

DECISION ON HEUVEL CASE LOOMS SOON

Dr. Rozendal was giving expert testimony. Next witness to be called was Police Judge Harold Franey who reviewed court procedure at which time both girls appeared before him. He said that at the time of their first appearance in court they entered pleas of innocence and that they were to be given a hearing following the report from Dr. Rozendal's office. The girls were brought before him a second time, Franey stated, and signified their desire to change their pleas.

Neims Testifies
Officer Anthony Neims, on the desk at the police station at the time the girls were booked, said he had received a call from Mrs. Currier at the Holly hotel and that Hamilton was sent there. Neims said that when the girls were asked their ages, Willie Mae gave her age as 22, and Margaret gave her age as 24.

Nine witnesses, subpoenaed by the defense, testified Thursday before Justice Mahoney that the reputation of the Collins girls, Willie Mae and Margaret, was "bad." The men and women called, swore under oath that they had known the girls either in Arkansas, their home state, Klamath Falls or Bonanza.

The testimony was sought by Defense Attorney Joseph C. O'Neill, in his stated intention to prove to the court that the moral reputation of the girls, as well as their reputation for truth and veracity, was such that their testimony should not be considered by Justice Mahoney.

Crowd Attends
The afternoon session opened in the county court room to accommodate the crowd which filled the smaller justice court to overflowing Thursday morning. Willie Mae Collins was questioned at length by O'Neill and she repeated her story as told earlier in the day. Under examination she described the specific point where the alleged act of which former Chief Heuvel is charged, took place. Willie Mae said Heuvel told them to follow him from the Lakeview junction and proceeded down the road for a "mile or two" and turned off into a grove of pine trees between the junction and Olene.

The girl testified that she saw one woman in a house near by and that the woman "might have heard me if I'd hollered or something." She also stated that her sister Margaret was sitting in her car not more than 10 feet from the Heuvel car in which Willie Mae said she and the former chief were sitting when he made improper advances to her. O'Neill asked Willie Mae if it was her "desire to get even with the chief." The girl answered: "I don't know, I just thought something should be done to keep this from going on."

Called to Stand
Margaret Virginia Collins was then called to the stand. She gave her age as 20 but admitted she had told the desk sergeant she was 24, and that to others she had said she was 22. Margaret repeated that she was "20 last August."

She told a similar story as that told by her younger sister, Willie Mae, and repeated that Heuvel had told "both of us, whatever you do don't tell the judge how old you are."

"Heuvel Followed"
Margaret described how the two stopped at the Merrill-Lakeview junction to get something to eat on their way out of town and that Heuvel had followed them there. "I was crying and I told him I thought he told us to go on home and he wouldn't bother us," Margaret said. "The chief told us 'I'll tell them you broke for California. I run that place, downstairs and upstairs, too!'" Margaret told the court that she had advised Dr. Rozendal, when the two were taken to his office for examination, that she had been married and when asked her husband's name gave it as Ralph V. Monasco, US army air corps, who died in England in August, 1943.

Under questioning the girl said she had been married in Nashville, Howard county, Arkansas, on June 13, 1942, and that a child of this marriage was born May 2, 1943.

Activities Questioned
Margaret was questioned at length as to her activities since moving from Arkansas with her family and said she used the name of Margaret East at Seneca, Ore., where her parents lived as she had lived with a Robert East, an ex-sailor, for two weeks but that she had at no time been intimate with him because "I didn't like him." Margaret said she thought she was married to the man but later learned he had produced a "phony license."

When asked by O'Neill why she drove down into the field at the request of Heuvel, Margaret testified that she was "scared he would shoot us because he had a gun."

Pleaded Guilty
The girl told the court she was not guilty of a charge of vagrancy and did not know the meaning of the word, but "I'll say I am if it will get me out of this and I can get home." It was at that point that she said she pleaded guilty before Police Judge Harold Franey and both she and Willie Mae were given suspended sentences with the understanding they return to their home.

Instead of going to Seneca, the two stopped at Bonanza to get work as they had neither money nor gas coupons for the trip, Margaret said.

