

WE BUYING OLDS ANSWER TO SHORTAGE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—Price Administrator Chester Bowles believes the answer to the current cigarette shortage is to buy as many as there is no rationing of cigarettes, "as long as a statement last week said that those who hoard are only buying their own interests. With rationing, there should be a supply of cigarettes available."

Bowles said that actual rationing of cigarettes is "completely impractical" in the present situation. He said that War Food Administrator Alton Order must be given this view.

Order, acknowledging "a bad distribution of cigarettes in this country as a result of war-time conditions," Bowles said "fears of shortages, rather than actual shortages, have contributed to the present situation."

Order reports, he continued, "that some distributors are trying to buy the public to overbuy, and that some distributors are selling to black markets."

Order said "OPA will take every possible step to fight black market operations vigorously."

Order asserted that a campaign "cannot be successful unless it has the backing of the public and the more than 1,250,000 places where cigarettes are sold."

Order urged the public to help in the following ways: (1) By seeing that no more than ceiling prices are paid for cigarettes; (2) by buying cigarettes in normal manner.

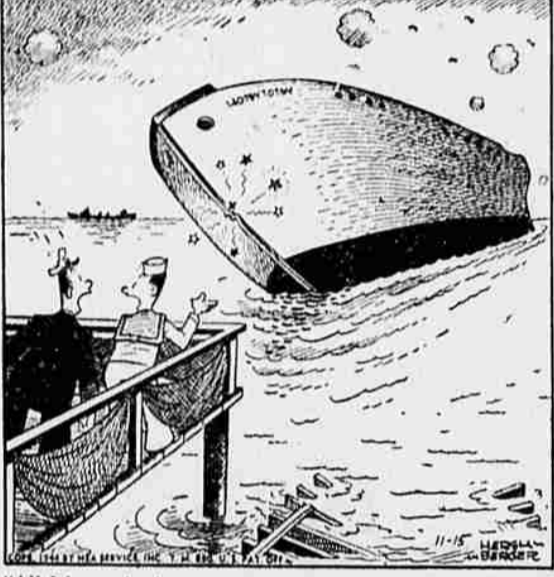

Order's statement on the cigarette situation will be the first of a series of reports from the office of the administrator. The United States armed forces abroad are about one-sixth of the country's total production in 1944, but that this had increased more than 25 per cent in the seven months of 1944.

COURT UPHOLDS WAR LABOR DISPUTE ACT

BALTIMORE, Nov. 15 (AP)—A federal court ruling upholding the constitutionality of the war labor disputes act, reported by attorneys to be the first decision on the question, has been handed down by Judge William C. Coleman.

Judge Coleman decided that the statute, also known as the Smith-Connally anti-strike law, was valid in connection with a $500,000 damage suit by a Maryland contracting firm against AFL unions and officials.

Congress had the authority, Judge Coleman held, to impose what he called the "rather mild" provisions of the act.

The ruling was made on arguments preliminary to the trying of the damage action and in connection with motions made by union attorneys in which the constitutionality of the statute was questioned.

CHANGE IN TREATY RATIFICATION URGED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—Chairman Bloom (D-N.Y.) of the house foreign affairs committee invited republicans today to help amend the constitution so that treaties can be ratified by a simple majority of congress.

This was his response to a pledge by House Republican Leader Martin, of Massachusetts, that his party's members of congress would give full support toward "the building of an enduring peace."

"Treaties should be ratified by a majority vote in both houses, instead of rejected by one-third of the senate, which leaves the direct representatives of the people without anything to say," Bloom said. "Nobody opposes the idea but a few senators."

Under the constitution as it stands treaties must be approved by a two-thirds vote in the senate. The house has no voice in treaty-making.

Have a "Coke" = ¡Adelante con la musica!

...or getting along in Guatemala
 Music makes friends among our Latin-American neighbors, just as it does here at home. There's another custom that helps make friends even faster. It's the pause that refreshes with ice-cold Coca-Cola. Have a "Coke" is an invitation of welcome as quickly understood in Guatemala as in Georgia. In many lands around the globe, Coca-Cola has become the same symbol of friendliness that it is in your own living room.
