PROBLEMS OF HEALTH EYED AT MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the executive committee of the Klamath County Public Health association was held in the conference rooms of the chamber of commerce on Wednesday afternoon, March 7, at 3 o'clock.

Besides the committee members, several interested in the vital topic of social hygiene were present at this time, including Harold Franey, police judge; Arnold Gralapp, superintendent of schools; Joe Peak, boys' physical education director; Mrs. Frank Howard, dean of girls at KUHS; Mrs. Victor C. O'Neill, head of English department at KUHS; Elton Fishback, principal of Shasta school; Mrs. Isabelle Brixner, county school supervisor; Lloyd Seely, county sanitarian and member of the social hygiene committee; Lillian Lund of the Klamath Agency; Mrs. Roy Glenger of Chiloquin and Mrs. George Elliott of Merrill.

The order of business was changed for this meeting, opening with a report by Mrs. Robert P. Ellingson Sr., on the Oregon state conference on social hygiene which she attended in Portland. She presented the pertinent facts which were stressed by the numerous excellent speakers at the conference, including representatives of the armed forces, medical profession and the layman.

It was stated that 9,000,000 men in the various branches of the service have been, and are being educated to help in the control of venereal disease, and they will be a determining factor in post-war progress along these lines.

Dr. Adolph Weinzirl, venereal disease control officer of the Oregon state board of health, who visited in Klamath Falls last summer, claimed that the main channel of informing the people is through the state systems of education.

Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar, executive secretary of the Oregon Tuberculosis association, said: "We have not taken over the state social hygiene work—we have taken on a unit."

Another speaker reported that one of the most noticeable trends in the youth of today is that they know so much more than they do. Young people must be taught that all of life doesn't come between the ages of 15 and 25, and the principal means by which they may be educated is through appeal to the parents, who, in turn, should relay their knowledge and training to their children. Oftentimes, parents have been found to be the underlying cause of much of the present juvenile delinquency.

Police Judge Harold Franey stated that the problem now facing us is more acute than people realize, and this same problem requires a great deal of understanding and even more knowledge and education. According to Judge Franey, it is extremely serious from the standpoint of law enforcement authorities, because they come into contact with cases only after the damage has been done.

Arnold Gralapp stated that the Klamath County Public Health association is accepting an obligation in this field, and that first of all, there is a need to set up an organization that can expand in an area where this education is necessary. He went on to say:

"There must be a background of public opinion strong enough to permit the public schools to institute a program of education."

As an outcome of yesterday's meeting, a social hygiene committee will be appointed to work in the most effective manner to meet the largest outlying problems in this field.

GUARD RECRUITER SPEAKS AT KUHS

Capt. McDonald, recruiting officer for Co. B, 1st Bn. Inf. of the Oregon state guard, addressed young men of KUHS Thursday morning.

He was accompanied by 1st Lt. Newton B. Nelson of Co. B and 1st Lt. A. L. Anderson of communications.

The local guard company, Capt. McDonald stated, is Klamath Falls' own company in the Oregon state guard structure, which dates back to the mustering in of the original company B, Dec. 17, 1941.

Since that time, said the captain, Co. B has maintained its high standard of proficiency.

A glowing tribute was paid to former Oregon state guard members who have made enviable records in World War 2. Rapid promotion in the ranks has been gained by many of these former state guardsmen, reflecting the thoroughness of the training which they received.

Capt. McDonald stressed four principal advantages resulting from military training as ability to accept responsibility, ability to carry out orders, self confidence and ability to give orders and assume command.

All four advantages, the captain reminded the assembly, are useful throughout life.

OFFICERS VOTED MEMBERS OF C OF C

Commanding officers of the three military encampments in this area have been unanimously voted as honorary members of the chamber of commerce.

The vote was passed at a chamber meeting of the board of directors Wednesday as a gesture of hospitality toward our armed forces.

Military officials have always been welcome to attend the meetings of the chamber of commerce, Charles Stark, secretary, stated, but have not always used their welcome.

By voting them in as members, the tie-in between military and civilian personnel in greater in points of interest to both parties. As members the officers feel more at home and take a part in affairs of the community in which they are stationed.

Present commanding officers who received formal notice of honorary membership in the Klamath chamber of commerce are Col. George Van Orden, Marine Barracks; Com. R. E. Darron, Klamath naval air station, and Maj. John Hazlett, Camp Tulelake.

HIGH SCHOOL News Notes and Comment

By KEITH COOK

The K club had a meeting this morning to discuss plans for the formal dance it is holding at Reames Country club sometime this month.

All the boys between the ages of 16 and 17½ met in the auditorium this morning at 9:05. Three men from the national guard, Capt. McDonald, 1st Lt. N. B. Nelson, and Lt. Anderson outlined activities for boys wishing to join up before their 18th birthday. Mr. French also gave a short talk on the army specialized training program for boys that are about to join the service.

The student body was very glad to see Barbara King and Dorothy O'Malley back in school after serious illnesses.

Mary Jo Hallett of Klamath Union high school will represent this district in the state final of the American Legion oratorical contest to be held at Reed college in Portland on March 31. Mary Jo, a senior, has been active in speech work and represented the school last year in both the American Legion and the Oregon high school Speech League contest.

PLANT OFFERED FOR SALE NEAR BEND

A cold storage warehouse with equipment at Camp Abbot, near Bend, is being offered for sale by the war department.

Bids on the property are invited by March 26, according to a notice received by this newspaper from E. W. Barnes, chief of the Portland sub-office of the army's division engineer.

The plant offered for sale is located now at the Bend camp, about 11 miles southwest of that town. It includes a cold storage warehouse, approximately 71 feet by 175 feet, four compressors, 14 cold diffusers, two condensers, pumps, scales, record-
