News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON
WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—This is the day when everyone starts laying down the adjectives quietly and begins acting nice. There is less cause for the quadrennial metamorphosis this time than usual. It has been an unusually clean campaign.

Of course, the frenzied few managed to call each other liars, but not many proved it, and after all anyone in politics is supposed to be a liar these days, so the charge is hardly sensational.

As a matter of fact I achieve the distinction of being called a liar by four or five of my 20,000,000 readers (circulation going up) for having quoted Mr. R. as saying in his Boston speech that he would never send our boys abroad in foreign wars (the same as now raging).

They thought he added the words "unless attacked." He didn't. Not in the Boston speech, although he may have added it in some other remarks. I just told those readers to apply to a New York newspaper which offered some thousands of dollars to anyone who could prove the president contrived an out for himself carefully and slyly in the Boston address, and as far as I know no money has changed hands.

Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY
WE'VE been intending for several days to tell something of our deer hunting experiences, in response to many inquiries which followed a notation on the front page the other day that Epley was out scaring deer. Politics has delayed our report.

Well, we didn't scare any deer seriously. One large buck appeared suddenly on the skyline in front of us, and we were probably as badly scared as he was. He had disappeared around the corner of a rimrock before we remembered we were supposed to shoot at antlered deer when we saw them.

The camping was great. So was the eating and drinking and friendly little games in the evening. But the hunting was terrible, it was agreed by all hands, including veteran nimrods who took this neophyte along to open gates. Whether the lack of shooting opportunity should be blamed on last year's doe season or this year's weather was a question lengthily discussed but never decided around the campfire.

But there was nothing the matter with the country. "This is great deer country. Keep your eye peeled," was the inevitable expression as we came in sight of rock flats, mahogany thickets, or great areas of slick-leaf in a big burn. It was great deer country, all right, but very few deer came within range of our well-peeled eye.

Furthermore, it was just plain great country—the wide open spaces of Klamath, with pine woods, and rimrocks, and aspen-filled canyons, and lonely clearings, and long purple distances—worth the long hikes and the wet feet and all that without the deer. But don't get us wrong—venison from the freezer would have helped bring up pleasant memories.

Case of Mr. Bussman

AT last night's council meeting, Councilman A. H. Bussman's right to hold his office was challenged by Mayor Houston, on the ground that Mr. Bussman has moved outside the ward he represents.

We are not sure of the legal situation, and will reserve discussion of that for a later time. But on the face of it, it is plain that Mr. Bussman has not been treated fairly in this matter.

Mr. Bussman moved from his ward in June, and so informed the council immediately. He was asked by the council to remain as a member until the election and his successor can qualify.

Five months later, after an incident in which Mr. Bussman disagreed with an administrative department, the question of his right to hold office is raised. If he cannot hold office legally now, he could not hold it back in June when all hands agreed that he should stay on the council and there was no objection from the city attorney.

Mr. Bussman's views on any particular subject certainly do not affect his legal status. The tardy challenge is most unfortunate, and certainly it should be made clear to the public that Mr. Bussman did not attempt to hide his change of residence from official view or to stay on the council if not legally qualified to do so.

Worth Considering

REGARDLESS of the outcome of today's mayoralty election, and regardless of what kind of administration the city gets in the ensuing term, it occurs to us that it is time for Klamath Falls to consider a change to the council-manager form of government.

Under that system, the council would be elected as at present, and will do the legislating and policy-making for the city. It would hire a trained administrator, much as a school board hires a superintendent, to administer the business of the municipality. The mayor would be the chairman of the council, elected by it, with the job probably passed around from year to year.

A farsighted mayor should have no objection to the people of the city considering such a plan, even though he might be against its adoption. We mention it at this point, prior to the counting of votes in the election, because we do not think the idea should be advanced as opposition to any one administration, but rather on the basis of a long-term view of what would be the best for business-like handling of the city's affairs.

Alien Sentenced On Assault Charges

K. Shimada, Japanese alien living at the Tulalake WRA center, was sentenced to 90 days in jail yesterday after a hearing at Alturas on charges of assault while armed with a dangerous weapon.

Shimada knifed another resident of the center, Toshikazu Terazawa, in the course of an argument. Terazawa, with a deep gash in his face, appeared in court as a witness at Alturas. Superior Judge A. K. Wylie pronounced sentence after Shimada pleaded guilty.

