DR. FERGUSON TO HOLD PASTORATE

MERRILL—Dr. David J. Ferguson, well known to church audiences in Klamath county, has been asked to accept the pastorate of the Merrill Presbyterian church for one year to succeed Rev. Donald Dod who left recently for Eugene to accept a pastorate. Dr. Ferguson will take up his new duties upon his return in a few days from a brief vacation in the northern part of the state. He has been recently in charge of the migrant workers' camp at Tulalake.

He is of Scottish birth and a graduate of Oxford university. Dr. Ferguson served as a captain in Wars I and II, receiving a medical discharge after service in the present conflict. He served as chaplain with the group of Gold Star mothers who went overseas in 1938, has been a nation wide lecturer on the chautauqua platform and more recently has been with the U.S. army as chaplain and director of physical education, Fort McArthur.

The Merrill church, which since its organization, has been affiliated with the Presbyterian board of missions, voted at the recent congregational meeting to become an independent church and in the future will be responsible for all incurred finances.

His statement added another objection to the proposed shipping of a closed-down bauxite plant at Baton Rouge, La., to the Pacific northwest—a plan expected to cost not over $15,000,000. The bureau of mines had already filed the objection that the nation has sufficient bauxite plants.

Alumina Plant Declared Essential

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP)—Philip D. Wilson, vice president of the war production board, declared today that an alumina-from-bauxite plant in the Pacific northwest is essential to that area's aluminum industry.

He added, however, that wartime construction of such a plant might not be feasible, because of anticipated manpower shortages as the Pacific war gathers momentum.
