BEAVER MARSH

LANDING READY

Beaver Marsh intermediate landing field near Chemult, which will be on the Portland-San Francisco air route when such an air lane is established through Klamath Falls, is now ready for day operations, it was learned Monday by Charles R. Stark, executive secretary of the chamber of commerce. Trans-oceanie air liners of the future may be powered by elec-tric motors enabling the giant ships to carry greater loads for longer distances at a substantial gradue in fuel saving in fuel.

Although the quotas of ci-vilian passenger car tires have been downward, the number for August remained the same as July, which checked the decline.
