SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12 (AP)—President Roosevelt intends to turn the Japanese-American internment camps into a segregated area for the Japanese-American population, Dillon S. Myer, director of the War Relocation Authority, said yesterday.

Myer said the Japanese-American population will be resettled in 12 months and encouraged to move as far as possible to the west coast.

The bulk of the movement is expected to be completed by March 1.

Myer said that the Japanese-American population will be encouraged to move to the west coast of the United States.

Beachhead Where MacArthur's Forces Landed

This aerial reconnaissance photo shows the Lingayen Gulf shoreline near San Fabian, first town named in initial reports as captured when General MacArthur's invasion army swept inland after easy landing on Luzon Island. The town was taken with practically no resistance.

SCHOOL BUILDING PROSPECTS DELAYED

TULELAKE—No immediate prospects for a new building in the Carr school district are in view, it was reported following a meeting of voters of the district held last weekend at which time Charles D. Bursch, Sacramento, chief of the division of school house planning met here to consider such a move.

While school rooms are over crowded, the buildings old, drinking fountains inadequate and sanitary facilities not up to standard, many of the voters are in favor of remodeling the present buildings until such time after the war as materials will be available for a new set up.

Future meetings of the voters and patrons will determine the course of action.

License Eater Now In City Doghouse

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 12 (AP)—Springfield's canine automobile license-eater was in the city's doghouse today, his numbers game apparently ended.

The pup was the object of a search after several motorists complained their license plates—made of soybean products—had been eaten by a dog. Yesterday the dog was caught in the act of chewing off the plates of a parked car.
