

Campaign Hits End Stretch; Roosevelt, Dewey Talk Tonight

By The Associated Press
The presidential campaign hit the home stretch today.
President Roosevelt and Governor Dewey are ready to turn on the oratorical steam in final major appeals to the nation tonight before settling back to await the voters' verdict Tuesday on who will be the next White House tenant.
Mr. Roosevelt winds up a day of campaigning in New England with a speech in Boston's Fenway park at 6 p. m. PWT tonight. CBS, NBC and the Blue Networks will carry the address.
Governor Dewey follows the president on the air (NBC and CBS) with an address at 7:30 p. m. PWT before a Madison Square Garden political rally.
Election Eve Message
Though these addresses will officially end the campaign, each candidate plans an election eve message to his backers.
President Roosevelt told a Bridgeport, Conn., station crowd today "I can't talk about my opponent the way I'd like to because I like to think I'm a Christian." Bidding for the 24 electoral votes of Connecticut and Massachusetts, Mr. Roosevelt scheduled other brief talks in Hartford, Conn., and at Springfield, Mass.
His train was to stop at Worcester, Mass., to pick up Senator Walsh (D-Mass.)
After his Boston appearance, Mr. Roosevelt will go to his home at Hyde Park, N. Y., and on Monday will make his customary tour among Hudson valley homefolks.
Home State Addresses
The two vice presidential candidates, Senator Harry S. Truman and Governor John W. Bricker, also close their campaigns tonight—each in his home state. Truman addresses an Independence, Mo., rally. Bricker has four speeches scheduled in Ohio.
In Philadelphia last night, Bricker asserted that Dewey is better qualified to "preserve representative government" and to serve in these capacities: winning the war, constructing a last peace and solving the domestic problems of postwar America.
President Roosevelt, he declared in a prepared speech, "has repudiated free representative government" and "is not the man to serve representative government at home or abroad."
FDR Victory Forecast
Campaigning for a fourth day in New York City, Vice President Wallace yesterday forecast the president's re-election by a popular majority of more than 3,000,000 and an electoral majority of more than 100.
"Not only will the senate be democratic, but there will be a democratic majority of more than 40 in the house," Wallace said. "This is a working majority which will enable the president to carry forward a courageous program for 60 million jobs in the postwar."
Rep. Clare Boothe Luce (R-Conn.), who had been referred to by Mr. Wallace as a "sharp-tongued glamour girl of forty," replied last night he had failed to win renomination for the vice presidency because "the administration changed half a horse in Chicago."
Gov. Earl Warren of California asserted in a radio address that "The new deal machine is being held together today by the domination of one man, not by a common philosophy of government or by any common program for the future of America."

CORNETT SETS STATEMENT IN '44 CAMPAIGN

Senator Marshall Cornett, candidate for reelection to the state senate for the seventeenth senatorial district, today issued the following statement:

I believe I owe it to the many newcomers in this district to give them a short biographical sketch of myself, together with a statement regarding a few of the things that I have stood for in the Oregon state senate.

I was born in Burning Springs, Ky., November 22, 1898, on the same farm where my ancestors had lived since 1788, and where my parents still live. After serving more than two years in World War I, I came to Oregon in 1921. I worked for the port of Astoria, after which I went to Alaska as assistant superintendent of a salmon cannery. In 1922 I was married to Olive VanDecar Byram. We came to Klamath Falls in 1926, where we bought and developed a ranch south of town, which we still own.

During the 18 years I have lived in Klamath Falls I have been active in various business enterprises as well as numerous city, county and state projects.

At present I am a member of a senate interim committee, which is making a study of workmen's compensation laws. This committee hopes to have recommendations for the 1945 legislative assembly that will give to the workers of the state greater protection and benefits in case of injury or occupational disease. I am chairman of the senate roads and highways committee, which is the largest and one of the most powerful committees of our senate. I am vice-chairman of forestry and forest products and a member of the irrigation and drainage, industries and game committees, all of which are of great importance to this senatorial district.

During my campaign in 1940, I made only one specific promise, which was that I would introduce and support a measure to reapportion this, the largest senatorial district in the state, in order that we might have more equitable representation in comparison with the rest of the state. This bill was lost in the 1941 session because I refused to trade my vote for a measure which I believed to be unfair to the majority of the people of the state, but we gained favorable press comments and I have hopes, if I am reelected, of passing this measure at our 1945 session.

During the 1943 session I supported our present tax structure which I believe to be one of the best legislative steps that this state has made in the past decade.
In approaching this contest I vow to continue my work in bringing about a reapportionment of this district and pledge myself to expend every effort within my power on the important committees of which I am fortunate enough to hold membership, in preparing for and receiving those benefits to which this large central Oregon area is entitled in the after-war years. If the people of this district see fit to return me to the position which I now hold they may be assured that I shall approach the task with an open mind and promise to give my sincere consideration to every measure presented and shall work for and vote for only those measures which will benefit the majority of this district and the state of Oregon and help to avert the chaotic conditions which prevailed after the last war. My platform is not one of promises, but is rather a platform based on my past record, which is open for all to study.

Curfew Ordinance Slated In Portland

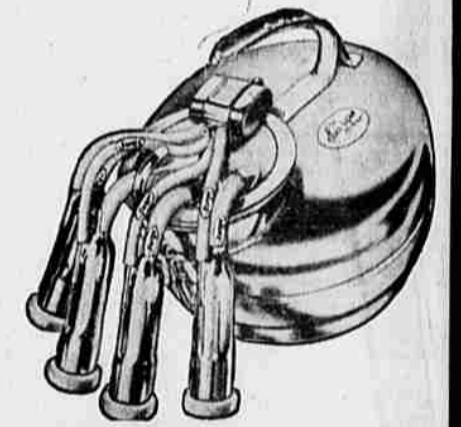

PORTLAND, Nov. 4 (AP)—Inspired by recent complaints that "spook" shows were keeping children on the streets all night, Mayor Earl Riley has presented a measure to the city council which would place upon parents the responsibility for enforcing the curfew law.
Under the ordinance, any parent or guardian permitting a child to violate the curfew law would be breaking the law.
Juvenile authorities would handle any child whose parents can't control his actions.
