Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

THE congressman from the second Oregon (our own) district, Lowell Stockman, made a speech in congress a short time ago on questions of farm labor and army manpower. Copies of a page from the Congressional Record, showing the Stockman remarks and comments from other congressmen, have been received in this area. It was an effective speech.

EPLEY

Mr. Stockman's statement fell into two divisions, based on the following points: (1) that a farm operator and a farm hand have to learn the business from the ground up, and that induction of competent farm help threatens the nation's essential agricultural production; (2) that there are important reserves of manpower already in the armed forces and not efficiently used, and that French and Belgian young men represent an untapped source of fighting manpower.

Some excerpts, which will give you an idea of the congressman's presentation, follow:

"Food is just as necessary to winning the war as is ammunition, ships or planes . . ."

"Because of the shortages of competent farm help, farmers are switching to producing crops than can be handled largely with machinery. This will result in serious shortages in certain essential items. Favorable climatic conditions have kept production, as a whole, up to normal, but these favorable conditions cannot be counted upon to continue. Two or three bad crop years, which it is only natural for us to expect, would place our reserves of foodstuffs at a dangerously low level."

"It is commonly believed that the armed forces, and especially the army, are the greatest wasters of manpower in the country. While it is not possible to get actual figures, a little preliminary investigating convinces me that from the something like 12,000,000 men which we now have in the armed forces, at least 1,000,000 physically fit and thoroughly able-bodied members are now assigned to duties that could be performed by older men, women, or men who are now classified 4-F . . . Important results can be obtained from physically handicapped men when they are properly assigned.

"Tens of thousands of young Frenchmen and Belgians . . . are idling their time away while our boys are fighting and dying for their liberty . . . Why cannot large numbers of these men be put in uniform and be permitted to fight for the freedom of their country?"

"Cases have been brought to my attention where men have been assigned to the infantry who had bad feet or arches. In a few days or weeks they were given medical discharges as being unfit for military service. Had these men been assigned to the transportation corps or a medical unit or the bakers' school this would not have happened.

"It is time we take inventory of our resources and eliminate this extravagance of our military leaders. Otherwise, we are heading toward impoverishment of both our industrial life and our young manhood."

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 20—Words and lyrics in praise of Mr. Henry Wallace are blowing over the country from the Washington and New York typewriters and mimeograph machines, furious words and thunderous lyrics. Here they sound like the old wind and rain machines of the 10, 20 and 30 cent melodramas which made Eliza's crossing of stage ice so perilous and awful—for those who can be easily convinced. The Wallace grinders moan and howl:

"If you're for Roosevelt, you're for Wallace" (signed National Business Men's Committee for Wallace.) . . .

"Wallace is a Yankee business man," howls Morgenthau (oblivious of geography which has certified Yankees in New England where Wallace has never been, except on political trips)...

"The reactionary senators are trying to defeat the common man," moans a Florida columnist whose opinion is being republished throughout the state as a paid advertisement.

Why? Mr. Wallace is defeated. He was defeated within 48 hours after his nomination for secretary of commerce was sent to the senate, defeated for the only important aspect of his appointment, control of the lending agencies.

• • • •

Least Important Job

I KNOW certainly Mr. Roosevelt called him in and talked to him then about giving up this $40,000,000,000 part of the commerce secretary's job although Wallace then still wanted to go through with both jobs. Without that RFC, the commerce secretaryship is the least important cabinet office.

He was defeated not by a few "reactionary" senators, but by complete outraged majorities of the congress recently elected by the people with Mr. Roosevelt for the fourth term. They just would not stand for putting a farmer in to handle the New Deal's financial lending empire.

Why all this hullabaloo, then? Why this fake campaign? It is a fake, because it simply is not true that if you are for Roosevelt, you are for Wallace.

Mr. Roosevelt himself had to discard Wallace for the presidential campaign; is being compelled by congress now again to discard him for a financial control job for which few think him suited.

It is not true that he is either a Yankee or a business man. It is not true that the opposition represents reactionaryism while he represents the common man.

Looking at it only from the Roosevelt liberal or any democratic viewpoint, the common man would best be served by an efficient management of the banks and lending companies through RFC in the interests of the government.

A man who knows nothing of such hard-boiled highly technical management could cause the whole RFC empire to fall into a mess within a few months, disrupting the proposed job-lending and ruin the country. Would that help the common man?

