Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

BIG, earnest Wendell Willkie, whose untimely death occurred Sunday, had a legion of admirers here as elsewhere throughout the U. S. They included a lot of people who were bitterly opposed to Mr. Willkie when he ran for president in 1940. They did not know him very well then, and they were swayed by prejudices that were fanned to white heat in that presidential campaign.

Mr. Willkie skyrocketed into the national political picture just before the 1940 republican convention. Only a comparatively few people knew much about him before that convention. New to politics, he was none too adept as a campaigner. But he missed the presidency by only a narrow popular vote margin; had people known him better, he might well have been elected.

On his campaign trip he stopped at Klamath Falls, and many local people saw him on the rear platform on his train at the S. P. depot here. Later on that journey, Willkie was subjected to despicable discourtesies in places where campaign prejudice took violent form.

It is noteworthy that both Willkie and his vice presidential running mate, Senator Charles McNary, died within the four year period after their unsuccessful campaign. Presumably, neither would have lived out his term had their ticket won in that election.

Paper Problem

As you may have guessed, our newspaper is having its troubles with the newsprint shortage. Recent papers have been running "tight," with a necessary sacrifice of some features. Every effort will be made to work this out and to maintain the highest possible standards in spite of the problem.

This paper has had substantial increases in circulation since the periods on which our newsprint quotas are based. We now have a paid circulation of more than 12,000, and daily use of paper averages about a ton.

Klamath Falls is a busy, active community, and the demands are great for both news and advertising service for the public in such a place. That, of course, is the way we want our community, and we will do our best to solve the special problems involved for us.

We have tried so far to get along on our newsprint quotas, without requests for extra allotments.

BPW WEEK SLATED FOR OBSERVANCE

The following proclamation was issued Monday by Mayor John H. Houston:

PROCLAMATION

"This week, October 8 to 14, is proclaimed National Business Women's week, observed throughout the nation by more than 1800 Business and Professional Women's clubs and thousands of business women who are facing vast responsibilities and problems as we near the date of our fourth year at war.

"Inasmuch as this is an election year, with business women concentrating their attention on legislative and political activity, the theme of the week has been declared as 'Are We Part-Time Citizens?', with the organization aiming its influence toward making women more community minded and government conscious.

"Therefore, as mayor of Klamath Falls, I urge its citizens to recognize and cooperate in this week's observance and to feel pride in a country in which such groups can come into being and expand."

"Mayor John H. Houston."

characters for public men, nearly all of which fictitious. Instead of accurate pictures, these popular conceptions of leaders are cartoons. Instead of character studies, they become caricatures.

These become so deeply burned into public consciousness that they live on into permanent history, until perhaps some debunker comes along years or ages hence to re-establish past-figures in their true human elements, their true human elements.

There was Hoover. He was superman when elected. The general impression at the time (1928) was that Mr. Hoover had more superior qualifications than any man who ever had run in politics. But since 1932, he has been the world depressor.

Whatever caused that great economic debacle beyond the natural ineptness of man and his natural greed for ever greater and greater profits on credit, the common understanding of Al Smith has been as overdrawn and distorted as any of the conceptions which make good men inferior and average men great.

Tough Talker

IT leaves him in his grave a rather uncouth East Side New Yorker, unaware even of social amenities, a tough-talking street man who did not know how to pronounce radio but called it "rad-dio." That stigma of politics he lacked the strength to destroy in his later years.

As a matter of fact, he was not only far above average intelligence, but a brilliant and superior governor who could handle intricate problems of finance in the budgets or taxation or legal legislation as expertly or better than anyone who has held that office before or since. This is attested by the fact he was elected four times, generally in the face of republican land-slides.

Al Smith affected what he thought was the language of the common people. It was the tongue of the common people of New York City and no more important in measuring intelligence than a southern accent measures the intelligence of the south.

With it and a gaily-waving brown derby he won continuously among the people who knew his real inner quality, but the country did not understand either his language or his derby. Their hearts did not warm to Smith as the voters of all classes and creeds in New York had done.

His tactics indelicately stamped him to them as someone lacking taste. It was the tragedy of his career from which he fell into an epilogue of bitterness.

New Yorker Example

HOW completely popular illusions were turned on him is illustrated by a cartoon in the New Yorker in the 1928 campaign. It showed rich dowagers with lognettes sitting around a Long Island estate, saying: "Imagine the Smiths in the White House!"

This was intended to sear with irony the stupidity of high society, but the country strangely came to accept the notion in reverse.

Politics is a funny business. Smith and his associates alone repealed the false corruptive ideal of prohibition. Not even Bryan moved so many people so much in speeches on the stump. No one ever assailed his honesty or integrity. As a product of Tammany machine, he reformed it instead of letting it run him in the corrupt old boss style.

