

Homemaking Highlights

Home salted nuts should be on every Thanksgiving table this year because there is such a large supply of them . . . and because it really takes very little of the homemaker's time. Although they are probably best fried in deep fat, the fat shortage will cause many homemakers to roast her almonds and peanuts by the oven or frying pan method.

Almonds should be blanched before frying, that is, immersed in boiling water, and then just simmered for three minutes. The skins will then come off easily when pressed with thumb and forefinger. Then add two teaspoons of cooking oil or melted vegetables or table fat and one teaspoon salt to each cup of nuts. Place in a frying pan over a low heat, stirring constantly until hot through.

Almonds take a little longer than other nuts, 15 to 30 minutes, usually, depending on just how you prefer them. They may be heated in a shallow pan in the oven (at 375 F.) if you wish.

Wool and wet weather go hand in hand, it seems, and if you are finding a shiny outline around the edge of winter wool skirt pleats, facing and seam edges, you might like to try the U.S.D.A. (that's the United States department of agriculture) suggestion that you use a piece of thin cardboard on the inside of the pleat when pressing. It should be as long as the pleat and three or four inches wide.

County library's Mary McComb has chosen "Mama's Bank Account" to review for homemakers this week. She says: "Mama's Bank Account" by Kathryn Forbes is a delightful book about a Norwegian immigrant family and the first years of their American life in San Francisco. It would be difficult to find in print a more heart-warming series of pictures of people, poor in this world's goods but rich in universal human goodness.

Chess pies make mighty good eating this time of year, especially if you serve 'em piping hot. One local homemaker brought me this recipe. (She tinned some to her son in service, but we haven't yet heard how they arrived).

Chess Pies
 1 cup butter
 1 cup sugar
 Juice of one lemon
 2 cups raisins, ground
 1 cup walnuts
 1 teaspoon salt
 2 eggs

Mix all together except the egg whites which are beaten stiff and added last. Bake 40 minutes in an unbaked pie crust divided into the compartments of a jam pan to form individual pies.

Collectors of miniatures, dolls, or Indian handiwork may be interested in the six-inch example of Klamath Indian art on display in the HDA office in the post office building. It is a woven tule-reed Indian maiden complete with moccasins, beads and feather head-dress. Mrs. Carrie Jackson of the Klamath Agency is the maker. She also fashions miniature canoes and birds, as well as traditional Klamath Indian baskets.

Memorial Services Held For Chaney

A large number of friends gathered at the First Methodist church at 7:30 p. m. Sunday to pay final tribute to the memory of T/Sgt. Adrian Chaney, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Chaney of this city and husband of the former Barbara Lee Jacobs of Baker, who was killed in action in the Palau islands, October 18.

The Rev. Victor Phillips gave the memorial address and the choir, directed by Andrew Loney, sang "The Lost Chord," accompanied at the organ by Mrs. John O'Connor. Lynn Bauman, U. S. navy, sang Malotte's "The Lord's Prayer." Floral gifts surrounded the base of the pulpit and these later were distributed to the hospitals. Mr. and Mrs. Lee Jacobs and their daughter returned to Baker Monday.

MEN AND WOMEN IN SERVICE

SMITH FLIES 50 MISSIONS

S/Sgt. Edward M. Smith, 4011 Bisbee, has successfully flown his 50th combat mission. As the tail-gunner on an AAF Flying Fortress in the Mediterranean theater of operations, he flew his "golden" mission on October 14, when the Forts attacked an oil refinery at Blechhammer, Germany.

Before enlisting in the air force, Smith was employed by Safeway company. He attended the aerial gunnery school at Las Vegas, Nev., where he won his gunner's wings on January 10, 1943.

He has been awarded the Air Medal with two Oak Leaf clusters, and wears the European-African-Middle East theater ribbon with two battle stars.

WINKELMAN TRANSFERRED

William H. Winkelman, son of Virgil Winkelman Sr., Southern Pacific roadmaster located in Klamath Falls, has been transferred to a naval unit afloat or to another shore station for further instruction following his graduation November 4, from the naval air technical training center at Norman, Okla.

RICHEY WEARS RIBBON

15TH AAF IN ITALY—S/Sgt. James L. Richey Jr., 26, of Klamath Falls, Ore., a veteran upper turret gunner, has been authorized to wear the war department unit citation ribbon as a member of a Liberator bomber group which has been cited "for outstanding performance of duty in armed conflict with the enemy."

Commanded by Col. Thomas W. Steed of Etawah, Tenn., the group received the nation's highest organization award for an attack on the aircraft factories at Wiener Neustadt, Austria, on May 10.