• • • •

Useful For Ruin

IN my solemn, sincere opinion, Wallace could be useful in that job only for those who want to ruin the country. You would not hire a physician to do your dentistry or a dentist to take out your appendix, not unless you wanted the patient to die.

Why this campaign? The only possible explanation, it seems to me is this:

Radical leadership in this country has fallen far below par. The latest Hillman-CIO movement clearly was so uninspiring from its own standpoint that it searched for a more respectable front, even during the campaign, trying to get the late Senator George Norris to head it.

Immediately after the election it started an illfounded fight on the Stettinius aides and got only about one-tenth of the vote of the senate.

Now it is trying to stir up just as ill-grounded and foolish a campaign to build Wallace up as a front for its activities.

From the way they are going about it, I judge they expect to make the people believe Wallace a tin-god from his defeat, a martyr for the "common man," a respectable show window man for future use.

Mr. Wallace is an honest, decent person and thus suitable for that purpose. He is not acute to the workings of those who have been using him for some time. Human and friendly, he has never been accused of being smart, or gifted with the qualities in sight for leadership.

The movement, therefore, is not likely to succeed. The leadership is still inept. True liberalism in the real interests of the people will not gain its day until young, new men who are both clever and honest, now unknown, arise to take hold of it and lead it away from its current course of humbuggery and quackery which would hardly deceive a modern child.

OUCH!

VERO BEACH, Fla., Feb. 20 (AP)—Chamber of commerce officials here, who advertise Vero Beach as the place "Where the Tropics Begin," were chagrined this week to learn that some luggage, marked "Zero, Florida" had arrived here—and been promptly claimed by its owner.

HOLIDAYS IN CITY TALKED BY COUNCIL

The subject of city holidays was brought before the city council Monday night by Councilman Paul O. Landry. There is no city ordinance concerning legal holidays, although a state law deals with the declaration of days that should be set aside as such. City Attorney Henry Perkins suggested that a new ordinance be drawn up concerning this matter, and Landry moved that Washington's birthday be declared a legal holiday in the city hall.

Also at this time, Mayor Ed Ostendorf referred all complaints having to do with heat bills to Paul O. Landry. The matter of heating in all city buildings was discussed at this time, and this matter was also turned over to Councilman Landry, to seek a man who is familiar with this business. O. D. Matthews, as plumbing inspector, is not responsible for heating in the city hall, it was reported, and it was decided that a man with experience in this particular field would be the best for the job.

The matter of the cinder nuisance was also brought up before the council for further discussion, and the new council feels that something definitely should be done to abate this nuisance. No action was taken.

Tugboat Pilot On Probation From Manslaughter Charge

PORTLAND, Feb. 20 (AP) — Clarence E. Harvey, pilot of a tugboat which capsized in the Columbia river in 1943 with a toll of nine lives, was on probation from a five-year sentence today.

Harvey pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter yesterday. Lewis Russell Sr. and Lewis Russell Jr., owners of the vessel, were indicted jointly with Harvey, but prosecuting attorneys said the case would be dismissed.

Three earlier federal indictments against the men were quashed because of inadequate grounds. Most of the passengers drowned in the sinking were Vancouver shipyard workers.

HOOD SPEAKS ON WORKS OF FAMED ARTIST

The life and work of Gutzon Borglum, world famous sculptor, was the theme of an interesting talk by A. B. Hood, general manager of the Ralph L. Smith Lumber company here, at the bi-monthly dinner meeting of the Klamath Junior chamber of commerce at the Pelican last night.

Hood briefly outlined the life of Borglum, discussed his various masterpieces, most famous of which is the Rushmore memorial sculptured on the Black hills of South Dakota. This work depicts the faces of George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Thomas Jefferson and Theodore Roosevelt.

The trials and tribulations which beset Borglum during this gigantic task were explained by Hood, who spent several weeks with the sculptor while he was formulating his ideas for this work.

The talk was followed by colored slides, illustrating the memorial and the surrounding country.

WHEAT

CHICAGO, Feb. 20 (AP)—Wheat was independently firm today, opening ⅛ to ¼c higher than yesterday's close and gaining strength on reported mill buying.

Reports reached the trading pit that a strong government demand for flour would develop late this week. This combined with rumors that alcohol manufacturers are experiencing difficulties with low grade corn, and may switch to wheat, gave added strength to the market.

Rye eased under local selling and profit taking. There was little interest in corn, and trade in oats was small.

