Our Home Town

Benjamin Franklin

By EARL WHITLOCK

The history books praise the printer for his inventions, for his electrical experiments, for his shrewd common sense and for his invaluable aid to the new nation. The United States in its birth throes, did you ever wonder how it happened that this son of a poor English immigrant, ill educated, was able to influence the royalty and the diplomats of all the great nations with whom he came in contact? His recipe for this was the simplest thing in the world. He did it by being completely himself. The bored courtiers of King Louis, hedged about with the endless and meaningless formalities of Versailles, suddenly found themselves face to face with a kindly old gentleman in a beaver cap of a vintage of three-quarters of a century ago, who talked to them as though they had been his own grandchildren. And all of a sudden immediately went wild over this simple, homely, backwoods philosopher.

Here was honesty. Here was frankness. Here was lack of pretense. In short, here was a man! All of which might give our present day diplomats something to ponder as they tread the devious paths of international planning.

Next Monday Mr. Whitlock of the Earl Whitlock Funeral home will comment on "The real Way to Excel."

Flashes of Life

STRETCHER-UPPER
MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 17 (AP)—Aaron B. Roesman, 31, had to grow a half-inch to become a policeman.

First examined, he was found to be 5 feet, 8 1/2 inches. He needed to be 5 feet, nine.

"I gave him a series of stretching exercises," said Executive Secretary B. H. Hadley of the civil service board, "and told him to come back early in the morning. Everyone is taller at that time."

"I measured him myself and found him to be 5 feet, 9 1/2 inches."

Board members looked skeptical but approved the appointment.

They have a standing order at $4 a pound.

GOURMET
LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17 (AP)—Max Haring, employe at a rendering company, found a Studebaker Pacific corporation identification badge in the stomach of a beef he was carving.

His brother-in-law, Roy Peterson, who works at Studebaker, said he thought the picture looked familiar. Sure enough, it belonged to a fellow employe, Carl Medsker.

Medsker said he lost the badge last March, while attending an auction at the stockyards.

Varieties of Apples Set Aside For Army

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—Handlers of fresh apples grown and located in Washington and Oregon were ordered yesterday by the war food administration to set aside their holdings of Winesap, Newton and Delicious (except Golden Delicious) varieties to meet military requirements.

What portion of the 6,800,000 bushels affected would be taken was not disclosed, but WFA said supplies not needed by the military would be released for civilians. Military requirements will be obtained from shippers on an "equitable basis," WFA said.

Primrose was a dinner guest at the Marine Barracks officers club Tuesday night and from 7 to 8 o'clock performed for the men at the Barracks auditorium where he was welcomed by an excellent attendance. Later with Major Henry Faus, Barracks recreation officer, Primrose watched the boxing matches at the Klamath naval air station.

LANGELL VALLEY ROAD REPAIRED

County crews were working Tuesday in an effort to repair a stretch of the Langell valley market road, near the William Campbell place, which has become nearly impassable.

County Judge U. E. Reeder said trucks and cars are getting through the stretch, but that they sink into the road surface and strike high centers.

The workers are taking rock out of a pit by hand and hauling it to the road. The county shovel is broken down and awaiting parts, Judge Reeder said, preventing its use on the Langell valley job.

Health Secretary Visits Communities

Mrs. Izola Parker, executive secretary of the Klamath County Health association, visited Bly and Sprague River Monday in answer to interest expressed there in the new mobile unit, due to arrive in Klamath county sometime this spring.

They will carry on the type of work which Mrs. Burt Hawkins is chairman for the entire county.

LEGION PROTESTS CHANGE IN RIGHTS

American Legion post of Malin has adopted a resolution protesting any change in the existing Klamath basin water rights. The post resolution was prompted by the California Oregon Power company proposal for construction of additional facilities on Klamath river.

"It is our belief," said the resolution, "that any further increase in allotment of any Klamath water rights to this or any other firm would be detrimental to the rights and benefits of the farmers of the basin."

The resolution was addressed to Klamath members of the state legislature.

Alaskan Papers Now Receiving AP Service

SEATTLE, Jan. 17 (AP)—Realizing a goal in Alaska newspaper development, the Anchorage Times and the Fairbanks News-Miner began receiving direct automatic printer service of the Associated Press today, the first papers in the territory to obtain this instantaneous transmission of world news from the United States.

The linking of the Seattle bureau of the Associated Press with the two Alaska papers in a service which also carried news reports from Press Association, AP's radio subsidiary, to stations KFAR at Fairbanks and KFQD at Anchorage was made possible by the cooperation of the signal corps Alaska communications system.

The speedup in news delivery carried to the northern territory press service comparable to that received by newspapers in the states. Each day the two papers will receive more than 7500 words of news copy, the most important stories from the leased wire operating 24 hours a day in the AP's Seattle bureau.
