Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

LEGISLATORS at Salem are about to adopt the bill which sets up an interim committee to study the Oregon tax set-up.

The bill carries an appropriation of $20,000, which will not be wasted if the committee does a thorough and expert job. Oregon can afford to spend that much in overhauling its tax program on a systematic basis, instead of pecking along biennium after biennium at mere parts of the general problem.

EPLEY

What we hope for is a list of recommendations that will attract the support of all the public-spirited elements in the state—a program that will strike a sensible balance between real property levies and the other available means of raising revenues, such as consumer levies and taxes on incomes and other intangibles.

Teen-Age Club

AFTER a couple of years of discussion and some abortive efforts to do something about it, the teen-age club question seems to be coming to a head in this city.

A group of high school student leaders, and an advisory body of citizens, head up the current effort, and it is proposed that a portion of the armory be set aside for the club. Certain organizations have been asked to make substantial contributions to the project, and there is also some opinion that the city recreation committee should appropriate money for it out of funds it has saved for a swimming pool. The financing question may be threshed out at a meeting next week.

Presence of large numbers of service men here has stimulated the teen-agers in their efforts to get a club "hang-out" of some kind they can call their own. They see such places set up for the military folks, and they find the down-town places they used to haunt pretty well crowded.

One matter that we hope to clear up today concerns the teen-age club fund of the junior chamber of commerce. It will be remembered the junior chamber staged a special entertainment at the Pelican theatre some time ago for such a fund. Although they made no such claims, the impression got out that the junior chamber men intended to use the money in starting a teen-age club.

We have asked the junior chamber about the money, and learn that their share of the receipts of the show—$213.50—is on deposit and will be made available for any authorized, substantially-sponsored teen-age club project. There's a nest egg.

Optometry Issue

SOME time ago, an item appeared in the press to the effect that the Standard Optical company of Klamath Falls had been charged with practicing optometry. That may have puzzled some readers, who had never regarded practicing optometry in a class with burglary, speeding, rape, or any of the things people are charged with around here. Furthermore, several reputable citizens who practice optometry continued to go about in public without apparent fear of police apprehension.

It turns out that it all depends upon who practices optometry, whether it is beyond the pale of Oregon law or not. The accusation against Standard Optical was due only to the fact it is a corporation, and hasn't a thing to do with the merits of its services to the public. A corporation may hire the most expert licensed optometrists in the state, give the best eye examinations in town, place the most efficient and best-looking spectacles on the noses of its clients, but, under Oregon law as presently interpreted, it is in violation. Hence, the suit against Standard Optical.

The issue got into the legislature. A bill was introduced to permit corporations to hire licensed optometrists and thus practice optometry. The Standard Optical suit was held in abeyance pending outcome of the legislative question.

Yesterday, in its wisdom, the house rejected the bill, making happy those optometrists who want the law to go on protecting them against corporation competition, rather than to permit the public to decide who gets the business on the grounds of competitive merit.

A young lady we know reports a disturbing experience on the street that has convinced her that male boldness is getting into the lower age brackets. Passing a pair of 8 or 9-year-old boys, she smiled at them pleasantly, feeling a slight maternal twinge. One of the lads gave her an audacious look straight in the eyes and said: "Hello, honey."

The War Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

THE surprise crossing of the Rhine by American first army units south of Cologne is one of the most brilliant coups of the entire war—and one which may shorten the conflict greatly, especially since it synchronizes so perfectly with the new Russian offensive across the Oder against Berlin.

No wonder General Eisenhower is "delighted," since this is the sort of thing a commander dreams of but hardly dares hope for. Details are lacking but apparently a hardy and quick-thinking officer flung his men across the river onto a terrain which was so rugged that the Hitlerites never thought an attempt would be made there. As a result they weren't prepared to defend the position.

• • • •

Inside Barriers

AT long last both the western allies and the Russians are inside the final great natural barriers of Hitler's vaunted inner fortress. Thus the further defense of the reich now depends largely on the German fighting man and his equipment. In short it's a battle with bare hands. The allied objective is the annihilation of the wehrmacht which soon will be caught between two advancing fronts, unless it flees to southern Germany.

The fact that the point where the Americans crossed was virtually undefended is significant of Nazi Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's shortage in manpower. No matter how unlikely an enemy attack was at this place, the German commander would have guarded it if he could.

However, we shan't have a full gauge of his weakness until we see what he does about staging a powerful counterattack to smash our beachhead. That's his next logical move, and if he can't carry it out in force, then we shall know that he is indeed pretty well shot to pieces.

• • • •

Compel Evacuation

THE advent of the American forces on the east bank of the Rhine below Cologne is likely to compel the nazis to evacuate Holland, not only to avoid being cut off but because Rundstedt will need all the troops he can scrape together from all points. Evacuation of Holland will be a godsend to England, for the rocket bombs which have been causing death and destruction in Britain are launched from bases on Dutch territory.

The allies obviously save much time by the surprise crossing of the Rhine. The cracking of this great barrier normally would be one of the most difficult and dangerous amphibious operations of the whole war, and couldn't be undertaken without much preparation if the enemy was defending the east bank in force. There still may be hard fighting in further crossings, but the first army coup has broken the back of the job.

