Handy with tools? This job may be up your alley

This is a good job. And a bit unusual in many ways because it's got just a bit more excitement and real "he-man's" stuff" to it than most jobs. The work: Helper in Southern Pacific's big R. R. shops or roundhouses... working with skilled craftsmen on locomotives, rolling stock, other R. R. equipment. You don't need to be experienced—just willing. If you wish, you can learn railroading on the ground floor... learn a fine craft from men who know their business. You'll be part of a fine outfit... a company whose biggest job still lies ahead: carrying the war load for the huge Pacific offensive. Regular railroad wages. Fine pension plan. R. R. pass privileges. Medical services. Investigate today.

See or Write Trainmaster, S. P. Station, Klamath Falls, or your nearest S. P. Agent.

Remember this, the next time you can't get a reservation:

Over 1/2 the Pullman cars are now exclusively in military service!

Of every hundred regular Pullman sleeping cars, fifty-six are now exclusively in military service. But even the remaining forty-four, out of every hundred cars, are not fully available for civilian travel. Much of the space in these cars is reserved for men in uniform, too.

Obviously what is left, after the requirements of the armed services are taken care of, can't accommodate all the civilians who want sleeping car reservations. Please remember this the next time you plan to go somewhere on the train.

The problem of Pullman reservations is especially difficult on Southern Pacific, because we serve the West Coast ports of embarkation from San Diego to Portland, and more military and naval establishments than any other railroad.

Already we are carrying about five times the volume of passenger traffic as in 1940. And our military load gets bigger and bigger as America pours the heat on Japan.

To save yourself disappointment, please don't plan a train trip on Southern Pacific unless it is imperative.

Real Way to Excel

By EARL WHITLOCK

It is the nature of man to excel—to desire leadership. Yet it seems that a man cannot yield to his ambition to wish to see his wealth, but bring disaster to fellow men. This mean man's urge must be met by a man of wisdom.

Some of the wise old philosophers say no. They point out that a man can be immeasurably wealthy in wisdom, in common sense, in beauty, in virtue without taking a thing away from any other human being. Ambition to master men can be substituted to mastery of self—which is enough of a test to test his mettle. He can make vast stores of truth and knowledge without depriving anyone else of anything. He can excel all the rest of the world in honesty and in dealing fairly with his fellow men who no one will suffer loss of which you seem to be the realist type, as setting your sights pretty high. But you have to admit the truth and beauty of the ideal, any-
