

ANNUAL AAA ELECTION SET FOR KLAMATH

The annual AAA community election meetings, to be held next week in Klamath county communities, are doubly important to all farmers this year. Burrell Short, chairman of the county AAA committee, reminded today.

In addition to naming committees to run their farm program for the coming year, they are attending will consider methods of using AAA practice payments to get the best results in meeting agricultural problems of each community. Booked for discussion are prospective 1945 provisions for practices such as weed control, drainage, water conservation, pasture improvement and range management.

Other program features for the meeting include presentation of the latest information on 1945 production goals, and discussion of support prices and other prospects and problems for the year ahead.

Pointing out that the committees elected at the meeting will represent both farmers and the federal government in the operation of the AAA program and assignments, the chairman urged full attendance at the meetings to make sure that the selections are truly representative of the farmers in the community.

The meeting time and place will be as follows:

Fort Klamath, Civic Improvement club, 1:30 p. m., November 29; Henley-Keno-Midland, Henley grange hall, 7:30 p. m., November 29; Merrill-Malin, Merrill community hall, 1:30 p. m., November 30, and Bonanza-Valley, Bonanza grade school, 7:30 p. m., November 30.

Check Received From Washington Man For Hyslop Memorial

A check for $50 from a man in western Washington was received early in November by the state committee in charge of the G. R. Hyslop agricultural research memorial. This Washington resident wrote that he had attended a short course at Oregon State college in grain grading and seed testing many years ago and at that time had developed a great admiration for the late Professor Hyslop. Hearing that a memorial fund had been planned, he sent his voluntary contribution.

This is an example of many such expressions of appreciation of the memorial fund idea that are being received by the committee, reports Dr. D. H. Hill, secretary. County committees in nearly every county of the state are also active now in explaining the purposes of the memorial fund to the farmers and a business men.

The state committee has announced that the fund can begin operation on a permanent basis as soon as approximately $50,000 of the proposed $200,000 is in hand. This amount would provide income enough to establish one research fellowship.

Market Quotations

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP)—Stock market customers today returned from their Thanksgiving recess with a little less confidence in the bullish argument and, while scattered favorites attracted mild bids, weakening of recently buoyant aircraft handicapped buyers generally.

AIR RESEEDING OF LANDS TESTED

Airplane reseeding of burned-over eastern Oregon range lands has been given a large-scale test this year in several counties, reports Chet Otis, assistant extension specialist in farm crops at O. S. C.

One section of such land was recently seeded in less than an hour at a cost of only two cents per acre. Chamise or four-winged saltbrush, a browse plant, was seeded at the rate of one-half pound per acre in Morrow and Gilliam counties by a 250-horsepower monoplane that works at a cruising speed of 90 miles per hour. This plane took just 45 minutes to cover 640 acres.

Morrow and Gilliam county farmers have seeded crested wheat grass, common rye grass, and bulbous bluegrass on various areas, including some blow land. In some sections the seed was spread from an elevation of approximately 600 feet. Depending on the rate of seeding and the distance from the airport, the cost varied from 2 to 255 cents per acre. Usually more time was spent flying to and from the area than in actually dropping the seed.

The O. S. C. extension service and the U. S. division are watching these large-scale tests in the hope that this method will prove successful in rehabilitating thousands of acres of sagebrush and cheat grass type of range land that burn over almost every year in eastern Oregon.

Weekly Market Trend

Editor's Note: The following market information is supplied from material obtained over the government leased wire in the form of a weekly summary of trends in the market. It is not intended to replace day by day market reports.

Livestock markets in North Portland opened this week in rather strong position as to cattle and sheep, with some continued reaction shown in the hog market from the sharp advance a week ago. Fairly liberal supplies of all three kinds were offered.

CATTLE MARKETS

All of the 2200 head of cattle arriving at North Portland Monday, November 20, were offered locally. Best quality offerings were fully 25 cents higher, with a load of good fed steers bringing $15.25. Common to medium grazers were mostly $10 to $12. Top price on steers and yearlings at Chicago was $18.50, though most good and choice offerings ranged from $15.50 to $18.15.