THEATRE INCIDENT

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor)—The police version of Sunday night's incident at the Esquire theatre, carried in your Wednesday paper, differs from the true facts as I know them as an eye witness. I am the wife of S. W. Buttler, who was arrested following that incident and who paid a fine for being drunk and disorderly.

Mr. Buttler did not "demand" seats, as was reported in the press. He did get into a discussion with one of the usherettes, and she called Mr. McCoy, the assistant manager. Mr. Buttler was not noisy, and agreed to go with Mr. McCoy to the office, with the understanding he would receive his money back. He could not find the ticket stubs because my sister-in-law had them. When he wanted to return to get them, Mr. McCoy and Mr. Lamb would not permit him to do so. In a scuffle, my husband's thumb was bent back and sprained, and the nose piece of my glasses was damaged — but not by Mr. Buttler.

Mr. McCoy had his arm around Mr. Buttler's neck, and my husband felt he was being choked. He says he does not remember biting Mr. McCoy's hand, as was reported. He did not call Mr. Lamb a vile name, as was stated by a policeman.

It was an unfortunate incident, and we paid the fine rather than make more trouble. It was most distressing to us, as we have had no such previous experience with the police and are jealous of our respect and reputation in the community.

MRS. S. W. BUTTLER.

Pimples Disappeared Over Night

Yes, it is true, there is a safe harmless medicated liquid called Kleerex that dries up pimples over night. Many report that they had a red sore pimply face one night and surprised their friends the next day with a clear complexion. There is no risk. The first application must convince you or you get your money back. Only 50c. Join the happy Kleerex users who are no longer embarrassed with unsightly pimples. SUNDSTROM TAKES OVER NEW DUTIES

From Los Angeles has come the Reverend Charles J. Sundstrom, who will assume the duties of pastor of the Emmanuel Baptist church. Sundstrom has been preaching since he was 17 years of age, and has had a wide field of experience in the ministry.

For the past 10 years, he has been engaged with the Swedish Baptist Conference of America as a conference missionary, as well as pastor of the church in Providence, R. I., and superintendent of the Pacific Baptist Home in Los Angeles. Having spent nearly 15 years in evangelistic work, he has held meetings in all parts of the United States and Canada.

Sundstrom was born in Sweden and came to this country with his mother in 1911. Accompanying him to Klamath Falls is his wife, Selme, also of Swedish descent. Their daughter and grandchild are remaining in Portland for the present time. Both of the Sundstroms are accomplished musicians and vocalists, and a full program of music is being planned by the church. It is hoped that a large orchestra will be formed with the help of the pastor and his wife.

BISHOP TO BE GUEST PASTOR AT ST. PAUL'S

Bishop Lloyd R. Craighill, native of Lynchburg, Va., will be the guest pastor at St. Paul's Episcopal church Sunday at the 11 o'clock service. The bishop and Mrs. Craighill will also be honored with a potluck supper at St. Paul's parish house Saturday at 6:30 p. m. The vestry is in charge.

Bishop Lloyd B. Craighill is a graduate of Washington Lee university and of the Virginia Theological seminary. He went to China to the Diocese of Anking in 1916 and was consecrated bishop of that missionary district in 1940, and was later interned by the Japanese. He was repatriated on the first trip of the Gripsholm and has a most interesting story which is of vital import to the public generally in view of the prominence of China in the minds of most people today.

Mrs. Craighill was a member of the Presbyterian mission in China and was married to Bishop Craighill in 1918. She, as well as the bishop, is a most interesting speaker. The Craighills are making an extensive speaking tour of the Pacific coast and will visit California, Arizona and New Mexico as well as eastern Oregon.

Pastor Returns to Klamath From Trip

The Rev. Albert L. Dwight, pastor of the First Covenant church, who has been absent from his church during the past two months, while participating in missionary conferences in California, Oregon, Washington, Montana and Idaho, is again at home and will fill the pulpit on Sunday.

At the morning service he will speak on the theme "The Decision Hour and the Testing Season." At the evening service he will bring some echoes of the missionary conferences. The public is cordially invited.

WHEAT

CHICAGO, March 9 (AP)—Belief that grains may have been oversold in yesterday's closing break generated enough buying to rally futures markets today but liquidation, especially of new crop wheat deliveries, reappeared and most of the early gains were lost.

A weaker stock market and the possibility of further government steps to check inflation discouraged buyers and many longs were eager to even up pending further war developments.

Because of conflicting influence all markets were nervous. Offerings dried up when buying orders appeared and increased when the demand faded.

At the finish wheat was ⅛ to 1⅛c higher than yesterday's close, May $1.69⅛-¼. Corn was off ⅛ to ⅜c, May $1.14⅛. Oats were unchanged to ⅛c higher, May 66⅛c. Rye was ⅛c lower to 1c higher, May $1.13-1.13⅛. Barley was off ⅛ to ½c, May $1.10⅛.

Market Quotations

NEW YORK, March 9 (AP)—Leading stocks resumed their descent in today's market but with somewhat less rapidity.

Dealings slowed at intervals as recoveries cropped up here and there.

Near the fourth hour, quotations were around the lows of the day. Declines of 1 to 3 or more points were widespread.
