Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY
Among the measures voted on at Tuesday's election were two old-timers which carried in this balloting after defeats in previous elections.

EPLEY

One was the measure which removes double liability against state bank stockholders. This measure, stating that it did just that, was defeated some time ago by an electorate which must not have understood the situation.

Another measure that lost out before but passed this time permits the counties, if they wish, to set up the county manager form of government.

Under this measure, the legislature can now set up the legal basis for a county manager government for those counties which wish to undertake it, just as cities have been privileged to do for many years.

School Support
In no Oregon county, we are sure, was there a more effective campaign for the state school support bill than was put on in this county.

Parent-Teachers association and school teachers, who gave this amendment strong support, are no doubt greatly disappointed at the outcome. They can find some gratification, however, in the fact that the campaign did much to sell the principle of strong general state support for schools, and that the opposition was not based so much on the principle as on the particular provisions of this measure.

The legislature, it seems to us, might well consider the evidences of public sentiment on this matter in the adoption of school support legislation. Many of the most outspoken opponents of this measure based their argument solely on the fact it was a constitutional amendment, and that such legislation should be advanced through statute rather than constitutional changes.

Veterans' Help
Oregon people showed their strong sentiments for doing all possible for GI Joe, in passing the two veterans' aid measures on the ballot.

The loan program, which had less justification than the educational aid, barely went through. Those who voted against it did so largely because the GI bill of rights, enacted by congress, aims at the same objective, and it is unlikely this Oregon measure would have been submitted had the GI bill been passed when the legislature referred the state law to the people.

Education aid received more generous support, due to the fact that the GI bill seems inadequate in aid for certain veterans. For the most part, however, the GI bill is more generous, and most veterans will probably go the federal, rather than state, route for education aid.

Other Measures
The bill to provide generous annuities to all persons over 60, financed by a gross income tax, received quite strong support, although it was defeated by a majority of more than 40,000.

The measure in itself was not deserving of passage, but its sincere supporters nevertheless made themselves felt for the good cause of proper care for old people.

Sales tax took another beating, and a bad one, this time. The sales tax bill on the ballot was the best yet proposed, but the support was not properly organized, and sales tax should be offered again only as a part of a general revision of the whole state tax structure.

The Burke liquor bill, passed by the legislature and referred, deserved to stand, as it did. Likewise, Oregon voters acted wisely in authorizing the legislature to adopt legislation covering the voting privileges of persons convicted of a crime.

All in all, the vote on the measures was more successful than one might suppose in view of the little showing of interest beforehand.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Stalin came through with his first strong endorsement of a new League of Nations method of keeping the post-war peace in his speech the day before election. A day earlier, the DeGaulle government of France publicly invited Mr. Roosevelt to follow the trail of Woodrow Wilson to Paris.

Most interesting was Stalin's speech. For the first time he talked as a world statesman, with the assumed frankness of the western manner and clearly without the defensive, injured tone of the isolated or suspicious nation. Primarily he told what the world does not yet realize—the great growth of Russia as a nation during this war, how her industries had been built up, her varying intellectuals and substrata classes and nations moulded into a patriotic whole for the first time in history.

Simply Factual
How different, clear and simply factual his words are in comparison with the utterances dinned into our ears by those in this country who lead the minds of our people back into the past and make us believe Russia is a sensitive sort of backwoods nation which needs help, and must not be offended by anything we say or do in our own interests.

His suggestions for the peace show equal realism and similar contrast to those of our own people who have been telling us all we need is their formula for the new league, without reservations, and peace will follow automatically forever.

Realizes Power
The thoughts I reach from the speech are these: Russia under Stalin fully realizes her great new power, is preparing to exercise it realistically in the new world. Her interest in the international organizations is as great or greater than ours because the new setup will defend her newly acquired great power, and perpetuate the status quo of this war as the old league sought to perpetuate the wholly different status quo of the last one (Anglo-French world power then.)

Other Measures
The bill to provide generous annuities to all persons over 60, financed by a gross income tax, received quite strong support, although it was defeated by a majority of more than 40,000.

Patrol Surprises
Japs In Clearing
WITH THE 7TH INFANTRY, Leyte, Nov. 9 (AP)—A small patrol under Lt. William Frost of Wortham, Tex., walked unexpectedly into the center of 40 Japanese sitting in a clearing, chatting.

The Americans fired into the enemy before they could scatter. On the way out of the jungle the Americans were ambushed by the survivors of the group but PFC Donald Burgess of Boring, Ore., and PFC Herdado Pablo of Los Angeles harassed them with automatic rifle fire.

The patrol escaped and then Burdick and Pablo made a run for it.

FAIR ENOUGH

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor)—Your pointed rebuke of Saturday prompts me to take up my pen in self-defense as I intended no implication against anyone's honesty. I was speaking in generalities and took it for granted all would understand.

As a frequent contributor to this column I wish to thank you for the many times you have allotted me space, especially during the wartime paper shortage. I am sure I would not be so ungrateful as to repay that generosity with abuse. Non-partisan in my political leanings, I always respect the viewpoints of all and sincerely regret that space did not permit me the elaboration that would have avoided this misunderstanding.

Portland Woman Fined For Violation

PORTLAND, Nov. 9 (AP)—Mrs. Lydia Bernisen was fined $25 and sentenced to 24 hours in jail by Municipal Judge J. J. Quinn here yesterday on a charge of permitting her daughter to violate the curfew ordinance.

She was the first woman penalized on that charge since the city council placed the responsibility of enforcing the curfew on parents and guardians of children.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Recipe for a V-Mail Letter
Read the other day about a G.I. overseas who received an installment notice from the income tax collector. He wrote back: 'Over here, even a letter from you is news from home.'

And remember! The backyard baseball games... the fishing trips... the picnics with the chicken sandwiches and ice cold beer.

From where I sit, the least we can do is write those V-Mail letters often—let our men know that those little things they miss so much—from the ball games to the beer—are still here, waiting for them till they come back home.

What to write about? That's the easiest thing of all. For it's the little things they dream of.

HOLY BIBLE

The Subjects of Baptism

In this Christian Dispensation only penitent believers are fit subjects for baptism. Only those who are able to believe the gospel and are willing to repent of their past life of sin are Scriptural subjects for baptism.

Nowhere in the New Testament do we read of Paul or Peter christening or baptizing babies. The apostles baptized only those who were old enough to believe and repent. Since baptism is for the remission of sins, babies are not required to be baptized. Babies are not born with "Inherited Sin" nor do they commit any sin until they are old enough to know right from wrong.

When the Ethiopian eunuch requested baptism, it was because he believed the gospel which Philip had preached. (Acts 8: 36).
