

Leathernecks in Shape For Coast Guard Eleven

Coach Roberts Confident Marine Grid Team Will Give Favored Pilots Battle

Holding their last scrimmage yesterday in preparation for the game tomorrow afternoon, 2 o'clock, Coach Roberts has the gridiron Leathernecks in a skull session this afternoon, giving last minute instructions on the Coast Guard Pilots.

Roberts is confident that his men are set for the Pilots and that they will give the favorites a battle to remember, as the marines are in excellent condition.

The Leathernecks were drilled on tackling and pass defense and offense this week. Their passing game has been decidedly improved, but Roberts stressed the fact that the Pilot ends are big, fast wingmen. Also, that they have some good passers, especially one top-notch hurler in Joe Haynes.

The Pilot aerial attack has produced numerous touchdowns in their previous wins, as they have averaged four touchdowns per game.

By developing better downfield blocking and passer protection, the marine team is a much smoother, more coordinated machine. This may be the tilt where the backs click on longer jaunts and passes may build a high scoring contest.

The Pilot line averages 204 pounds, out-weighting the Leathernecks by 13 pounds per man. The backfield of the two teams hit about the same.

Roberts named the marine probable starting ends to be Draven and Darnell. Draven has improved considerably since the beginning of the current season and has come up with some startling play in the last games. At the tackle posts, Preston and Taylor has been picked, with Fiore and Higgins ready, giving the line terrific power. Byrne, a consistent brilliant performer, and O'Connor are slated to open at guard. English, center, will alternate with Golden, who will probably get the nod to start. In the backfield, Bancroft and LaPaglia will most likely lead the Leatherneck parade from tailback and fullback, respectively. Currie, blocking back and signal-caller, and R. Walters, wingback, round out the initial eleven. Albritton, quarterback, J. Walters, right half, Mahan, left half, and Fadgen, full, can be expected to put in good accounts whenever called to relieve the starting backs.

Using the Bear line as a basis of comparison, the Marine and Pilot lines will be tested in this contest, as Bancroft scampered 102 yards against the Bears, while the Pilot full, Smith, charged 112 against them.

Probable Starting Lineups:

Leathernecks	Pilots
14 Dravin	REL Richardson 22
20 Preston	RFL Holmberg 23
2 O'Connor	RGL Duval 26
16 Byrne	LCR Allen 11
17 Taylor	LGR Roberts 2
15 Darnell	LOR Romano 36
25 Currie	LER Senter 14
36 Bancroft	LR Gebler 28
27 Walters	RH Tunnel 24
40 LaPaglia	Stout 31
	Smith 7

San Francisco Coast Guard Pilots Grid Eleven

This highly vaunted grid team will meet the Leathernecks from the Marine Barracks in a football tilt scheduled for this Saturday at 2 p. m. on Modoc field. The Pilots will be favored in this tussle because of their impressive record, which includes wins over the Fairfield-Suisun Skymasters, California Ramblers and Camp Beale Bears. They are also a husky lot as their line averages 204 pounds and their backfield 188.

Piluso Trys Again Tonight To Wallop Vicious "Mask"

The weekly rassing card starts booming at 8:30 tonight at the armory with newcomer Earl Malone trying out his wings for the first time in northwest mat circles in the overture bout with Tony Ross.

If Earl is accustomed to good, clean fun in his previous grappling encounters he is liable to be a trifle surprised tonight when he wades into Tough Tony or when Tough Tony wades into him, which ever may be the case.

Paavo Katonen is likely to have all he can handle when he grabs a handful of Bulldog Jackson in the semi-windup. The Bulldog has nothing but contempt for each and all of his opponents and attempts to show it by disposing of them in the shortest possible time by any means at hand.

Paavo is an extremely fast and clever grappler, however, and may attempt to rock Jackson to sleep with his famed pile-driver.

The big blow-up will see Ernie Piluso try a comeback against the man with the hardest konk in the business, the "Grey Mask." Ernie asks for nothing more than to throw the hooded heel tonight and he stands a good chance of accomplishing his purpose. He came awfully close last time and this may be the match that will find the "Mask" bested for the first time since he started touring the northwest circuit.

Wally Moss will risk his neck again as referee and rassing fans will see a top-notch card tonight.

"I" Company Cagers Hold First Place

The cagers of "I" company hold undisputed first place in the standing of the Marine Barracks post inter-company basketball league. A clicking, speedy unit, they have gone so far undefeated, winning five starts with little trouble.

The hottest among the bucket-makers is still Sgt. Burkland of "H" company who holds down an average of better than 17 points per game, as he has registered 88 tallies in five games. H.S.'s Posey and Semsky, however, are tied with the most points, 94, but they have played two more games than Burkland. Another man near the top in scoring is Money of "E" company, who has 80 points in five tilts.

USC Faces Real Test Saturday

Trojans Can Be Established As Class of Pacific Coast By Downning San Diego Gobs

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 3 (AP)—For seven weeks the hustling Trojans of Southern California have managed to escape defeat, but tomorrow the real test comes. The San Diego naval training station brings a team that has lost only to the El Toro marine base, 6 to 0. It was a rough and tough line that averages 210 pounds and a wealth of experienced backfield talent. Furthermore, the sailors are primed to whip Southern California, just as they did last season.

