Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

THE personal going gets a bit tough on this job when we are called upon to express opinions on men and issues in the heat of an election campaign. Time was when the editorials on this page appeared anonymously, and we could escape a personal going-over when somebody was rubbed the wrong way. But a few years ago, it was decided that this writer's name and mug should appear with the column, and people know now exactly who the guy is who writes the things they like or dislike. When the irate reader takes his pen in hand, or comes in to tell somebody off, he knows whom he wants to poke.

EPLEY

We believe firmly in the theory of the signed column, and we are certain the vast majority of readers want the column to express opinions and convictions, so long as they are sincere. We are well aware that there are two sides to most questions, and that we do not have a corner on all sound arguments. We express our ideas; if they are sound, and deserve to prevail, that's fine, and of course, we are happy. But we will try always to be tolerant of honest disagreement.

During election campaigns, people take a more vigorous interest in contests between men and in controversial issues. Sometimes, we find ourselves in a position of disagreeing with or even opposing good friends and acquaintances. We hope, when that happens, that people realize we have a job to do and are doing it as best we can.

Residence of Willis Mahoney

THE people aiding in the campaign of Senator Guy Cordon probably are not seriously concerned over the statewide outcome of the contest between Cordon and Willis Mahoney, or they would be having a little fun with Willis over his forthcoming "homecoming" celebration as a Klamath county man.

Willis' name appears on the ballot as "Willis Mahoney of Klamath County." It is true that he is registered as a voter in this county, but his actual residence in this county is little more than political fiction. He registered as a voter here only last spring, just before the primary, after several years of absence during which his Oregon residence was in Portland and he lived, for the most part, in Washington, D. C. He ran for office as Willis Mahoney of Multnomah county in that period of absence from this county, and his "re-establishment" of residence here last spring consisted simply of coming to town and registering to vote. Does anybody know where his home is here?

What happened last spring was that Willis, on returning to Oregon from Washington, D. C., found out that his registration in Multnomah county had been cancelled. It was cancelled because he failed to vote, either the resident or absentee ballot, in the 1942 election.
So he came to Klamath Falls and his good friend, County Clerk Mac K. Short, registered him as a Klamath county voter.
Willis Mahoney is a likeable guy, and as a former mayor and one-time resident of the county seeking high office it is in order to give him a cheerful welcome. But the ballot item showing him as a resident of Klamath county is mighty close to subterfuge. Does any one suppose, after election, that Willis Mahoney will be actually living here, regardless of the voting outcome?

One Theme

THE Mahoney campaign for the senate is based almost exclusively on Franklin D. Roosevelt.
Mahoney campaign literature shows a picture of Roosevelt, autographed for Mahoney, and another shot of Willis leaving the White House. There are other pictures and letters to illustrate the ex-Klamath mayor's intimacies with New Deal big shots such as Wallace and Ickes. In one view, Mahoney and Wallace are having a chummy breakfast together.
Seldom has an Oregon political campaign been based so exclusively on one theme.

For Just $1000

INCIDENTALLY, any reader of this paper, for $1000, can buy acquaintanceship with Franklin D. Roosevelt, and maybe even a visit to the White House.
The newly-formed democratic "1000 club," designed to build up a $1,000,000 campaign fund for Mr. Roosevelt, offers prospective members this: "Every member should and will know our president."
Peter Edson, Washington non-partisan columnist, says: "Some of the franker approaches to prospective members have been along the line of: 'You want to get in that White House, don't you?' When the prospect indicates that he sure does, that greases the skids for the $1000 touch."

Something pops up in every political campaign to embarrass candidates it is designed to help. The $1000 club, since Tom Dewey's speech this week, appears to be in that category. Whether it turns out to be worth $1,000,000 to Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Dewey remains for the membership to determine on the morning of November 8.

Can't Be Done

WE have a letter from a reader who has tardily decided he wants to vote in the presidential election, but who failed to register. "Can I be sworn in?" he asks.
Sorry. Swearing in of voters was abandoned many years ago in Oregon, and only registrants can vote.

Appeal Rejected

WE have another note from C. L. Debenham, a local man, who is evidently a bit fed up with appeals for his vote based on the suggestion that one must "put his X right here to assure himself of a livelihood." Says Mr. Debenham:
"When I, as an American citizen, deem it necessary to trade my vote for an existence, then indeed have I lost my faith in American independence. Let us not let this happen."

