Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

As sequel to our discussion yesterday of the protested Shevlin-Hixon land exchange program in northern Klamath county, we want to point out that the basic problem of steadily increasing federal ownership of tax-free land in this and similar counties remains unanswered. This was the underlying concern which led to the protest against this transaction.

EPLEY

It is true that the forest service does make certain payments to local government, and that the sum has become quite substantial in recent years. (It brought more than $100,000 to Klamath county last year, and may go to $130,000 in the next fiscal year.) This money comes chiefly from our share of returns from timber sales and other forest revenues, and probably will fall off when the heavy wartime timber cutting subsides. Forest service people, at the conference here on January 17, are expected to offer some estimates on probable future payments of this nature to Klamath and Lake counties.

Federal legislation to provide for adequate, steady payment in lieu of taxes on property, taken from the tax rolls for government purposes, is being widely discussed. Just this week, President Roosevelt and Harold Ickes were quoted as favorable to such action, in stories relating to the Jackson Hole monument in Wyoming.

It should be kept in mind, however, that usually when the federal government makes contributions to local government, there are strings attached. As our local government depends more and more on Uncle Sam and less and less on private taxpayers, it becomes more and more subservient to federal authority, and government gets farther and farther away from the people. Those who are avaricious for power for the federal authority are pleased to see local government coming with its hand out.

As the federal government, through one agency or another, takes on more and more property, remaining private taxing sources become inadequate and there is no other alternative but to ask Uncle Sam for the dough.

And so, it can be seen, the protest lodged by two little county courts out in Oregon against handing over additional big slices of private land to a federal agency, touches on a mighty big subject.

This columnist has been called to Los Angeles because of a family illness, and personal appearances here may be on a hit-and-miss basis for a few days. We'll try, if we can, to drop a few lines in the mail from the south.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The fog in which we have been stumbling along toward a world peace organization is beginning to thin out.

The outline of certain events to come is becoming discernible.

True enough, the British press has taken to abusing American policies (no doubt for our criticism of their policy in Greece) and threatening to join the Russians against us, while the Russian press occasionally snaps at us, and our own people look on confusedly as both the Russians and British are conniving against each other for power in post-war Europe. Yet in this very confusion there lies a great clarity. It seems to me events obviously are shaping up this way:

The administration plan is to stage a big three conference (Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin) for a final settlement of principles in a post-war club of nations, and then have the working diplomats draw up a charter for it, which will be ready in April, (they hope and expect.)
This charter will pursue the Dumbarton Oaks line to a conclusion and the current tendency, both of the administration and much of the American public at large, is to worry whether it can get through the senate, with the two-thirds majority which will be necessary.

Long Distant Bridge
THUS we are fretting about crossing a distant bridge, not only before we get to it, but even before we cross a longer bridge immediately ahead. The pending problem is to get a sound agreement on a charter, and the success or failure in laying this first bridge will automatically determine the result on the second bridge. The arrangement itself will determine whether the senate will accept it.
Thus we should be worrying now only about getting a good charter, yet this matter is little discussed.

Considerable fog around this immediate bridge has been dispelled by recent events, though not all.
Russia is taking military control throughout central Europe and her military occupation inevitably will result in the establishment of political regimes under her control directly or indirectly. The British are doing the same thing in Greece, Belgium and Holland.
France has largely been occupied militarily by us, but we are not exerting much political control, and the French are making certain arrangements with Russia. Joint Anglo-American influence prevails in Italy, but it is the British who are directing the choice of cabinet ministers or vetoing them.

The realistic point of this condition is that the Russian seizures are absolute, unquestioned (also completely under censorship as to news) while those controlled by the British are open, democratic in theory and subject to international bickering and constant controversy (even including shooting revolts).

Now these occupations are all being made under a purely military United Nations agreement supposedly made at Tehran, and later, by Roosevelt, Churchill, and Stalin.

Some criticism has been made that Mr. Roosevelt also must have concluded secret political agreements for division of spheres of influence, because of what has followed. I do not think so. It would not be necessary or advisable. Military occupation inevitably brings political domination.

Red Idea of Democracy

THE Russians have their idea of democracy which travels with their armies, and we have an entirely different one, which is not traveling at all. To date, any realist must conclude they are getting away with theirs; we are not doing so well.

By April, it seems to me, this process of dividing Europe will be an accomplished fact, an irretrievably fait accompli.

Will the Russians then come into the world club, or join club-like rule of a stable Europe maintained with the arms of the big three? I believe they will. They will then have what they want and naturally will desire a world organization plus our armies and the British to guarantee and preserve their gains forever, if possible.

