Homemaking Highlights

From the Office of the Home Demonstration Agent Winnifred K. Gillen

"Eat a Good Breakfast to Start a Good Day" is not only the title of the new breakfast leaflet being issued from the home demonstration agent's office, but is an excellent piece of advice to every man, woman and child of us who eat to live... and who among us does not? The pamphlet contains interesting menu suggestions, such as broiled tomatoes, browned left-over oatmeal slices or other cooked cereal, and fruit combinations... it even suggests that an old-fashioned shortcake of split biscuit and fresh fruit might be a welcome variation in the breakfast menu. These leaflets are being distributed to the school youngsters of the city and county and are available without charge at the HDA's office in the postoffice.

The release of wood and coal burning stoves from the "rationed" list is only a part of the increase to be made available to civilians, according to Department of Agriculture advices. Other items which will appear in limited quantity (as manufacturers catch up with war contracts) are: vacuum cleaners, sewing machines, lawn mowers, electric stoves and irons, other electrical appliances, oil heaters and coal stokers. Other things which are being manufactured for you and me once more are: can openers, aluminum cooking utensils, innerspring mattresses, crib springs, conversion gas burners and septic tanks. Cotton will continue to be scarce... in fact, the situation will become worse before it becomes better... but a supply of knit-cotton undergarments has been manufactured and is even making its appearance in Klamath Falls stores at this time.

Miss Mary McComb, county librarian, has consented to be our "guest artist" this week, and, in honor of the beginning of November, national book month, she has contributed this vest-pocket review of Irma Rombauer's now-famous new cookbook.

"Here is the cookbook which outdid Wendell Willkie's 'One World' last fall in St. Louis—the reason, Mrs. Rombauer is a native of that city, and this is an exceptionally fine cookbook. In place of a cookery aid as soulless as an empty cupboard, the author has made this one lively and engaging. She interpolates interesting bits about the history of a dish or makes suggestions for variations of a basic recipe in much the same manner as she would in conversation. The unusual and most helpful feature of the book is that the ingredients of each recipe become a part of the directions. Each ingredient is mentioned at the right point as it is used, without repetition. Appearing for the first time in this new and revised edition are chapters on sugarless and sugar-saving recipes for wartime use, correct table service, the use of leftover food, and dressings for vegetables. Calorie charts, menu planning, and invalid cookery are additional helpful features. The book is one of those to be found in the homemakers' section of the library.

Speaking of recipes: here's one from the State College bulletin titled "Let's Have Fewer Colds," which is currently in use by County Extension Units in their study groups. It is said to be a great favorite of the head of the house, as well as a healthful and timely salad dish.

Cabbage and Green Pepper Salad
4 cups cabbage, finely shredded
1 teaspoon onion juice
1 chopped or thinly sliced green pepper
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 teaspoon salt
2/3 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar
To the cabbage add the green pepper, dash of pepper, Mix vinegar, salt, sugar, onion juice and celery seed together and mix well with the cabbage. One tart red apple diced may be used in place of the pepper and the fresh celery used in place of the celery seed.

The list of instructive bulletins at the home demonstration agent's office is a growing one, and among the later ones to go into the files are: "Recipes for Meat Rationing," "Meal Planning Under Rationing," "Winter Salads and Salad Dressings" (bet you'd like to eat and serve the beautiful jellied beet salad contained in this "Sweet Rolls and Coffee Cakes" (also being used by Unit members this month) "Newer Methods with Oregon Vegetables," "Oven Meals," "The Carried Lunch," and "Wartime Desserts." Then, there is the newly prepared correspondence course for new mothers which will be sent to anyone with a new baby or who is expecting one, free of charge, with accompanying booklets on baby care by acknowledged experts. If you are confronted with an un-answered problem in homemaking, why don't you call or write to your homemaking expert... the home demonstration agent, box 645, Klamath Falls, room 208, Postoffice.

clusively elected for a fourth term, we will move ON in the general direction in which we have been moving for the past dozen years—that is to say, toward centralized, bureaucratic, one-man, one-party-dominated government more nearly resembling the European than the traditional American pattern.

Decisive re-election of President Roosevelt for a fourth term will be accepted as a MANDATE to continue in that direction.

Dewey's election will be accepted as a mandate to retain and strengthen the distinctive American ways.

MEDIUM-SIZED and small business knows what it wants. It wants the AMERICAN way. BIG business, oddly ISN'T so certain. It has found that it pays to PLAY ALONG with the crowd in power.

Therein lies one of our GREAT dangers.

BIG labor, as this writer sees it, is thinking substantially like certain elements of big business, saying to itself: "We've DONE ALL RIGHT under the New Deal. We'd be FOOLS to change."

What little labor (meaning by that the workers at the bottom who pay the dues) is thinking this writer doesn't know—for as a general rule the average, ordinary dues-paying worker has been KEEPING STRICTLY SILENT.

THIS, however, is substantially true: If President Roosevelt is re-elected for a fourth term, we will move FARTHER TOWARD the complete closed shop rather than AWAY from it.

Does the dues-paying worker at the bottom want the complete closed shop? If he does, he should vote for FDR—because, after all, we SHOULD vote for what we believe in and WANT.

If you are satisfied with the directions in which we are traveling, you should vote for a fourth term for President Roosevelt. If you aren't wholly satisfied and think a change would be good for the country, vote for Dewey.

That about summarizes it.