Over-Emphasis

THE newsmen here who follow such things closely say the best campaign speech was made by a movie actor, but newsmen are accustomed to overemphasis. They make a living at it.

I always had thought movie actors were like Orson Welles, who conducts himself preposterously, as if he did not expect anyone to think he was genuine, and behaves generally as a latter day John Barrymore, in a more childlike sort of way.

The mere sight of his cherubic countenance enrages me more than anything except possibly the enigmatic physiognomy of a person called Sinatra who seems to have a hold on some adolescents which I do not understand. It certainly is not sex appeal, a quality which I generally recognize in an instant. It must be psychic in some peculiar publicity aspect (I suspect Steve Hannegan, who created the national hallucination that the girls in Miami are bathing beauties, whereas they generally are four to five feet wide, is behind him).

At any rate, they say the best campaign speech was made by Gary Cooper. He got up before the microphone as a Montana boy instead of an actor and said out there people were generally known by the company they keep, and he did not like Mr. Roosevelt's company. Just that.

What is more sensational he wrote it himself and only three words were changed in the script. That is probably why it sounded good. A sincere or genuine thing offered in this fiction world we live in stands out like a mountain.

Evenly Divided

HOLLYWOOD apparently never has been so evenly divided before, but then neither has the country. I thought the actors always spoke out according to what their bosses wanted, but they say this was not entirely true this time. Some of the actors insisted on speaking for what they actually believed.

Apparently the political charm which Mr. R. has held over the country that anyone who did not agree with him was a sort of devil or reactionary has been broken. This is the outstanding development of the campaign.

For Mr. Roosevelt I would say his campaign exhibited an amazing self-courage. He spoke from a wheelchair at the teamster dinner and had to sit down while speaking at the foreign policy association.

Although these facts were recounted in the newsreels so any eye could see, the newspapers never mentioned the facts to my knowledge, although these facts had nothing to do with his permanent disability as he always had stood before for his speeches. The republicans were certainly more than gracious to him in this respect, and so was the press.

Clean Campaign

FOR Governor Dewey I would say he conducted the cleanest campaign of my generation. I think he got in a little too much of the "me too," but so did Roosevelt. (He seized the Dewey platform—free enterprise, incentive capitalism, etc.)

It seems that if either of them found a good idea, the other would come out for it immediately. Dewey even got around to endorsing the fair employment practices committee which has not practised what its name implies, but has followed muscling-in methods on the political line of the Marshall Field publications (I understand PM's true circulation is only 40,000 which may indicate how unpopular that line really is.)

But Dewey got all his facts straight and showed himself to be the careful investigator which he is. No one tossed him around (the methods of the Ickes crowd of frenzied few being obviously less popular this time.) In general, Dewey narrowed the campaign down with his "me-toos" to the point where he presented the case that—everything else being about equal, he proposed an honest government without revolutionary changes. If you vote for that today, I think you will get it.

Armistice Breakfast Stated by VFW

Every year since World War I, members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars assemble on Armistice day for their annual Armistice Day breakfast. The breakfast will be held this year in the banquet room at the Wi-Na-Ma hotel at 8 a. m. All members of Pelican Post No. 1383 are invited to attend, and are requested to phone in their reservations to J. N. Brochtrup, 4485, evenings, or to Walter Thompson, 7488, days or evenings.

Members wishing to attend this breakfast should make reservations as early as possible.

Klamath, Merrill Moose Slate Dance

The Loyal Order of Moose of Merrill and Klamath Falls are sponsoring a benefit dance at the Merrill community hall, Armistice night, November 11.

Music will be furnished by the marine orchestra, and the entire proceeds will be donated to the USO.

All servicemen who are members of any Moose lodge, will be admitted free of charge with their wife or girl friend.

Tickets are on sale at the chamber of commerce, and the Moose hall, 1010 Pine.

Mack Ruff Returned To San Quentin

Mack Ruff, 25, SP employe at Dunsmuir, whose two daughters were killed, October 10, from a single bullet from Ruff's deer rifle in the hands of their younger brother, was returned to San Quentin last week for violation of parole.

Word from Dunsmuir said that Ruff was charged with forgery. He had previously been sentenced on a fictitious check charge.

