Canby

"It never rains, but it pours." At least that is what the Fulfer family believes. In fact, they are sure of it. Some time ago, Jack Fulfer found it necessary to have some of his ribs taped when it was found that they were cracked. About two weeks ago, his eldest daughter, Mrs. Matjie Locke, was seriously ill when she gave birth to her premature daughter. Before she was well a gain, her mother, Mrs. Jack Fulfer, took the flu and was confined for several days. While playing at school this week, the youngest son, Buddy, fell and broke his arm, and on Monday of this week, their youngest daughter's husband, Bill Boyd, was taken to the hospital suffering with appendicitis and within a few hours was operated on. Mrs. Fulfer is thinking of renting a permanent room at the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Orlo P. McGee left Thursday for San Francisco. While there they will visit with their daughter, Evelyn, who is employed in that city.

Canby raised $69.44 in the recent March of Dimes, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Olive Fitzhugh.

Comes the story of the accommodating bunny who knocked himself out for the pursuing dog. This is told by Joseph H. Bowden, S. P. agent at Canby, who was eye-witness to the tragic rabbit tale. Hot on the pursuit of the bunny was a large dog. Bunny headed for a pile of ties near the track and evidently thought there was a hole to accommodate him, but there was no hole and he landed head-on against the ties, knocking himself cold, whereupon the dog caught and finished him.