At the close wheat was ¼c lower to ⅛c higher, than yesterday's close. May $1.12⅛. Oats were ⅛ to ¼c lower, May $1.12⅛. Oats were ⅛ to ¼c lower, May 66⅛c. Rye was ⅛ to ⅜c lower, May $1.14⅛. Barley was ¼ to ⅜c lower, May $1.06⅛.

SIMPLIFIED

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor)—No one seems to be saying anything about the simplified income tax law, not even the government; hence I desire some space on this subject, in the interest of both the government and the taxpayer.

This law has been very much simplified in many respects but it is not so simple or innocent as it sounds. The standard personal deduction allowed of 10% or adjusted income is fair and in many cases can be used instead of the exact personal deduction. However, I find that many of my clients have had a personal deduction of a great deal more than the 10% allowed, besides the taxpayer will need all these personal deductions in figuring out his own state income tax return, so then he should not forget this feature, in making up his figures for both returns, and especially if he or she has had a large medical expense.

The optional form, is just what it says, and you do not have to use it, for you can still figure out your own tax, if conditions warrant your so doing, and also you can save on the amount of tax to be paid, and you are strictly within the law in so doing, as such was intended by the congress.

Taxation, whether by state or national government just cannot be simplified, because of the complexity of our affairs. No two taxpayers are living under the same conditions, and taxation cannot be standardized and still be just and equitable, but on the whole the present law is all right, if it can only be left alone until the people get acquainted with it, so that they meet all just demands, and pay their just tax according to how they may have prospered.

Yours respectfully,
Wm. F. B. CHASE.

AGAINST ASIATICS

I saw in the paper where 650 Japanese were removed from the Tulelake center, and 632 were natives of the U. S. They were traitors—what kind of business is that? After enjoying the freedoms and privileges of as good a government as ever existed, should they not be punished as traitors? If a native American of any other color was a traitor, would he not receive punishment? Look what they did to Eugene V. Debs—he was not half as guilty as the American Japanese.

We are too easy on these Japanese. These traitors should be put on a desert island in the Pacific, and Japan told to come and get them or let them starve.

I think I am liberal on the Nipponese question, but say all Japanese who are disloyal, whether American citizens or alien Japs, should be deported.

I am willing to let the loyal ones stay here, even if they are foreigners, but they should be scattered to different parts of the U. S.

We do not want all of them here in the Pacific coast states. We have had too many of them in the past. They will multiply rapidly (as Americans do not) and will eventually run the coast country, and Caucasians, and not Japs, will be imposed upon.

Let us wake up to the situation. I do not blame different localities of the coast trying to keep them out. Their mode of living and sociology won't fit with ours. We don't want Asiatics of any description—Japs, Koreans, Filipinos, Indians from India, and yes—Chinese, too. Their mode of living and ethics are thousands of years old. They will not change. Some of them may be good people, but that makes no difference. We should enact legislation allowing no Asiatic to be a citizen, even if born here.

We had to amend the constitution to make the negro a citizen. We passed laws making the Indian a citizen.

Some people say that the Japanese are a whiter race than the negro or Indian, but that makes no difference. As I said before, the negro and Indian belong here and are patriotic citizens. The fact of this matter is they do not enjoy the same privileges as the Caucasians, and should.

Nearly all of us have kin laying in fox holes and suffering or being killed to help continue our ideas of government. Let us be loyal to them.

If we are not, some day we may be compelled to live on rice, fish and bamboo sprouts like the Asiatics.

THE BOY'S YARN

MEDFORD, Ore. (To the Editor)—In regard to the article in this column written by Major D. T. Wells, about a yarn his little son brought home from school, I would like to suggest he investigate first.

Major Wells indicates that wars start many times in the hearts of youth. I would like to say if all of our majors fell for yarns from children we never would win this war.

Nope, Major Wells you should investigate sonny's remarks before you get your gun out. Perhaps a spot on sonny's pants from daddy will prevent another war now between daddy and teacher.

The major should speak to the teacher because children sometimes get things mixed up. Yes even a major's boy.

Yours truly,
A. D. King
Rt. 1, Medford, Ore.

Editor's Note: Several persons have asked us about the identity of Major D. T. Wells, author of the letter referred to above. There seems to be no major of that name attached to local military services, nor is he listed in the telephone book. The Herald and News is glad to print the letters of readers, but the rule is that they must be signed by the real name of the writer.
