any letter by Mayor Kelly to the soldiers would greatly assist the republican cause."

Soldier Vote

He had been told, Dewey said, that his first two campaign speeches at Philadelphia and Louisville, were to be re-broadcast to the troops, but that he had not received any information whether that plan had been carried out, nor did he know whether additional broadcasts were planned.

"I believe the views of the soldiers are the same as any one else and they will make up their minds about the election just like the people at home," he said.

A reporter wanted to know if Dewey thought that "experienced military and naval men" should be selected as secretary of war and secretary of navy. Dewey said he thought that was not necessary.

"What you need," he said, "is a first class executive who knows his job and will do it."

Price Regulation O. K.

Questioned about the efficiency of office of price administration (OPA), Dewey said he thought it "could do a whole lot better job if it was in better hands."

"Price regulation is absolutely essential in time of war to prevent inflation," he declared.

San Francisco gave Gov. Dewey the numerically greatest welcome of his presidential drive as the GOP nominee's cavalcade wound through the city streets after a trip from Oakland, where he left his campaign train.

Arriving at a downtown hotel, the New York governor went immediately into conferences with leaders of political, labor, veteran, negro and other organizations, preparatory to a speech tonight in a civic auditorium where, he had said, he would outline "a new approach" to the relationship between citizens and the federal government.

Thousands of persons lined San Francisco's Market street as the Dewey procession traveled the length of the business district, circled the civic center, and back to his hotel.

Earlier, in Oakland, he was greeted at the railroad station by Governor Earl Warren, then met with republican officials there at a reception for him.

that is true enough. The Republicans ARE making all the political capital they can out of the stubborn delay of the Pearl Harbor investigation until after election (it is scheduled for December 7).

But it is equally true that delay of the investigation until the election is safely past is political machination on the other side.

THE whole thing is unfortunate. The way in which this Pearl Harbor investigation has been handled has gone far to destroy public confidence in government—which is a dangerous thing.

Danish General Strike Ends

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 21 (AP)—The general strike in Denmark, called as a protest to the German dissolution of the Danish police force, ended today on orders of the Danish freedom council.

The Free Danish press service reported that the nazis were conducting widespread searches for Danish policemen who escaped the initial round-up Monday, from which 1700 men were deported to Germany.

The gestapo manned Copenhagen stations last night.

orange juice in the morning until he puts on his government-ordered pajamas at night."

How She Looked

Mrs. Dewey stood slightly in back of her youthful looking husband and as she smiled gained the approval of the women folks who seemed to like her serene manner and poise. She wore a small hat, a silver fox fur over a simple black suit and on the lapel was pinned a cluster of pink rosebuds.

The governor's wife was presented with a huge basket of pink gladioli from Mrs. L. A. Murphy, vice chairman of the republican central committee, and graciously expressed her appreciation saying that it was "one of the most beautiful and the largest gift of flowers received" on their tour.

Orchids in Box

Another Klamath gift came from the Pelican Bay Lumber company which sent one of the little wooden Christmas gift boxes to the New Yorkers. In the box were orchids and the presentation was made by Bill Lyon, Pelican Bay box factory foreman. A delegation of four from Ashland presented a huge Hale peaches to the governor, and Mrs. Leslie Rogers of this city made a gift of wild plums and peaches.

Klamath folks have seen few trains such as the Dewey special which pulled in here last night at 9 o'clock. There were 14 cars, several of them filled with newspaper men and women and their paraphernalia of typewriters and photographic and wire equipment. Some 70 newspaper men and correspondents, and two newspaper women, one of whom was pretty badly shocked in the Castle Rock wreck, have been included in the Dewey party.

Police reserves, members of the regular police force, and SP and MP officers were on hand to take care of the crowd. Chief of Police Earl Heuvel and his assistants were complimented on the manner in which they handled the situation but much credit also goes to the orderly citizenry of the Klamath county which appeared last night, and to the republican central committee which made arrangements for Dewey's appearance here.

WITH AMERICAN AIRBORNE FORCES IN HOLLAND

Sept. 19 (Delayed) (AP) Leading elements of British armor rolled across a strategic bridge spanning the Meuse river at about 8:15 a. m. today.

(The Meuse, known in Holland as the Maas, flows close to the German frontier and about 8 miles south of Nijmegen.)

The bridge had been secured a few hours after the British landing on September 17 by paratroopers—commonly known as "all American airborne."

A few moments later, there was a roadside meeting of the American commander, a 37-year-old brigadier general who commanded a regiment in Normandy, and a British lieutenant general directing airborne forces in Holland. Two lieutenant colonels commanding British armored troops also were at the scene.

HOSPITALITY HIT BY HIGH RENTS

These cases are reviewed and decided upon.

In some eviction cases, the landlord is only required to give the tenant an area office due notice of the action. In these cases the rent regulations specify certain grounds on which a tenant may be evicted by action filed directly in the local court. In other cases, however, a certificate must be obtained before the landlord can bring an eviction action.

Some of the grounds for eviction, the district director said, are where the tenant refuses to allow his landlord access to the premises, using the dwelling for immoral or illegal purposes, where the landlord wishes to use the dwelling for himself, or where extensive remodeling is planned which cannot be done while the tenant is occupying the property, or when the tenant refuses to pay his legal rent.

The adjustment is being made as fairly as possible, Gage stated, and added that Klamath Falls was one of the best cities he had dealt with to date.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP) Secretary of the Interior Ickes today made a direct no-strike appeal to coal miners over the head of John L. Lewis who, he said, "is cognizant there is a political campaign on, and nothing else counts to him but that."

In a statement asking the miners to keep digging coal, Ickes recited gains he said they have made during the Roosevelt administration, and added, "I can not conceive that the mine workers can turn their backs on their government."

He did not mention the United Mine Workers' chief by name in the statement, but at a later news conference he criticized what he termed Lewis' political motives.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes of filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.