I did not know him well personally, but I knew him well publicly as a reporter traveling with and covering him for many years and I knew the injustice of the abuse heaped upon him. I knew him as a superior and a good man. The lesson of his life and death for the people is that they should look beneath the surface of political character-contrivances in making their estimates of public men. They should strive to cut through the artifices of whitewash and crimson, not only to do greater justice to their leaders, but to do greater justice to themselves in their government.

POSTWAR PLAN GOOD START, SAYS DEWEY

By GARDNER BRIDGE

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 9 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today described the Dumbarton Oaks postwar security plan as "a fine beginning in a momentous task."

"I am very happy over the result," he said in a formal statement.

The republican presidential nominee reemphasized his previously expressed stand that "not only the great but the small nations must have a full share in shaping the peace structure if it is to work."

He echoed Secretary of State Hull's caution that there is "much still to be done," and declared "we should push forward steadily to do it."

Dewey, who had been kept continuously advised of the four-power talks in Washington, which ended last Saturday, said: "We know that there is in this country a bipartisan agreement upon the end to be achieved; that there is already a large measure of accord with our British, Russian and Chinese friends, and that our approach to other nations is animated by a genuine desire to deal with them as equal partners. With all of this we can not fail."

Calls for Aid

Earlier Dewey called for "an ever greater degree of aid to China," thus projecting his presidential campaign more emphatically into the arena of international affairs.

The New York governor, returning from West Virginia, where he spoke Saturday night, proclaimed tomorrow as "Free China Day" after demanding more public information about Poland's postwar future.

Published reports that Dewey would like to retain Secretary of State Hull in at least an advisory capacity on international affairs if elected this November brought no confirmation from the republican nominee or his campaign managers. They termed it "purely speculative."

John Foster Dulles has been mentioned most frequently as Dewey's choice for secretary of state in event of a republican victory.

Oregon Divorce Rate Doubles in Ten Years, Report

SALEM, Oct. 9 (AP)—Oregon's divorce rate has doubled in the past 10 years, State Treasurer Leslie M. Scott said today.

There were 8215 divorces filed in the state in the year ended June 30, compared with 6344 in the preceding year, 4119 in 1940, and 3370 in 1935.

The state treasurer obtains the statewide divorce information from payments made by counties, each county having to pay the state $5 for each divorce filed.

Multnomah and Columbia counties had the biggest increases, with divorce rates in those counties up 147 per cent in the past five years.

The number of divorces in Klamath during the fiscal year ended June 30, and the percentage of increase in the past five years was 269, up 25 per cent.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 9 (AP)—A victim of bad dreams stumped the police record bureau here with "Was I arrested last night?"

Klamath Boy Describes Reception by Belgians

Local boy makes good—in landing the troops during the airborne invasion of Holland. Friends hearing of 1st Lt. Robert Veatch's experiences in the Low Countries visualized the reception which is being accorded hundreds and thousands of American airmen and infantrymen who have gone into the previously occupied areas. Here is a portion of a recent letter sent to Bob's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Veatch, 1536 Earle. The date is September 25 and it is mailed from a transport command somewhere in England:

"Dear Folks: Well, I suppose you have been reading and hearing a lot about the big airborne invasion of Holland and I have been in on it, and plenty! Four straight days of it and I have had my fill. We lost several ships but got nearly all our crews back. All in all, we really had it rough.

"I had a little engine trouble on our last mission, so I landed at Brussels and spent the night there, and boy, what a town! I never had such a time in my life. The city had only been freed for 15 days, so the mass celebration was still going strong. We went into a theatre where there was a vaudeville celebrating the liberation and as soon as we were seen, the orchestra broke out in 'The Star Spangled Banner,' and everyone started cheering us. We could hardly get out of the place.

"One old man entertained us most of the night in his cabaret, and then came to our hotel the next morning and took us all over the town, showing us the interesting landmarks. It really is a beautiful place and unlike most English towns, it is practically untouched, with the exception of the outskirts where the airdromes are. I sure would like to go back and spend about a week. What I enjoyed the most were the people themselves; they are all dressed nicely and look sharp as a tack!"

SERMONS DIRECT FROM THE BIBLE

Tomorrow marks the beginning of a series of sermons to be published daily in this paper. We invite you to watch the paper every day and read these sermons.

Many of our friends who heard our radio lessons, who ceased June third of this year, have expressed their regret that our radio audience failed to drop the daily sermons due to the rules of the local station. We were forced to leave the air. But since the demand for the sermons has been great we have decided to give them to the public through the press.

It will be a great advantage to the public to have the sermons printed, because many of the men and women who are working can read them, whereas they could not hear the broadcast. Then too, you can clip the sermons from the paper and send them to friends at a distance. Again, there will be no mistake as to what we have or are saying, because it will be in black and white. These sermons can be read and re-read. We insist that you clip every sermon and save them for future reference. There may come a time when you will want to refer to some of them. The chapter and verse will be given in every sermon in such a way that you may turn to the Bible and read for yourself.

"YE SHALL KNOW THE TRUTH AND THE TRUTH SHALL MAKE YOU FREE." Jno. 8: 32.

We thank you.