The condition of cattle and calves in Oregon November 1 was unchanged from a month previous but a little below a year ago and 4 per cent below the long-time average for that date. In most other western states cattle and calves have continued in good condition. Oregon ranges have been in only fair condition this fall with the situation on November 1 slightly below that of a year ago and below the long-time average. Since the growth of fall feed has delayed prospects for winter pasture are only fair except in local areas along the northwest coast. Western states generally, however, have prospects of a good supply of winter feed on ranges.

SHEEP AND LAMB MARKETS

Of the 2550 head of sheep and lambs arriving Monday at North Portland, only 1600 were available locally. These sold on an active market with good to choice trucked-in lambs bringing $12.50 to $12.75. Two loads of fed lambs reached $13. Best prices reported from Chicago were $14.50 to $14.75 for good and choice native lambs. Scattered sales at Omaha were about 25 cents below last week's close.

Condition of sheep and lambs in Oregon November 1 had improved somewhat but was still lower than a year ago and below the long-time average. Less than the usual number of ewe lambs are being held over for replacement and there has been some further liquidation of breeding ewes.

Over the country generally, sheep east of the Rockies and in Texas show a higher condition than a year ago, while in the far west they are a little below last fall.

HOG MARKETS

Hog prices declined fully 25 cents from last week's close during the sale of 2700 head at North Portland Monday. Best weights brought $10, with a few down to $14.75, while those in the heavier brackets up to 350 pounds ranged from $12.75 to $14.25. Prices at Chicago declined 10 to 15 cents on smaller weights, with a top of $14.25.

WOOL MARKETS

Except for continued strong demand for choice lots of fine staple territory wools for use in army serges, the volume of sales on the Boston market was markedly lower last week than the week before. The best lots of territory fine wools have now been sold. There were no sales of northwest wools reported, but a cleanup sale of 11,000 pounds of North Dakota graded fine single wool was made at a gross price of 52.3 cents.

The Commodity Credit corporation has announced that the government wool purchase program will be extended. Details of any changes in the plan will be released around the first of December.

Our Home Town

Perry Did It
By EARL WHITLOCK

A rather interesting anniversary occurs this month. On November 24th, in 1852, a ship's anchor came up dripping with the slime of the bottom at Norfolk, Va. She was the first steam frigate of the United States Navy and she dropped down the tide and started a very unfortunate voyage. Her commander was Commodore Matthew Galbraith Perry, her name was the Mississippi and her destination was Japan.

Some few million Chinese, quite a few thousand Americans and hundreds of thousands of assorted Far Pacific peoples would have been much better off if Perry had never started that voyage or, having started it, if something had happened to prevent his completing it.

The Japanese, if living today an insular and secluded existence, guarding themselves against the outside world, suspicious of it, unfriendly toward it, would have had no problem to anyone.

It just goes to show, doesn't it that when you use force to open up a nation to outside influence — and Perry forced Japan to sign the treaty she did sign with us — you are liable to uncork a lot of trouble for yourself and all the rest of mankind.

We should remember that when we are trying to remake the rest of the world at the peace conferences.

C OF C REAFFIRMS STAND ON POWER

Chamber of commerce directors at their weekly luncheon Wednesday re-affirmed a stand opposing federal action that would prohibit government construction of transmission lines from government power generating projects.

The chamber took similar action, on a split vote, several weeks ago, but re-affirmed the stand when it was brought out that the current flood control bill contains a provision prohibiting government transmission lines from projects authorized in the bill, unless, after a three-year wait, 80 per cent of the power has not been purchased.

The vote again on Wednesday was divided.

On Wednesday, the directors enjoyed their annual Thanksgiving dinner, with several invited guests present. These included Commander R. R. Darron of the naval air station, Major Clyde Roberts of the Marine Barracks, E. B. Hall and H. D. Mortenson, former presidents of the chamber, and Charles Mack, a new member.