Faller Called

First witness called by the defense to testify as to the credibility of the two girls, was Cecil Lane, 303 S. 5th, timber faller, who had known the Collins family in Arkansas.

Lane told the court he knew the girls when they were little and they were once taken to a dance, "the night the old man got shot," referring to Frank Collins, father of the two. He said under oath that their reputation was "bad," and told of meeting the two in the Kanteen last October. There Willie Mae asked him for $80 to repair their car and when he asked for security, Lane said that the younger girl told him she would "give him a date" for the money. Lane said he rejected her offer.

"Family Friend?"

District Attorney Clarence Humble then asked Lane if he were not "an old family friend?" Lane replied that he'd known the family for a long time and had "bought whiskey from Frank Collins when he was mooning in Arkie!" Other witnesses called to testify by the defense included Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Scoggins, and their 15-year-old daughter, Billie Jean, 924 Jefferson. The Scoggins family knew the Collins girls in Arkansas, the three testified, and all said their reputation was not good.

"Get Even?"

Scoggins said that at one time the girls had told him they would "get even with the s---" but he didn't know just who they meant and he "figured it was the cops." Mrs. Scoggins specified, however, that the girls chamber closed. He entered the chamber at 9:04, the pellets were dropped at 9:07, and he was pronounced dead at 9:13. The execution was witnessed by 95 spectators.

Nervous Night
He had eaten nothing all night but coffee. He spent the night smoking nervously, pacing his cell, and playing black-jack with a guard.

Rev. C. H. Steinmann, Salem, who spent part of the night with him, said the negro maintained his innocence throughout their conversations.

The negro's mother, Mrs. Clara Folkles, Los Angeles, left him at 10 o'clock last night.

No Clemency

Governor Earl Snel said he had received hundreds of phone calls during the night, and had neither eaten nor slept. In a statement, he said he was unable to grant clemency because of evidence "which convinces me beyond any doubt of the guilt of Robert E. Lee Folkles." The execution ended a 21-month attempt by the negro's mother, and other groups, to vineed of Folkles' innocence to save him from the gas chamber. The Oregon and the U. S. supreme court denied appeals. A zero hour plea for a habeas corpus writ on the grounds of alleged errors in the trial failed yesterday.

No Testimony

Folkles did not testify at his trial. He was convicted in April, 1943, by a jury of farm folk, partly on the evidence of three confessions, which the defense maintained were obtained under duress.

The negro, stolid throughout the trial, remained calm during the last few days and ate hearty meals.

Unclad Man Causes Cop, Wife Trouble

(SPOKANE, Jan. 5 (AP)—Patrolman George Storassi, called to an apartment by a report that a man was running about the halls nude, urged the unclad parader to return to his room, but without avail.

Then he learned the man was a deaf mute. So Storassi wrote a note to his wife, also deaf. "Tell him," he said, "to go to his room and to bed or I'll take him to the station."

The wife wrote back: "Tell him yourself. It's not my party."

CITY BRIEFS

Elks Meeting—Klamath Elks at their Thursday night meeting entertained a group of recently initiated members with a "mock trial" designed to settle an old hunting feud between Loyal Knight Charles Seavey and Lecturing Knight Vern Moore. Seavey presided at the meeting, and principal figures in the "trial" were Justice of the Peace Joe Mahoney, District Attorney Clarence Humble and Eddie Goeckner, "attorney for the defense." Moore took an active part as defendant.

Fairview Stamp Sale—A total of $17,055 in bonds and stamps was purchased at Fairview school this past week. In addition, during the Christmas holidays, students purchased $180.50 in stamps and bonds, which counted on the 6th war loan.

Electrification of Railroads Proposed
PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 5 (AP)—Electrification of northwest railroads to take the surplus Bonneville power left after closure of war plants—was proposed here today.

T. M. C. Martin, Bonneville power administration official, suggested the measure at the opening of a two-day meeting of the Bonneville regional advisory council.

Both Martin and Ivan Bloch, also a Bonneville official, urged a quick survey of possible electric power markets in the northwest.

The Empress Catherine received a Russian peasant woman in 1757 who had 57 children, all living.
