Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY
KLAMATH'S extensive stands of lodgepole pine may become an important industrial asset as ponderosa pine harvest declines in volume after the war.

With the exception of tree-occasional cutting of larger trees intermingled with other species, the lowly jackpine has grown up and died without contributing to the industrial welfare of this area. But there is a tremendous amount of it, and whenever there has been talk of new uses of timber products in this area, the lodgepole has come into the discussion.

That happened last night, when Dean Dunn of the Oregon State college school of forestry was a speaker at an industrial development and post-war planning meeting here, sponsored by the chamber of commerce.

Dean Dunn agreed that the potentialities of lodgepole pine deserve thorough study, and promised that such a project will be the first new undertaking of the Oregon forest products laboratory at Oregon State college in the forthcoming biennium, provided the laboratory budget is approved. The budget for the biennium is about double that of the last two years, and its adoption is expected. The possibility of a study of lodgepole should bring the budget strongly into favor here.

Klamath people are well aware of the need for new enterprises in wood utilization in this area.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON
WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP)—No spyglass is needed to see what lies behind the proposal of Mr. Roosevelt to supplant Jesse Jones with Henry Wallace as commerce secretary for the fourth term.

It is quite evidently a move by the leftwing forces, under whose influence Mr. Wallace operates, to capture control of what they always have claimed was the Jones financial hegemony.

These forces, which the public sees mainly expressed in the prominence of Sidney Hillman in the CIO, would gain the inside track in the government mortgage and loan business amounting to billions and reaching out into every bank and many a business. Mr. Jones has built up what almost amounts to a $40,000,000,000 (billion) mortgage empire for the administration. The job of commerce secretary has meant little to the public. Until Jones took that chair it meant only management of government statistical bureaus relating to business, here and abroad, the bureau of standards, patent office, weather bureau and similarly unimportant (ideologically), etc.

But Jones brought into it the big lending agencies, RFC, defense plant corporation, defense supplies, metals reserves, federal mortgage association, disaster loan corp and such which wielded a dominant financial influence out through the country.

Transfer Shocks

THE proposed transfer of all this to ultra leftwing influence is what shocked many senators into the comment which has been published.

Many other stories are being told, purporting to give the inside inspirations for the president's decision. Most of them relate to the personal feuds involved.

One of the great gunning games of the administration has long run between Wallace and Jones. Some say this is the reason why Wallace asked for the post, merely to oust a bitter antagonist who defeated him in their earlier row.

Bad feeling also has existed between the president and Jones since the Texan had been unable to quiet antagonism to the fourth term in his home state. The leftists long have charged Jones with treachery, but never proved it, and I had personal experiences in the last campaign which proved to my satisfaction the Jones loyalty to the fourth term. His job which represents his life's work was at stake, he thought.

All this is superficial and inconsequential no matter which side you are on. That the president would be guided by personal antagonism in such a matter will be difficult to be believed generally. The average inner feeling in the senate, as I judge it—or at any rate the common sense viewpoint on the issue—is this: Mr. Wallace did as much public work as anyone for Mr. Roosevelt's re-election, although there are others, possibly including Mr. Jones who did great inside work. Certainly Mr. Wallace deserved a job and a job of his choice.

Strange Request

BUT that he would ask for the commerce secretaryship is somewhat strange in itself. He is about as well fitted for it as say Mrs. Roosevelt who also did good campaign work (in the average congressional opinion, and mine). She, too, was popular with the leftwing influence, no doubt equally dislikes Mr. Jones and has had about as much experience in the complex high finance involved in the New Deal's mortgage and bond business.

From the administration's own standpoint of keeping financial forces marshaled efficiently in the government interest, it would seem to me to be impossible for Mr. Wallace to do a good job.

The president unquestionably has placed a higher estimate than is average here on the man whom his campaign manager told him was not sufficiently popular in the country to be carried on the fourth term ticket in the recent elections.

What I cannot understand is why Mr. R. did not offer Mr. Wallace instead of Mr. Jones a choice of ambassadorships—a line of work in which he has had experience in Mexico and Canada.
