Watch Your Behavior

By EARL WHITLOCK
More and more wounded men will be returned to their homes the next year. And maybe you might well be a little thought to how you are to behave toward them. Several suggestions are given in a recent government bulletin. Don't make a nuisance of yourself. That's the one. The wounded man refers to have you act as though nothing had happened. Be less you pay attention to his injury, the less it will seem to him like a handicap in the way he must take up. If you do not face disfigurement without showing some reaction, look away until you get control of yourself. Don't ask the boy how he got it. Let him initiate his own story without prodding you. He'll tell you the way when he gets good and ready.

Above all, you toast him when he returns. A returned man, wounded, is presented a banquet, don't present him an exhibit but as what he really is—a guest of honor.

Next Monday Mr. Whitlock the Earl Whitlock Funeral will comment on "Wish-Thinking."

Veteran of South Pacific, European Theatres Now On Duty at Air Station

A recent flyer to report to the Klamath Falls naval air station is Lt. Com. N. L. A. Berger, who has succeeded Lt. G. G. Gilmore as operations officer. Lt. Com. Berger was ordered to Klamath Falls from Washington, D. C. where he had a short tour of duty following his return from the European theater, after participating in the invasion at Normandy.
Entering the naval service in 1938 at Sioux City, Iowa, he received his training at Long Beach, Calif., and at Pensacola, Florida. Shortly after getting his wings he was assigned to the USS Yorktown, one of the navy's largest carriers, and did considerable convoy duty in the North Atlantic prior to the outbreak of the war, as a dive bomber pilot.
Following the attack on Pearl Harbor he was transferred to the Pacific where he played an important role in the raids on the Marshalls and Gilbert Islands, and later in the Coral Sea and Midway battles. For distinguishing himself by extraordinary heroism in connection with military operations against the enemy he was awarded the Navy Cross, which ranks second only to the Congressional Medal of Honor.

On one occasion his ship was sunk while he was out on a flight, and he was forced to seek the haven of another carrier's deck and landed safely with a minimum of fuel.
For nearly a year he was in London as naval aide for air to Vice Admiral Allan Kirk, assisting in planning the operation of D-Day. As aide to Admiral Kirk, he was aboard the USS Augusta, flagship of the invasion fleet, and participated in landing operations of thousands of allied soldiers on the Normandy beachhead, on D-Day.

Commander Berger, in addition to the Navy Cross, wears the Presidential unit citation ribbon with one star, as well as various campaign ribbons.

Low Costs, Better Service Promised In Postwar Stores

PORTLAND, Oct. 16 (AP)—Oregon food merchants promised lower prices, more courtesies and many service improvements for the postwar merchandising world at today's session of their third annual war food conference here.

A. J. Falk, president of the San Francisco chamber of commerce, said Sunday that "public works are stopgaps which can be used, but the real job ahead must be done by industry and labor."

Speaking on the period of transition from war to peace economy, Falk declared: "We must depart for all time from the theory that labor is a commodity to be bought and sold. Good wages for a fair and competent day's labor calls for fulfillment of obligations on both sides."