In fact, I wonder if they did not prevent final agreement on the Dumbarton Oaks line, and delay the constantly-promised negotiations since then, in order to get what they could in Europe first.

The ideals of Dumbarton for free determinations of peoples, might be embarrassing to the Lublin Polish recognition, etc., unless they got into those countries to stage the elections themselves. Their bargaining position with us certainly has been improved about 100 per cent by the delay they caused.

But will our people and the senate want a charter in April which perpetuates with arms the things they are now criticizing so severely in Europe? Will the administration want it? And what will we get out of it?

There are certain discernible answers to these questions authentically available here and I will report them tomorrow.

FROMHOLD TO GET TRANSFER TO WASHINGTON

Lt. Col. Walfried H. Fromhold, plans and training officer at the Marine Barracks, has been ordered to get transferred to Washington, D. C., to headquarters of the marine corps. Fromhold leaves February 1.
Fromhold enlisted in the navy in January, 1924, and won an appointment to Annapolis after spending two years as a seaman at San Diego. Graduated in June, 1930, he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the marine corps. Fromhold's first overseas duty came in August, 1932, when he joined the fourth marine regiment in Shanghai, China. He spent two and a half years in China, and was promoted to first lieutenant in 1934.
After six years of stateside duty, Fromhold went aboard the USS Mississippi as commander of the ship's marine detachment. Then a temporary major, he returned to the fleet marine force and went overseas as executive officer of the 8th defense battalion stationed on Wallis Island, near Samoa. He was promoted to his present rank in August, 1943. Fromhold went to British Samoa and took over command of the first battalion, 22nd Marines.
Fromhold saw action in the Marshalls and Guam and returned to the United States in October, arriving in Klamath Falls in November. He has been second in command at the Marine Barracks, as commander of troops. Lt. Col. Fromhold's wife and two children will accompany him to Washington.

Transportation Code Bill Protested

PORTLAND, Jan. 9 (AP)—City Commissioner Dorothy McCullough Lee asserted today that the proposed state motor transportation code would prevent cities from controlling and receiving revenue from taxis and city buses.
The code was compiled by a legislative interim committee to tax motor transportation on the basis of proportionate road damage—measured by the weight of the vehicle and its highway mileage.
Commissioner Lee claimed, however, that the bill as written would place complete control of all city common carriers under the state public utilities commission, depriving cities of franchise rights and directing all city transportation revenues into state coffers.
She said she would ask the interim committee to rephrase the bill before introducing it in the legislature.

SPEED CAUSED COLFAX WRECK, REPORTS ICC

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—A derailment of the Southern Pacific railroad's "Challenger" express train near Colfax, Calif., November 8 in which nine persons were killed and 206 injured was attributed today by the Interstate Commerce commission to "excessive speed on a sharp curve."
The west-bound express was running 19 minutes late and entered a 30-mile-an-hour curve "in excess of 55 miles an hour."
Investigation showed there had been no mechanical defects in the locomotive prior to the accident and that "there was no indication of dragging equipment, defective track, or of any obstruction having been on the tracks."
"It is evident that the train was moving at overturning speed, as the engine overturned to the outside of the curve without marking the rails, and slid on its right side to the point where it stopped."
The locomotive fireman said that for several minutes prior to the accident he was engaged that he did not pay attention to the engine's speed. "The first he knew of anything being wrong was when the engine suddenly lurched to the right" and the engineer was killed.

WAS PETER A POPE?

From the time of its establishment the Lord's church never had a pope as its head and spiritual guide. No office is even mentioned in all the letters to the apostolic churches. Authority to guide the churches throughout the entire world as a supreme head has never been granted any man.
Christ is the only one who has all authority over the church. Just before Jesus ascended into heaven He said, "All authority hath been given unto me in heaven and earth." (Matt. 28:18).
"And he put all things in subjection under his feet, and gave him to be head over all things to the church." (Eph. 1:22, 23).

He noted that Savage had been to correct the problem, but said the situation had been referred to the police commission to report back to the council.
Mayor Ostendorf presented a plaque on behalf of the John Sandmeyer and the safety council for outdoor work in pedestrian protection. Sandmeyer thanked the council and promised cooperation during the year.
City Engineer E. A. Thomas was empowered by the council to negotiate for five and a half acres of property to be returned to the airport, now leased to the navy. The navy has asked that additional land be chased to add to the end runway.
