'Brick' Biehn, Home Again, Remembers These Things—

Yes, Brick is home, and Main street and Klamath Union high and the little community on Kane street are all within his reach again. He can pick up a telephone and call his friends, or have a coke, or buy a steak, or go to a movie, or do any one of a hundred things that he could only dream about when he was "across."

Brick is Lt. Martin Wesley Biehn, and he has been telling his friends about England.

It isn't just rumor, he says, that a great part of the English population moved into the "underground" at the time of the blitz, and with the continued bombing and then the advent of the "buzz" bomb, as the English call the robots, the communities that grew in the subways became more like permanent living quarters. Metal sleeping quarters, three high, lined every passageway, and little families brewed their tea and ate their crumpets with apparently no concern for the hundreds of persons around them, or the trains rattling by, or, for that matter, the bombs that might be crushing their city above.

Brick was in London during a night of "buzz" bombs and he says that they sound like an outboard motor, not much more than that, until the deafening explosions that have ruined over a million homes in England would shake the city.

Like all Yanks, Brick enjoyed the way the English speak, and except for the times when they talk so fast that the Americans can't understand them, it is fairly easy to get along.

Brick's description of English women is delightful. It seems that the English do not have what is commonly known as a "flair" for style. Rationing is very strict; one can't buy even a handkerchief without forfeiting ration points. The sight of a well dressed woman is really cause for the good old GI whistle. Stockings are at a great premium and cosmetics are practically non-existant.

After spending months where the people prize "anything English and anything old" modern American cities look pretty good, in fact, anything American is wonderful. "The English are very friendly, very interesting people," Brick says, "but once a Yank, always a Yank."

Of course there was lots to talk about. Brick's brother, Sgt. Bob Biehn, is also in England and the two brothers had various experiences together, seeing London, taking in the races, going to the "cinema." But those things are easy to talk about.

There is that other, that most important part of what Brick saw and did in England. It's easy to say "30 combat missions," but it's not easy to talk about to a civilian. What does a civilian have to compare? What experiences could make a civilian know what a combat mission is?

Brick said, "Some of it was pretty rough." He meant German fighters coming in from every angle, he meant flying a plane with a gunner, not three feet away, lying dead over his gun sight. He meant a sky full of anti-aircraft fire, bursting around him. He meant fog and rain and bad weather and flight out into an unknown darkness. He meant hours and days and weeks and months of flying a bomber over enemy territory. And all he says is, "Some of it was pretty rough."

But that is all he has to say. Another pilot knows what he means. A civilian can't possibly understand, anyway.

Well—three weeks' furlough isn't very long for Brick to catch up on all that he wants to do. It will be good for him to be able to take it easy for a little while.

And it's good for the community to see Brick. It gives everyone an added incentive. Down at the Pacific Supply Cooperative, where Brick's father, Charlie Biehn, is a barley roller, it gives the men something more to work for.

FUNERAL SET FOR MRS. M'ALLISTER

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon, October 27, at 3 o'clock for Mrs. Alpha B. McCallister, 74, a Klamath businesswoman, who passed away in a local hospital on October 23, after an illness of only a few days.

During her 14 years of residence in this city, Mrs. McCallister made a wide circle of friends who will miss her cheerfulness and friendliness. She was born in Gilson, Ill., January 22, 1870, leaving there in 1913, when she moved with her son to Eugene, Ore. In 1930, they came to Klamath Falls to make their home and have lived here since that time. She has made many of her friends during the past two years as manager of the Book Mart, 518 Klamath avenue.

Her only survivor is her son, Charles T. Huggins, also of this city.

Labor Split On Campaign, Report

PORTLAND, Oct. 26 (AP)—A Moscow, Ida., newspaper publisher declared today that organized labor is split wide open on the presidential campaign—with 60 per cent of the membership for Governor Dewey.

Dr. Frank B. Robinson wound up a nationwide swing interviewing workers to report that a large number of CIO members resent CIO political activity.

Many of them told him, Robinson said, that they would vote the republican ticket to defy union heads. "We didn't join the union to have its officials dictate our politics," Robinson cited as a typical remark.

Audible sound waves, so highly pitched that they are said to be "terrific squeaks," have been used successfully by two Texas scientists to kill bacteria.

Relieve that Tormenting
PIN-WORM ITCH
Too Embarrassing to Talk About!
It is no longer necessary to put up with the trouble caused by Pin-Worms. Don't let your child or yourself suffer that tormenting, embarrassing rectal itching, or take chances with the internal distress.
Medical science has now discovered a new and highly effective way to deal with this stubborn and troublesome infection. This important scientific discovery is a remarkable drug known as gentian violet. It is the vital element in P-W, the new Pin-Worm treatment developed by the laboratories of Dr. D. Jayne & Son, America's leading specialists in worm medicines. P-W tablets are small and easy to take, and they act in a special way to destroy the ugly creatures.
Watch for the warning signs: Itching nose and seat, uneasy stomach, bed-wetting, uneven appetite. Remember that now there is a treatment that works on Pin-Worms as no old-fashioned "worm syrup" or "worm candy" could. So if you even suspect Pin-Worms, get a box of P-W right away, and follow the directions carefully.
P-W means Pin-Worm relief!
