Bobby Soxers Lift Goods From Stores

PORTLAND, Nov. 20 (AP)—Shoplifting by innocent-faced girls in bobby socks and sweaters has become a major problem in Portland retail stores, police reported today.

The Portland Retail Trade association launched an investigation after store executives reported confessions of high school youngsters that in their circles "it's smart to steal."

"Junk jewelry," are not underprivileged children. Some come from prominent families. One department store reported that out of 19 shoplifters detected in a nine-day period, 17 were juveniles. A 12 and a 14-year-old girl, detected with $150 of pilfered merchandise, told detectives they were on their way to school when one girl suggested: "Let's skip school today and go downtown and shop-lift."