Questions Answered on Action of Moon, Stars

By J. HUGH PRUETT
Astronomer, General Extension Division, University of Oregon
Answers to questions, "various and sundry," sincerely asked by readers of this column are attempted here.
1. "Does the moon rise in the west or east?" From our latitudes it always rises somewhere along the eastern horizon although some years this varies almost from northeast to southwest. The first appearance of the thin new moon in the western twilight certainly gives the impression that it rose over that horizon. But actually it came up in the east and all day trailed the sun across the sky.
2. "What is this about the moon's changing its distance from the earth during a month?" The moon's path around the earth is not a circle but an oval, or ellipse. At times it is as far as 253,000 miles from us; at others, only 221,000.
3. "When will Mercury again be in as good position for observing as it was September 23 when so near Jupiter in the dawn sky?" Not until its appearance in the western twilight around March 26, 1945. It may be seen—but less easily—in the twilight around December 4, 1944, and in the dawn around January 13, 1945.
4. "Not being sure of the north star, can I determine time north by noting the direction opposite that of the noon position of the sun?" Because of war time and the "equation of time," the sun at this time of year is about due south at 12:45 p. m. by the clock, for those who observe from a standard time meridian (90, 105, or 120 degrees west longitude). For each degree west of such a meridian add four minutes to 12:45; for each degree east, subtract four minutes.
5. "On any certain day does sunrise occur at the same time at Vancouver, B. C. and at the same longitude 1000 miles due south near San Francisco?" Only on March 21 and September 23, the times of the equinoxes, when it occurs at very nearly 6 a. m. (local time) the world over. For January 1, 1944, the times of sunrise on standard time meridians were as follows: At equator, 6:00 a. m.; at 20 degrees north latitude, 6:35; at 40 degrees, 7:22; at 60 degrees, 9:03.
6. "We read that the earth's rotation produces a centrifugal force which tends to make objects fly off into space, especially at the equator where the surface speed is over 1000 miles per hour. But they don't fly off. How come?" Gravitation downward is far greater than centrifugal force. Rotation reduces the weight of a 289 lb. man in northern Brazil by 1/289th, or to 288 lbs. If rotation speed should become 17 times greater, he would weigh nothing; if increased much more, he would be hurled from the lap of old Mother Earth and likely start for the moon.

MAHONEY'S VISIT EVENTS OUTLINED

A complete program of events for October 31, the day of the visit to Klamath Falls of Willis E. Mahoney, democratic candidate for United States senator from Oregon for the short term, was scheduled today.

Following his introduction by E. P. Ivory, chairman of the Democratic Central committee, Mahoney will speak to the group present.

Klamath's Yesterdays

From the files — 40 years ago and 10 years ago.

From the Klamath Republican October 20, 1904
A dredger is at work throwing up a dike from Payne alley to Center street, which will make possible the opening of Klamath street as far as Payne alley. This will give that end of town two good business streets instead of one. It is expected that docks and warehouses will be built along the lake front at Lake Ewauna to handle freight shipments.

From the Klamath News October 28, 1934
The central labor union has endorsed the candidacy of Republican T. R. Gillenwaters for state senator.

Klamath Pelicans lost to Medford, 20-0, at Medford yesterday.
Chet Kerslake has been named manager of the state liquor store here.

POPULAR COURAGE
EUGENE, Oct. 28 (AP)—The college of liberal arts is the most popular course among 75 World War II veterans enrolled at the University of Oregon under the G. I. bill of rights, Virgil D. Earl, dean of men, said today.

Dead Man Inside You

Yes—A dead man down inside you. Your throat is an open sepulchre and it sends up the smell of the dead. Know your Bible—Romans 3:13.
Sin struck you dead. All of us have sinned and the wages of sin is death. On the one side is the vast number—the human race—the fallen sons of Adam—dead in trespasses and sins. Set opposite them is the great host who have obeyed God, counted on Christ's blood to wash out the stain of their sin and into whose eternal life God has breathed His own eternal life. They shall never see the judgment of the lost.
But God paid high to possess them. He could not wink at their sins and receive them as they were. So he washed them in the blood of Jesus Christ—God's Son—cleanses from all sin.

NOW THE MIRACLE
Take forgiveness on the ground that your sins were put on Christ and the penalty paid. Christ who knew no sin was born into this world to become sin for us. He bore away our sins and in their place we have a wedding garment. For now God's righteousness is brought out and put on all who trust in Jesus Christ as Saviour. Romans 3:21.
But what for our hearts? How shall we come into eternal life? Here is the miracle. God acts when you embrace Jesus Christ as clearing you by His death for your sins. God breathes His life into your soul—His Spirit touches your spirit with life eternal. This is the new birth. You are born again and into the family of God. He is now your heavenly Father. As the vine sets up life in the branch, so God now sets up life in you.

ABIDE IN HIM
From now on you are to abide in Christ. To abide is to bring every known sin into the light and make confession. It is to have nothing in life that we cannot share with Him. And to take all our burdens to Christ and draw all our wisdom and strength from Him.
You are to go on in death or to choose Christ and life. Which?

Notice what Jesus told Nicodemus. "Except a man be born of the water and of the Spirit he cannot enter into the kingdom of God."
Cornelius was a good man, a man who prayed constantly, who gave much alms to the people, a devout man who feared God with all his household, but he was in a condition until he obeyed the gospel and became a Christian. He hadn't even been baptized for the remission of sins. Just measure yourself with Cornelius (Acts 10:4). It was necessary for him to send for Simon Peter to tell him what to do to be saved. Peter, after having preached to Cornelius and his household also baptized them. Christ thus making them members of the Lord's church.

If men can be saved outside the church, the New Testament is not the Word of God, but a book of falsehood. Christ's death and sufferings were in vain, and our preaching is also in vain. Therefore we have no promise of life after death.
"Let God be found true but every man a liar." (Romans 3:4).
