Counterfire Grows

Distance was originally by Japanese counterfire, but steadily intensified as the enemy entrenched and burned them out boxes with flamethrowers. Ships, which Tokyo said destroyed the island, furnished support while swarms of planes dived on the base in front of the main path.

The Germans are fighting hard—their forces being composed of a combination of army regulars and Himmler home guards. In spite of our bombing of their rear communication lines, they are getting reinforcements up to the front.

The dispatches describe their counterattacks as counter JABS, not in full offensive force.

MOSCOW reports officially today that 258,150 Germans and Hungarians have been killed or captured in the last WEEK. There's a lot of Germans left, but that can't go on forever.

THIS long expected hint comes from Italy: "Numerous allied patrols ranged over the Italian front today, seeking to determine the strength of German forces which may be WITHDRAWING INTO HITLER'S LAST DITCH FORTRESS in southern Germany."

The dispatch adds that the Brenner pass is under steady attack by our bombers. British motor torpedo boats attack the Yugoslav port of Karlobar, 80 miles southeast of Fiume, at the head of the Adriatic.

THE mountainous area of southern Germany and Austria (with Berchtesgaden more or less in its center) where the nazis have been reported for some time to be preparing for a last ditch guerrilla stand lies just to the north of the German positions in northern Italy.

Large German forces remain in Yugoslavia, whose chief remaining rail route leads through Fiume into this same Alpine mountain hangout.

There may be something to this nazis-last-stand story that has been going the rounds.

DIVERSION PLAN HEARING SLATED

into the Pit river or the McCloud river.

Other Hearings

On Wednesday, the engineers will conduct a similar hearing at Yreka, and on Friday a third hearing, for the lower Klamath area, will be held at Eureka.

The plans tentatively studied by the engineers call for storage of flood waters in new reservoirs in the upper Klamath and Trinity river basins and the diversion of the developed surplus waters to the Central Valleys project of California for future hydro-electric power and irrigation use.

Propose Dam

The engineers propose construction of a dam in the Sprague river near Chiloquin which would provide a supplemental reservoir in the upper Klamath area. The plan contemplates taking water through Upper Klamath lake, Link river and Lake Ewauna, thence through a main conduit along the Lost river channel to Tule lake, and from there south through a tunnel into the Pit river. The alternative channel would place Klamath river near Spencer creek, and empty water into the McCloud river south of Weed.

In their preliminary statement, the engineers claim they have found that the added reservoir storage would assure ample water for all the ultimate water needs of the upper basin and still leave water for transfer to Central Valleys. They also give assurances that the needs of the upper basin will be taken care of before any water is delivered elsewhere.

Opposition Develops

Opposition to the scheme has developed in both the upper and lower drainage areas of the Klamath. In the upper basin, there is fear that construction would commit water to the Central Valleys that might be needed for agricultural purposes in this area in periods of drought or under maximum agricultural expansion. People down the river charge that the diversion would disturb the whole economy of that area, adversely affecting many business and industrial activities.

The Klamath county chamber of commerce land use committee has prepared an opposition brief that has been signed by numerous other organizations. Those not previously announced include the Malin, Pine Grove and Sunnyside irrigation districts, American Legion and Izaak Walton league.

Other organizations will make individual representations at the hearing, which will be open to the public.

Senator Randolph Collier of California, chairman of a senate committee named to investigate the engineers' activities, is expected here for the hearing, along with members of his committee. Representatives of the reclamation service, Bonneville administration, state engineer's office, and many others, are scheduled to be here.

JAYCEE TOWN HALL PROGRAM SLATED

The Town Hall program, sponsored by the junior chamber of commerce, in conjunction with the proposed Central Valleys diversion issue will be held tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. at the Willard hotel.

This question and answer program will be broadcast over KFJI and is open to the public. Interested persons will have a great opportunity to express themselves at this round-table discussion and Randolph Collier, state senator of California, will be on hand to present his views.

The session is sponsored by the Jaycees in an effort to formulate an idea of public opinion on the diversion. It is strictly a non-partisan affair.

Residents from the Sacramento and Central valleys regions have been invited to attend and representatives from Tulelake, Merrill Malin, and other outlying towns will be present.

This program will occur on the evening of the same day the U. S. army engineers hold their hearing here and a large attendance is looked forward to by the Jaycees.

17 Known Dead In Tacoma Fire

TACOMA, Feb. 19 (AP)—Seventeen persons were known dead today as firemen continued to brave bulging brick walls in search of an estimated three other persons whose bodies still are believed to be concealed in the rubble of the fire-ravaged Maefair apartments.

Seven of the recovered bodies are unidentified.

Fourteen of the dead were recovered from the ruins of the apartment house which broke into a mass of flame early Saturday morning, burned briskly for six hours and continued to smoulder until late Saturday.

Fire Chief C. J. Eisenbacher described the blaze as the worst in Tacoma's history.

Meet Wednesday—The Fairhaven home extension unit will meet Wednesday, February 21, at 10:30 a. m. at the home of Mrs. William Marander.