FIFTH HOLDUP

PORTLAND, Nov. 7 (AP)—Portland had its fifth store hold-up in four days last night when two armed men robbed the Nick Karafotias grocery establishment of $65—after first demanding cigarettes.

Georgia Lekas, clerk, said the men waited for the store to clear of customers before entering.

What Is Baptism?

The word "baptism," which comes from the Greek word "baptizo," means to submerge or immerse. One need only to consult any Greek lexicon or any Greek scholar to verify this definition.

Such a thing as sprinkling or pouring water upon a candidate is no more Scriptural baptism than if one were to just merely look at the water and call that baptism. No where in the New Testament do we have any example or even an intimation that any one was ever baptized without being immersed.

Let us notice a few Scriptures which show beyond a doubt that baptism as practised in New Testament times was immersion.

Jn. 3:23 "And John was also baptizing in Enon, near to Salim, because there was much water there." (Sprinkling or pouring does not require MUCH WATER.)

Jn. 3:5 "Except a man be born of the water and of the Spirit he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." (When one is born of water, then, in baptism, he has the promise of the Holy Spirit. Acts 2:38,39.)

Matth. 3:16 "And Jesus, when he was baptised, went up straightway out of the water." (Sprinkling or pouring does not require one to go into the water or to come up out of the water.)

Acts 8:38 "And he commanded the chariot to stand still; and they both went down into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptised him." In this case both the preacher and the candidate went down into the water. Certainly, sprinkling or pouring does not require this much.

Rom. 6:4 "We were buried therefore with him through baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised from the dead through the glory of the Father, so we also might walk in newness of life." (Certainly sprinkling or pouring neither take the place of a burial for one when he dies, nor can it be substituted for the burial that takes place in the watery grave when we die to our old life of sin by repentance, and wish to be resurrected to walk in newness of life with our Master.)

Friends, have you been Scripturally baptised? Remember, Jesus said, "He that believeth and is baptised shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be condemned."

—RAYMOND I. GIBBS, Evangelist.

HIGHWAY GROUP SETS SURVEY OF FORT ROAD

The Oregon state highway department will make a survey and call for bids on the Old Fort road from Alameda to the city limits, in order to link that stretch with the new Marine Barracks road, it was announced Monday night by City Engineer E. A. Thomas.

It will be the duty of the city to maintain the section following construction which will take place when weather permits, the engineer stated. Thomas also advised the council that the county engineer would grant use of the bulldozer to work at the city dump grounds.

Charles Finch of the Junior chamber of commerce was granted permission to place wrecked cars on prominent street corners in order to call attention to the chamber's safety drive next week.

Fire Chief Keith K. Ambrose advised the council that the big truck needed repairs which he had ordered and his action was approved by the group.

FOR SERVICE MEN

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor)—There have been a number of letters published in your paper touching upon the marines, sailors and other servicemen and women in this vicinity. Some of them have been harsh and critical of our defenders. It seems to me this is deplorable.

I know from four and one-half years in the infantry in the Spanish war and World War I, that one man in uniform who commits an offense, can bring down condemnation on a whole regiment. It must be remembered that whatever little slips, if any, the servicemen have made in this vicinity (I feel that very few have been made by them here), have been made by less than one-quarter of one per cent of all of the service people here. These men are fighting our battles and standing between us and cruel and powerful enemies, and many of them have gone through the red hot fire of numerous battles. Let us not assume the attitude towards the servicemen that was so glaringly apparent in some other communities hard by before the servicemen were moved to the fighting fronts overseas.

The marines, sailors and other servicemen in this vicinity, are fine chaps and let us, even though they remain with us for years, continue to be nice to them and show them, as good Americans should, that we appreciate what they are doing for us. In another community hard by where a division was quartered, it came to pass that scarcely one of the citizens would pick up a serviceman and give him a ride. That condition is fast becoming prevalent here. Men and women who in political, patriotic and other gatherings, will shout and loud about patriotism and wear the flag on their sleeves, will drive by a serviceman at a high rate of speed and refuse to give him a ride, though with plenty of room. I do not guess about this. I have seen it happen repeatedly, and, of course, I do not like it.

Let us get right with ourselves and the servicemen in this matter, and stay right, so that the same spirit and feeling will prevail here as prevails around San Francisco Bay area.

Respectfully submitted,
J. H. CARNAHAN.
