A Double-Barreled Opportunity . . .

YOU WANT TO SERVE YOUR COUNTRY . . .
YOU WANT TO PREPARE YOURSELF FOR POST-WAR OPPORTUNITIES

YES — you can do both — NOW! The Navy's need is your opportunity!

RADAR — a magic name — one of the war's most exciting developments. The Navy needs men, hundreds of them, for RADAR training — for eventual service on land, sea, air.

Technical knowledge is desirable but not required. If you have background of high school mathematics, physics, know something about shop practice, basic electricity, you may qualify.

Once qualified, you enter as a seaman, first class (army equivalent corporal.) Ten months of specialized training follow and upon successful completion a petty officer rating.

Countless new opportunities open in the post-war world — qualify to hold key positions in television, industrial electronics, broadcast radio, aircraft radio, and other scientific occupations.

How to Qualify for Radar Training

ENLISTEES—Voluntary enlistments in the Navy are open to men of 17 and those who are 38 and over. Parents' consent is required if 17.

INDUCTEES—All inductees who pass their pre-induction physical examination and meet Navy standards, may take the Eddy Test. Those who pass are assured of assignment to the Navy for Radio Technician Training.

YOUR FIRST STEP IS TO TAKE THE EDDY TEST AT YOUR NEAREST
