

SECOND TRY FOR ALL-OUT WAR DECREE

part are resolved to carry out the second large scale mobilization of our people," the Hitler decree said.

The bottom of the Nazi manpower barrel already had been reported scraped by "total mobilization" measures taken by Hitler, Himmler, Goering and Goebbels during the summer. That mobilization took ill and one-eyed Germans, Red Cross workers and munitions plant employees into the armed forces. There was no estimate of the number of armed men—if any—who would be raised by the new order.

Defend Soil
"This armed guard will defend our homelands with all weapons and means, insofar as they are suitable for that purpose," the Hitler decree said.

The German broadcast added that Heinrich Himmler, gestapo chief and commander of the German home army, had spoken in an unidentified East Prussian town on an occasion described as the first meeting of the armed home guard.

Legitimate Weapons
Himmler indicated that pitchforks, straightened scythes, pikes and swords would be considered legitimate weapons for the home guard.

Under Hitler's decree, all "military laws" would be issued by Himmler and "political laws" by Reich leader Martin Bormann.

Describing this people's army as "not a preparation for defeat, but for victory," the Berlin station said:

Part of Army
"The significance of the German Volksturm becomes obvious when the possibility of breakthroughs in our fighting front or airborne landings in our hinterland are taken into account."

The home guard army will be part of the German army, the broadcast said, adding that "they will wear no uniform, but will be marked by armband in accordance with international law."

C of C Here Leads State In Expansion island, shooting up Jap transport, breaking up Jap columns and smacking Jap airfields.

THE home political front gets hotter and hotter. On both sides, noses are being bloodied, eyes being blacked. The speeches are getting down to the point of "sassing each other back."

All in all, that's a good sign rather than bad, indicating that our people are beginning to realize the FUNDAMENTAL importance of the issues involved in this election. A polite campaign nearly always means that the issues don't amount to much and the public and the candidates alike KNOW it.

The constitutional convention, where the future of America was charted by the founding fathers, was no tea party. Lincoln's 1860 campaign, where the long-smoldering slavery issue burst finally into flame, was hot and angry.

THERE is some danger that in the nose-punching, thumb-chewing and ear-biting that will enliven the remainder of the campaign too many voters may become confused and lose sight of the issue that COUNTS.

To this writer, the BIG issue is perfectly plain. It is TOO MUCH POWER held in the same set of hands TOO LONG.

TOO much power held in the same set of hands too long has been the downfall of democracy all over the world, all down through history.

It was so in ancient Greece. It was so in ancient Rome. It just seems to work that way. TOO MUCH POWER held too long WARPS MEN'S MINDS like the dope habit.

WE mustn't be narrowly partisan in these vital matters. This writer, a lifelong Republican, is clearly aware that too much power HELD TOO LONG BY THE REPUBLICAN PARTY led to abuses that brought on the too-violent upheaval from whose results we are still suffering.

area, the communique said, but there was nothing to indicate that any enemy opposition was met.

The allied command said Scarpanto was seized "in the name of the United Nations" and that the landing was not opposed. A naval communique said "Scarpanto, like other islands in the Dodecanese is ex-enemy territory."

The wording appeared intended to make clear to the Italians, who occupied Scarpanto and most of the Dodecanese nearly a quarter century ago, and to the Greeks, who already are demanding the strategic islands, that the United Nations as a whole intend to take over and administer the group until final peace settlement.

BRITONS TAKE VENRAY; GI'S MOP UP AACHEN

five miles of two Vosges passes leading to the Reich.

British second army forces captured Venray near the Maas river, and a dispatch from supreme headquarters said the Tommies had linked up a 10-mile front along the Venray-Deurne road.

The Germans below the Scheide estuary barring the water lane to Antwerp fell back under Canadian pressure. A front line dispatch said there were signs this German siege stand might be ending. Demolitions were reported in the Brekens area, stronghold of the enemy pocket, along with considerable transport movement.

COMMITTEE TO KEEP HOSPITALITY FUND

Ted Case, selective service; Fred Heilbroner, chamber of commerce; Frank Howard, county; Jim Souther, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Les Wright, Elks; Lois Serruys, Commandos.

Committeemen said they had turned over all other funds with the understanding they would not be asked for the $1000 emergency fund.

A request for $750 to be used by the Klamath military entertainment committee, was tabled at a meeting of the city council Monday night, until disposition is made of the $1000 left in the original troop hospitality fund.

Police Judge Harold Franey made the request at the suggestion of the committee but Mayor John Houston said he was not in favor of using the tax dollar until other funds were absorbed. He traced the history of the original hospitality committee, the naming of the present military entertainment group, and said he would like to "used first before we go into the tax dollar." He referred to money earmarked in the city budget for troop entertainment.

Judge Franey was asked to meet with the military committee of which C. A. Humble is chairman, and to report back before any financial allocations are made by the city.
