PLATFORM SET BY MRS. POOLE FOR CAMPAIGN

"No obligation except to do my best for my home county and my state" is Rose Poole's declaration in her campaign statement today in connection with her candidacy for election to the legislature at the November election.

Mrs. Poole, who homesteaded on the west side of the Upper lake in 1910 and has been a local businesswoman and civic worker for many years, received the republican nomination for the legislature in May. She is the first Klamath woman to run for the job, but a number of women have served ably in the legislature from other districts.

Her statement:

I am a candidate for the state legislature to be voted on November 7, 1944. Four candidates are running and two are to be elected.

Klamath county and its people have treated me well since I moved here and took up a homestead on the west side of Klamath lake in 1910, and I would like to be of some public service to my home territory and its people to show my appreciation. If I am elected I will serve as one of 60 legislators with no obligation except to do the best I can for my home county and state.

There are hundreds of bills introduced at each session. You voters have a duty to yourselves to watch such legislation as introduced and tell your representatives your wishes—how its passage will laffect you personally and the public interest as you see it. If elected I will feel free to ask my constituents their opinion of legislation upon which I do not feel fully informed and will expect them to answer in the public interest.

The legislature's duty is to appropriate money which you taxpayers raise (don't forget that we are all taxpayers now) and spend it for matters and functions promoting the public interest. Wise public spending should not be niggardly but sensible—the wa ya housewife tries to get the best value for the family budget. Legislative expenditures are subject to the 6 per cent constitutional limitation just as a housewife's expenditures are subject to the amount of the family pay check, and the available funds should be used in the public interest.

The public interest as I see it, is served best by attracting and encouraging industry to our state and county which will give steady employment after the war and maintain a high standard of living for labor so employed. The employers should not be harassed nor the labor exploited. This will take a lot of common sense on the part of employers and employes and the legislature should do likewise.

The growth of farming in the Klamath basin in the years I have lived here is something admirable and fine. I feel mighty proud of our community's farmers. Whatever state expenditures have been made to further this growth have been more than tenfold repaid, and should be continued. There is still room for a lot more growth and improvement in the farming area of the Klamath basin. The farmers' interests should be proected. I want to help protect them.

In the next few years manufacturing in the Klamath area will undergo a marked change. The people of Klamath county never were the type that slipped back—they always went ahead and I know they will continue the same way. Legislation that protects our fish, game, wild life and forest resources will help in Klamath's progress. Another place where common sense will be highly useful.

Like any woman who has raised a family, I feel that our public schools should be adequately maintained and staffed. There is plenty of room for common sense in handling the school problem. I will do my best to use it.

Oregon is now head and shoulders above other states in keeping down the number of departments and bureaus of government. I will do all within my power to keep it that way and maybe a little better.

During my 34 years in Klamath county I have been active in various jobs, in business of my own and in public activities. I have met and dealt with a lot of people and have enjoyed most of it. I hope you will let me put this experience at your service in the next session of the legislature. If you do, I will do all possible to advance the interests of my home county and state.

Candidate

Mrs. Rose Poole. Klamath business woman and civic worker, who is a candidate for election to the legislature's lower house.

HUNSAKER VOLUNTEERS

WAVES Commission Officers From Ranks

Advancement to commissioned officer rank in the WAVES will be made from the ranks of enlisted WAVES as a result of the announcement that no more women will be commissioned as WAVE officers direct from civilian life after this month, according to official information received by Recruiting Specialist Dan Schreiber of the Klamath Falls navy recruiting station, which handles WAVES applications in this area.

More than 40 enlisted WAVES from Oregon already have qualified for officers' training and have been commissioned in the WAVES. Several among these young women have advanced from apprentice seamen to ensign within a year.

The navy still needs thousands of enlisted WAVES to complete quotas assigned, the recruiter said. These new WAVES must be enrolled within the next three months to meet the requirements of the navy for the many and varied activities which they can handle expertly.

WAVE officers chosen from enlisted ranks will be trained at the WAVES officers' school, Smith college, Northampton, Mass.

Deweys Thank Local People For Gifts

Klamath residents, who presented gifts to Governor and Mrs. Thomas E. Dewey during their brief stop here a fortnight ago, have received pleasant thank-you notes from the two expressing appreciation to the townspeople.

This is Lyman's first visit in Klamath Falls since June 1, when he won a golf match here and on his return to Medford was involved in an automobile accident which sent him to bed with a broken back and 13 fractured ribs.

SERMONS DIRECT from the BIBLE

THE BIBLE

It is generally understood that there is a God, yet in these days of skepticism we know that there is a need of teaching against the false theories of man which are against the Bible and God. Today we have many things taught as science, yet are only theories and speculations. There is no conflict between true science and truth; yet, we are living in an age when present customs, doctrines, and traditions are called in question. Even the Bible is being questioned as true; that we should cease to believe there is a God or the Bible as being His word.

The Bible must be accepted by faith. "And without faith it is impossible to be well-pleasing unto him." Heb. 11: 6. Even the skeptic must live by faith. Every time he accepts a piece of money he exercises faith in the government behind it. When we read history about such men as George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, &c., it must be accepted by faith.

Consider the following from George D. Shepardson, A. M., M. E., Sc. D., late professor of electrical engineering, University of Minnesota. (The Religion of An Electrical Engineer. Page 38.) "The mind of the electrical engineer at once reverts to the fact that we cannot see electricity, nor do we hear, taste, smell, or feel it directly, yet we have a good deal of knowledge about it—Electricity has long since become a relatively exact science and art, notwithstanding the fact that electricity is not directly manifested to a single one of our commonly recognized senses. We use it to light our homes with and cook our meals, still we accept some things about it as matters of faith. He who denies faith must reject or refuse as facts everything which he himself has not observed."

It takes more faith to disbelieve the Bible than it does to believe it. The account of man's creation and beginning of life in Genesis is much more reasonable than any man's theory. Read the statements made by some present day scientists.

Huxley. "Science cannot solve the problem of the beginning of life."

Darwin. "Living things come only from the living things." (After nearly a thousand experiments with infusions).

Prof. Dana, Renouned Geologist. "Science has no explanation of the origin of life."

The faith of the strongest skeptic is weak in his theories; on the other hand the testimony of Christians is without a doubt. Notice the examples given below.

Darwin. "It is unreasonable to believe"—

Paul. "I know in whom I believe"—2 Tim. 1: 12.

Come and study this great book with us. Sunday Bible classes from 10 to 11 a. m. Evening service, 7:45; mid-week service Wednesday, 7:45.