If Southern California can beat the invaders, and it hopes to by passing, it will have established itself as the class of the west coast college teams. The Trojans looked very good in beating the strong St. Mary's Pre-Flight outfit and even more impressive in swamping the previously unbeaten University of Washington, 38-7.

But since the previous victories the Navy has ordered Gordon Gray, a great halfback, and Marshall Rotner and Wally Crittenden, linemen, to the east coast. These three losses have hurt the Trojans considerable. The right tackle spot in the USC line is causing Coach Jeff Cravath lots of trouble.

THIS IS IT!

Tonight's the night our rippin' 'Cats' have dropped one while the strong Merrill eleven under the bulbs of Modoc field. For the records sake, we'll go back and bring the Wildcats' scores of previous games up to date. Here they are:

Wildcats 0, Henley 6.
Wildcats 13, Lakeview 14.
Wildcats 20, Grants Pass 13.
Wildcats 13, Mt. Shasta 12.
Wildcats 13, Grants Pass 7.
Wildcats 26, Tulelake 0.
Practice game.

These scores indicate that the 'Cats' have dropped one while the winners in grid counting the opening practice game, and this gets the duke as a good record in any league. In fact, we would give even dough on them over the Pelicans in their present state.

The local lads will be going all out tonight to make it victory number five for the season and we'll crawl far enough out on the prediction limb to say they'll win in a close game. Ducats for the tilt will be two bits for a chance to see, what should be, a real ball game.

GUEST DEPARTMENT

Here goes Johnny Foster again with his mysterious method of picking the football winners in grid tilts over the weekend. Johnny's been doing all right and we've been itching a little closer to him on the prediction bough each week in hopes that we can hear him muttering in his beard and get some advance dope, too.

Rain has been dropping for a couple of days and the streets are wet, the trees are wet and in some circles your grid forecaster is all wet, too.

With a long pencil and a short mind, I scribbled down my average for the season, which stands at .780, which isn't as bad as I thought.

Happy little me last Saturday when my only upset of the week came true, . . . you know, the one between Washington and California.

A prognosticator likes to be right and doesn't want to show partiality. The marine team is our own team around here, but believe you me, they meet a tough squad from San Francisco.

As a local man, I should stick to the marines and I hope they come through on top, but the Coast Guard boys will have to take my nod, 10 to 7.

My upset of the week will be the Alameda Coast Guard over California. Why I pick on a warm team like California, I'll never know. Final score in that

"I'VE GOT TO HAVE IT!..."

In the midst of their busy war-time job, railroad people are often called upon to do things not generally considered "in the line of duty." For example, there was the case of the mother whom we shall call Mrs. Parker.

Mrs. Parker was standing in the Third & Townsend Station in San Francisco that morning, waiting to board the stream-lined Daylight for Los Angeles. She had a small baby in her arms and she was obviously worried about something.

As train time approached, she grew frantic. Looking wildly about her, she saw a man in a gray uniform and rushed up to him.

"I've got to have my suitcase!" she cried. "I can't go to Los Angeles without it."

The man in gray—the stationmaster—tried to soothe her. "Where did you leave your suitcase?" he asked. "Maybe we can help you find it."

"I didn't leave it anywhere. My husband was supposed to bring it down to the station and the train's about to leave and he hasn't shown up."

"Well, that is a problem," said the stationmaster. "But maybe it isn't too serious. Lots of people travel to Los Angeles on the Daylight without luggage. It's a day train, you know."

"But you don't understand," pleaded the mother. Then she paused. "You look like a married man," she said, and leaned over to whisper something in his ear.

"Oh, I see!" The stationmaster smiled. "You go ahead and get on the train, and I'll see if we can't help you out. Be sure to tell the conductor about it and give him your name and seat number. I'll do the rest."

When the Daylight stopped at Salinas, a breathless man got aboard and handed a package to the conductor. "Here they are," he said, "and it wasn't easy. Next time they'll probably ask me to dig up a pair of nylon stockings!"

The conductor took the package to Mrs. Parker. "Here are the diapers," he said. "The stationmaster wired our man in Salinas and he got them here just in time."

Mrs. Parker and the baby couldn't say a word.

This story doesn't have anything to do with our part in the war effort. It just shows that railroads are more than trains and tracks. Railroads are people. And no matter how busy railroad people are, they still have time to be thoughtful, and understanding, and helpful.

Hammerin' Henry Set for Belloise

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 3 (AP)—Hammerin' Henry Armstrong and Mike Belloise are expected to wind up training today for the third fight between the two lightweights.

The two were to spend the afternoon visiting the Shrine hospital for crippled children, a beneficiary of part of the proceeds from their bout.

With both reported in top condition, Belloise had an extra incentive to win—a promise from his manager of a bout with Zureita, NBA lightweight champion.

Matchmaker Joe Walker announced a return bout between Jack Biddle, Seattle, and Kelly Jackson, Portland, in a six-round special event. Biddle decided Jackson last Friday.

Other six-rounders pit L. Sullivan, Portland, against Jimmy Hatfield, Los Angeles, and Eddie Weller against Speedy Pingo, Portland. Pingo was a Gadsden, Vancouver soldier, the opener.
