Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

THE one-time Klamath mayor, Willis Mahoney, bobs up in the news with a challenge to his U. S. senatorial contest opponent, Guy Cordon, to debate the relative merits of Roosevelt and Dewey from the same platform.

EPLEY

What most people are interested in, so far as this senatorial contest is concerned, are the relative merits of Guy Cordon and Willis Mahoney. Dewey and Roosevelt seem to be doing quite well talking for themselves.

Guy Cordon, it appears, is running for the U. S. senate as Guy Cordon, a man with a record and a reputation on which to base a senatorial candidacy. Willis Mahoney is running, or maybe just trotting, with a firm grasp on the Roosevelt coat-tails, evidently pinning all hopes on the record and reputation of Roosevelt, rather than Mahoney, to get him the votes.

Quite understandable is the suggestion for a debate that will divert attention from comparisons between the senatorial candidates themselves. But the latter happens to be rather important to the voters who will decide this contest.

Off the Track

SPEAKING of keeping to the fundamentals in our political contests, it is well for us to hold in mind the duties and responsibilities of the officials to be elected, and to choose our local candidates on the basis of their plans and qualifications to discharge those particular duties and responsibilities.

The candidates should tell us about that. There seems to be some tendency to stray.

SENATOR CORDON VISITS KLAMATH

United States Senator Guy Cordon of Roseburg, paid an all-day visit to Klamath county Saturday, ending his stay with a scheduled address at the Veterans Memorial hall at 8 p. m. Senator Cordon, campaigning in the interests of his candidacy to succeed himself, will speak at 6:15 p. m. Saturday over KPJI.

All interested persons are invited to hear Senator Cordon tonight, Saturday, when he speaks under the auspices of the Veterans' Republican club.

Senator Cordon has scheduled a last minute visit to Klamath Falls before the November election when he will contact the eastern Oregon country. He spent the noon hour Saturday at the Westinghouse Timber company visiting with men there.

At tonight's session, Senator Cordon said he would discuss legislation which has been passed out of congress to return veterans, referring particularly to the GI bill. He will also bring up the question of veterans' preferences in other legislation, notably the surplus property disposal act.

This act, among other things, gives a preference to vets for the purchase of family sized farms in all areas purchased by the government for military purposes and thereafter declared surplus, Cordon explained. Senator Cordon is accompanied to Klamath Falls by State Senator Marshall E. Cornett, who is managing the incumbent's campaign.

A Vacation Observation From Idella's

Idella was driving our little car— Her thoughts musta been far away, When a big transport truck snuck up behind And let his big horn bray. Idella jumped like she'd been shot, The car darn near went in a spin, While mamma shouted "You big thus and such, I'd like to kick your big teeth in."

An easy way out, for those who like their own firesides, or hunting trips, or golf, or something else that makes it inadvisable for them to work for their community, is to pay off in cash.

The War Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

FEW battles for cities in this war have so intrigued the peoples of the western allies as that over ancient Aachen, probably because they hope that from it they can learn the strength of Germany's determination and the extent of her ability to make a finish fight.

It's likely that this grim battle will indeed give us a fairly accurate answer to the problem—which is both military and psychological. Already it is clear that Hitler intends to make this a test case, as witness the manner in which he has flung crack armored troops into the conflict at the approaches to the old town. Thus we have further confirmation that he is determined to hang on to the death, and still is capable of causing us plenty of trouble.

On the other side of the Nazi ledger is proof that not all German soldiers or civilians are willing to die for him. His officers in Aachen have been shooting both civilians and soldiers who tried to surrender. However, that's not conclusive, and further evidence is needed to enable us to gauge the dictator's control over his people.

Berlin brags that the Nazi commander who rejected the American ultimatum to surrender replied: "Even an American cannot ask a city like Aachen, where thirty-seven German emperors were crowned, to surrender." Passing by the thought that we not only can but did demand surrender, we find much food for thought in this line.

The Hitlerite commander would have been correct if he had said: "Germany cannot afford to surrender a famous old city like Aachen—the first important city to be attacked by land forces in the fatherland proper since the days of Napoleon." The loss of Aachen will be a tremendous shock to German morale—so great that Hitler dare not risk it if he possibly can hang on. If by hook or by crook he could build out of it an epic of German resistance, it would strengthen morale.

By the same token, the allies need Aachen for the psychological effect on the Germans. But that's only half the story. Militarily this city is of great importance to both sides. For the allies it's the gateway to the corridor leading from Belgium into Germany—a vital railway and highway center. For the Germans it's a powerful defensive anchor in their Siegfried line.

push to Bologna, yesterday captured Coreglia, five miles northwest of Bagni di Lucca.

The fresh Brazilian force more than doubled the total Brazilian troops in Italy and included the first Brazilian air force to arrive in Italy.

Fight Up Hill

American troops fought their way up hill 482, about nine miles southwest of Castel San Pietro, on the Bologna-Rimini highway. Farther west, Poggio, about a half mile north of Monterenzio, was taken.

Along highway 85, the main road north of Bologna from Florence, there was intense fighting as American units seized some high ground east of the road. The Germans fanatically defended a hill north of Livernano.

West of the highway American units pushed forward about two miles and captured Mount di Bambiana.

POLISH REGIMES MAY COLLABORATE

concerning the joint meeting, but it was expected that Mikolajczyk's next move would be a second session, possibly today, with leaders of the soviet-sponsored Lublin Polish committee of liberation.

Even before the premier went to the Kremlin last night one source expressed confidence that a good blueprint would be drawn there for final settlement of the differences that have kept the London exile government and the Lublin committee at odds for months.

Chief Difference

The chief difference between the two Polish groups appears centered on the 1935 national constitution. The Lublin group wants it abandoned. Mikolajczyk, although not offering to renounce the constitution, suggested to the Lublin committee two months ago that his government be reorganized on the basis of five major political parties, including communists.

The Lublin group wants the Polish president, Wladyslaw Rakiewicz, shorn of his powers and the appointment of the Lublin commander in chief, Col. Gen. Rola Zymierski, as head of all Polish armed forces.

OFFICER, WRA MAN DISAGREE ON JAPS

AUBURN, Wash., Oct. 14 (AP)—Cmdr. Melvin H. McCoy, navy survivor of the Bataan "march of death" from a Japanese prison camp, and R. B. Cozzens of San Francisco, west coast assistant to Dillon S. Myer, director of the war relocation authority, gave verbal approval and disapproval to actions of the Remember Pearl Harbor league last night.

McCoy told the league, formed to prevent return of Japanese and Japanese Americans to the Puyallup and White River valleys, that trouble would likely arise if veterans returned from the Pacific to find their homes still surrounded by Japanese.

"I believe it would be better if the Japanese remained away. If they return, they will undoubtedly be discriminated against and people in that category are not apt to be good loyal citizens," McCoy said.

Cozzens, however, reminded the audience of the "thousands of Japanese whose certificates denounced the Emperor of Japan."

"Some of them are serving in the United States army. Four American-born Japanese were given honorable mention for their performance against the enemy on Saipan."

Some Statler Battlers Known

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP)—Senator Green, democrat of Rhode Island, today said that members of the AFL Teamsters union involved in the so-called "battle of the Statler" following President Roosevelt's opening campaign speech at that hotel September 23 had been identified "to some extent."

None, he said, "was a personal friend of the president." One of two navy officers who said they took part in the fracas, Lieut. (jg) Randolph Dickins Jr., told newsmen after the incident that he had been told by "standards that he had struck" a "personal friend of the president," and could expect a reprimand.
